Nixon Visits Ohio

President Richard Nixon shakes hands with bystanders in Middlesburgh Heights, Ohio, during his 80-mile motorcade campaign swing through Northeast Ohio—his only visit to the state before the Nov. 7 election.

Vows To Never Grant Draft Dodgers Amnesty

MANTUA CORNERS, Ohio (AP) — President Nixon, campaigning through Ohio and Michigan, vowed Saturday he would never grant amnesty to draft dodgers who fled the country to avoid Vietnam service.

The President halted his motorcade as it rolled through the Ohio countryside when he saw a sign displayed by a family which had lost a son in Vietnam.

The sign said, "No amnesty," and the President told Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lorence:

"Don't worry about that amnesty—they are never, never, going to get amnesty."

It was Nixon's strongest assertion yet that draft evaders who left the country rather than fight in Vietnam would not receive amnesty.

In Garrettsville, Ohio, Nixon said there has been "very significant progress" in Vietnam peace negotiation. "It's going to come out all right," he said.

The President's assurance came when he was greeted by a young man who said he had served in Vietnam as a Marine and asked about progress in ending the war.

Referring to "those few hundred draft dodgers," the President told the family which lost their son in Vietnam that the draft dodgers "are going to pay a penalty for what they've done."

Lorence said his son, John, was killed in Vietnam in June 1969.

"You should be proud," Nixon said as he stood in the lawn of the Lorence home alongside the highway between Aurora and Mantua Corners south of Cleveland.

"I am proud" said Mrs. Lorence.

"You know what it's all about," the President said and added, "He knew too," referring to the Lorence son.

Earlier, Nixon had hit a law and order theme, declaring, "it makes by blood boil" to see some "scroungy looking people ... spitting on policemen and calling them pigs."

As he stepped up the pace of his limited re-election campaign, Nixon motorcaded 100 miles through a dozen northeastern Ohio communities, claining his policies had curbed crime and drug abuse and had brought " a dynamic economic expansion" to America.

Summit County Sheriff's Maj. Allen Morrison estimated the crowds at about 100,000.

Along the way, he warmly embraced Republican congressional candidates. But he made no mention in his initial brief speeches of the suspense in Vietnam peace maneuvering.

Crowds lining the publicized-in-advance motorcade route cheered and applauded as Nixon, standing in the back of his black limousine, waved and flashed the victory sign.

In the blue-collar Cleveland suburb of North Royalton, Nixon paused to praise America's law-enforcement officers.

He referred to a suburban policeman murdered two days ago and said "You can't pay a man enough who risks his life to help you keep yours."

But, he said, "you can respect them, honor them.

"I have seen on occasion over these years some scroungy-looking people who are spitting on policeman and calling them pigs," Nixon said. "It makes my blood boil."

The four Ohio counties through which Nixon traveled contain 25 per cent of the vote in a state he carried in 1968 and in which he leads this year.

The traditionally Democratic ethnic blocks are a key element in the "new American majority" which Nixon said he sees forming to give him on Nov. 7 " a mandate for peace, progress and unity."

In the Cleveland suburb of Parma, Nixon halted his motorcade in front of the campaign headquarters of Rep. William Minshall. He had Minshall climb onto the trunk of his limousine and expressed

Says Election Focus Should Be On 'Best'

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Campaigning in California and Washington State, Sen. George McGovern said Saturday the crucial issue in the Nov. 7 election is who can best deal with the Nation's domestic problems in the period after the Vietnam war ends.

"It is clear," he said, "that it is the Sargent Shriver-George McGovern leadership that will be best for the economy of this country in the postwar period."

McGovern said he and the Democrats can best handle the transition to peace as he spoke to 1,500 persons at a breakfast at Anaheim, Calif., and to more than 9,000 cheering supporters—mostly citizens—at a rally at Gonzaga University in Spokane.

Then, he flew to Seattle for a statewide telethon and another rally before returning to Washington on an overnight flight.

At Anaheim, McGovern said that, with the Vietnam war apparently nearing its end, the crucial question is "which leadership and which party is best designed on the record to deal with the problems" of unemployment, inflation and other domestic concerns.

Then he flew to eastern Washington and speaking in Gonzaga's jammed Kennedy Pavilion, declared that, if the end of the war does come, the question facing the nation becomes "what kind of leadership do we want to bring to the fore to deal with the problems of this country in time of peace?"

"Seldom have we faced a moment that will determine so clearly our course far into the future and perhaps even ultimate shape of this free society," he said.

The choice, McGovern said, is between his own leadership and the "four more years of manipulation and deceit and deception that has cursed this country ever since January of 1969."

More than 1,500 supporters paid $5 each to attend the breakfast for McGovern in the heart of conservative Orange County,

U.S. Seeking Cut In U.N. Assessment

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States is waging a campaign this year to cut its U.N. assessment with the same intensity it used last year trying to keep Nationalist China in the organization.

Delegates here have heard from their capitals that U.S. ambassadors have given word that Washington considers the assessment issue even more important now than it did the China issue then.

The United States failed on China. The General Assembly rejected its two-China plan, ousted the Nationalists and seated the Communists as the sole representatives of China.

But diplomats say the United States has a good chance to win in its current campaign to reduce its annual payment toward the U.N. budget from 31.52 per cent of the total to 25 per cent.

The United States, which pays the biggest budget contribution of any of the 132 U.N. members, has a resolution ready to put in when the General Assembly's administrative and budgetary committee takes up the issue in mid-November.

The resolution would have the assembly decide that "the maximum contribution of one member state to the ordinary expenses of the United Nations shall not exceed 25 per cent of the total."

To quiet fears that others might have to pay more, it provides that no other member country's percentage contribution shall be increased purely as a result of the U.S. decrease.

The Committee on Contributions must recommend a scale of assessments for the three years of 1974-1976 to be adopted by the General Assembly next fall.

Allende Cuts Off Strike Talks

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — A rapid solution to Chile's crippling strikes appeared doomed Saturday after President Salvador Allende cut off talks with strike leaders because their demands, he said, contained "political overtones I won't accept."

Allende announced on nationwide radio and television about midnight Friday that negotiations had collapsed. His announcement followed a day of street violence in the capital in which 142 persons were arrested.

Strike leaders scheduled meetings to analyze the latest move by Allende but the strikes are expected to continue idefinitely.

"If Allende doesn't want to talk with us anymore, well, we'll just keep on going," commented Rafael Cumsille, president of Chile's Small Business Confederation.

The strikes began almost three weeks ago when truck owners broke off discussions with Allende's leftist government over higher cargo rates and the protested formation of a state-owned trucking firm in southern Chile.

Small-business men and shopkeepers called a sympathy strike and other groups, including doctors, dentists, engineers, lawyers and private schoolteachers, soon joined in.

From a relatively isolated labor dispute, the strikes have taken on broader antigovernment overtones with the establishment of a "Unified Command" of striking groups which has presented Allende with a document called "The Petition of Chile."

This document contains a number of demands regarding subjects that have become extremely controversial issues in the two years since Allende initiated his programs to lead Chile "down the road to socialism."

The anti-marxist opposition political parties have also thrown their support to the demands of the Unified Command.

Allende rejected the demands, claiming the strike leaders want him to recognize them "as fellow legislators."

Both Sides Jockey For Talks Advantage

SAIGON (AP) — Enemy forces occupied 12 hamlets around Saigon in a land-grab offensive Saturday while both sides jockeyed for diplomatic advantage on the negotiating front for a cease-fire.

Henry A. Kissinger was reported ready for another round of talks with the North Vietnamese to stave off last-minute bloodletting and what he called "the temptation ... to seize as much territory as possible" before war's end.

The U.S. presidential adviser has said this is one of six or seven concrete issues still to be negotiated in Paris.

In Saigon, President Nguyen Van Thieu again conferred with U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker to resolve differences on a Washington-Hanoi peace draft. He also dispatched three top diplomats on an 11-nation tour to explain South Vietnam's position to Asian neighbors.

It was also learned that Theiu had recalled his ambassador to London, Vuong Van Bac, for consultations here. Bac is an expert on international law and has served on South Vietnam's delegation to the Paris peace talks.

Communist radio broadcasts expressed impatience with diplomatic delays, but Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops in South Vietnam showed no letup in hostilities.

The United States has stepped up its delivery of war materials to South Vietnam, it was learned. But informants said it is releasing hundreds of GIs from Vietnam duty as much as 2½ months in advance of normal rotation dates to get them home for Christmas and to reach the 27,000-man ceiling by Dec.1.

South Vietnamese military spokesman and field reports said enemy units had infiltrated 12 hamlets in five provinces around Saigon — Binh Duong to the north, Bien Hoa to the northeast, Long Khan to east, Phuoc Tuy to the southeast and Hau Nghia to the west.

Scores of small firefights erupted around the capital as government militiamen tried to evict the invaders. Highways 1 and 13 and several secondary roads were cut by enemy ambush squads while shelling attacks pounded South Vietnamese military positions and civilian population centers.

Thieu placed South Vietnam's armed forces on a general alert and ordered his field commanders to crush land-grab efforts. His directives included police raids to root out Viet Cong political agents in Binh Dinh Province and a nationwide flag campaign aimed at asserting government control.

American peace negotiators had hoped to avoid this kind of territorial contest.

Kissinger told his news conference Thursday: "It has become apparent to us that there will be a great temptation for a cease-fire to be paralleled by a last effort to seize as much territory as possible, and perhaps to extend operations for long enough to establish political control over a given area.

"We would like to avoid the dangers of the loss of life, perhaps in some areas even of the massacre that may be inherent in this. Therefore, we want to discuss methods by which an international supervisory body can be put in place at the same time that the cease-fire is promulgated."

Hanois radio assailed Thieu's opposition to the peace draft worked out by Kissinger and Hanoi's Le Duc Tho in Paris, and accused the United States of using this as "a mere excuse" to delay signing of the agreement Oct. 31.

Thieu, however, has said that only he can sign a valid peace agreement for South Vietnam and would not feel bound by any other peace plan worked out between the United States and North Vietnam.

An editorial broadcast by Saigon's government radio station implied a criticism that Kissinger had misled newsmen by suggesting that South Vietnam had agreed to most of the peace proposals.

Thieu's Thoughts Unknown

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu has done more talking in public in the last two weeks than in the past year. Still, nobody outside his closest circle of confidants really knows what Thieu is thinking about a peace settlement.

To hear Thieu tell it, as he has in a series of bombastic declarations over recent days, Saigon will never bow to Communist demands for a coalition government or any interim deal that could lead to their eventual seizure of power.

He also has insisted that there can be no settlement in Indochina unless North Vietnam withdraws all of its troops from South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia.

These two familiar themes also are the apparent major sticking points that stand in the way of an agreement that could end the war in swift order.

Among diplomats, officials and other foreigners opinion is divided as to whether Thieu's resistance to them is as strong as ever, or simply a protective cover that will suddenly vanish when a peace pact is unrolled on the table for signing.

The former view is held by those, including most of Thieu's critics, who see him as so unrelentingly anti-Communist that he would choose more blood letting over compromise.

The latter is based on the idea that no matter what happens in the private negotiating chambers, Thieu must maintain an intractable public stance against his enemies in order to keep confidence and order among the people. More especially among the military, whose letdown resulting from false cease-fire hopes could prove disastrous.

While this question of whether Thieu's stated position is reality or ritual remains unresolved in some quarters, there appears among many Vietnamese a belief that he is talking straight when he says there will be no cave-in to outside pressure, nor can any deals be struck for the country against his will.

The president who is often maligned as a lackey of the Americans — by the Communists and by his own critics at home — seems to be reaping a surprising degree of admiration from citizens who see him, perhaps not as a national hero, but as representing their best hopes for an end to the long and bloody road they have traveled, without being forced to a conclusion that would make it all for nothing.

The two-hour television speech Thieu delivered Tuesday, outlining his objections to a political settlement discussed in five days of talks with President Nixon's chief adviser, Henry A.

Diplomats Working Behind The Scenes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Diplomats maneuvered behind the scenes Saturday over Hanoi's demand for an Oct. 31 peace-pact signing amid U.S. hopes that 11th-hour arguments would not wash the whole negotiation down the drain.

Indications mounted that there would be no formal conclusion of a Vietnam agreement by Tuesday, a deadline publicly set by the North Vietnamese. Presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger has virtually ruled it out because of differences remaining to be negotiated.

A State Department official said he knows of no plans for Secretary of State William P. Rogers to go to Paris Tuesday. Rogers has been proposed as the signer of a final accord on behalf of the United States.

Kissinger was reported still expecting a further secret negotiating round with North Vietnam, which he has estimated would take several days. But when he might meet Hanoi envoy Le Duc Tho again remained obscure and he was reported still in Washington Saturday.

It was understood, however, that there have been secret exchanges between Washington and Hanoi since the United States told Vietnam a week ago there would have to be a further negotiating session before final agreement on their proposed nine-point peace plan.

There are indications that the North Vietnamese have taken a somewhat more flexible posture in private than they have in public.

Hanoi is reported to have hinted at one way around the seeming head-on deadlock over a signing deadline:

To have the two sides just initial the agreement by Oct. 31, leaving a formal signing for later. This is an accepted diplomatic practice leaving room for home governments to make further changes before a final full-fledged signing.

U.S. strategists are believed to be taking a chary view of this option. It risks Communist charges of U.S. reneging on any changes the United States might want to make in the nine-point deal after the text has been initialed.

The administration position at this stage could be summed up as follows:

President Nixon's overall aim is for a Vietnam peace which lasts rather than a too-hasty agreement which could leave the way open for more trouble in Indochina.

Meanwhile U.S. difficulties with Saigon over some of the proposed peace terms continued although Washington officials expressed belief that President Nguyen Van Thieu would in due course reach a common position with the U.S. ally.

The South Vietnamese president was quoted in a Saigon broadcast as saying, "We must adopt a flexible attitude" in the search for peace.

Survey Recommends Property Tax Cuts

(Democrat-Capital Service)

JEFFERSON CITY — Pettis County officials, along with representatives of all Missouri counties, were urged Friday to consider property tax reduction as a high priority use of federal revenue-sharing funds. The recommendation came from the Missouri Public Expenditure Survey.

For Pettis Countians this could mean 30 cents less per $100 valuation in property taxes from the current 50 cent per $100 rate. The county is to receive $185,094 from the federal sharing plan. The Survey suggested this amount be used to relieve the property tax levy.

The first two checks for 1972 are scheduled to arrive in the County after the first of the year. Thereafter, checks will be received quarterly, according to the survey. The funds are distributed on a formula basis rather than the budgetary needs of each local government unit. The Survey states, "Unless needs for expenditures of federal funds can be justified through the budgetary process, local officials have a responsibility to reduce taxes."

The survey pointed out that "in some cases, the computation of potential tax rate reduction (by dividing the amount each county will receive in by its assessed valuation) results in reductions exceeding the county tax rate." It also said data to permit a similar study of municipalities is not available but stressed that it is equally important for municipal officials to give close attention to the possibility of tax reductions with their funds.

Surrounding counties, their estimated revenue sharing amounts and potential tax reductions were listed as:

Benton: to receive $91,972 for a suggested tax cut of 36 cents per $100 valuation;

Cooper: $93,899 for a suggested cut of 29 cents.

Henry: $80,342 for a suggested cut of 20 cents.

Johnson: $219,426 for a suggested cut of 42 cents.

Lafayette: $92,693 for a suggested cut of 17 cents.

Moniteau: $80,000 for a suggested cut of 35 cents.

Morgan: $113,000 for a suggested cut of 43 cents.

Saline: $128,586 for a suggested cut of 18 cents.

Ann Landers

Has Misconception About Her Surgery

Dear Ann Landers: I am a woman of 50 with a very troubled mind and an unhappy husband. Ten years ago I had a complete hysterectomy. After the surgery I took hormone shots and the doctor said I would be fine. Well, Ann, I lost all desire for sex after that operation and my life has been far from fine.

My husband has done nothing but complain. He says it's all in my head. He went to my doctor and had a talk with him about my lack of interest in sexual relations. When my husband came home he said, "Well, the doctor backed me up. He says your physical condition is excellent and there is no reason why you can't be as good a bed partner as you were twenty years ago."

I don't know whose neck I'd like to wring first, my husband's or the doctor's. Please tell that sex maniac I am married to that it IS normal for a woman to lose interest in sex after this kind of operation. — Winston-Salem

Dear Win: I'm afraid you're too. I can't tell your husband any such thing. I hope you will go back to your doctor and talk with him. The psychological effect of a hysterectomy may be responsible for your lack of interest, but there is no physical reason for it.

Dear Ann Landers: I know you are not running a Bureau For Missing Persons or a Bulletin Board For Broken Families, but I do hope you will print this letter for the benefit of the thousands of young people who left home and whose parents do not know where they are.

Please, Ann, tell these kids that if they would just drop a postcard or send a collect telegram or place a collect phone call, or have a friend who is passing through town, give us a two word message, "I'm O.K." it would make all the difference in the world.

To every runaway boy or girl who left without saying goodbye, I say this:

We would not insist that you come back, or even ask you to if you didn't want to. All we need to know is that you are alive and well. It would be like a ton of stone lifted from our hearts. Please let us hear from you soon. — Mother And Dad

Here's the message — and I hope and pray it provides the little shove that some of those kids need.

Dear Ann Landers: I had to laugh when I read that letter from the woman in Tucson who said cat-haters are not to be trusted — that there is something sneaky and underhanded about them. The writer also went on to say a cat-lover should never marry a person who does not share his love for cats. She added, "Cat lovers should marry each other and they will have a good life together."

The reason I found this so funny is because my aunt and uncle were both cat lovers. They never had any children, but they had 11 cats in the house. When they traveled they hired a person to stay in their house and look after the cats. After 15 years of marriage they separated. The result was the bitterest divorce on record...and the biggest problem was settling the custody of the cats.

If one had been a cat lover and the other a cat hater it would have been easy. So it appears the advice from Tucson was wrong. At least it didn't work in Dayton. — Witness To The Mess

Dear Wit: Thanks for my laugh for the day. I'm with you.

Corporate Profits Increasing

NEW YORK (AP) — There was mounting evidence during the past week that corporate profits in 1972's third quarter were substantially higher than they were a year ago.

From a continuing flow of earnings reports securities analysts, including Ronald Cooper of W.E. Hutton & Co., estimated that third-quarter results were "up 15 to 20 per cent from the corresponding period last year."

A figure of 20 per cent resulted from a preliminary survey of 744 corporations by First National City Bank of New York.

But there were some spotty sectors — for example, among the food market chains, where heavy price competition put a damper on earnings.

Oil companies had mixed results, with profits ranging from an 11 per cent advance to a record level at Standard Oil Co. of California to a drop of 94 per cent at Commonwealth Oil Refining Co., the latter's troubles stemming mainly from start-up costs at a joint venture in Puerto Rico. Generally speaking, it was a case of low gasoline prices.

The steel industry was in the awkward position of comparing the latest quarter with the 1971 third quarter, a time when steel buyers were working off huge inventories they had stocked up to protect themselves from a possible strike.

The second-largest steelmaker, Bethlehem, reported its thirdquarter net income of $20.4 million was twice that of 1971's third quarter, but nine-month figures were off 6.2 per cent — and the company called both comparisons "disappointing."

Two giants of the automotive industry had contrasting results.

Ford Motor Co., second-largest producer, set a third-quarter record of $94 million, or 96 cents a share, compared with $86 million, or 83 cents a share, in the same period a year ago.

General Motors Corp., the largest, had lower net income, as anticipated. Its earnings were $122 million or 41 cents a share, down from $217 million, or 75 cents a share.

Both companies said they would file new applications for price increases with the Price Commission.

Earlier, Chrysler Corp. had announced its $31.9 million net income was five times that of the 1971 quarter.

The Commerce Department announced that the government index of leading economic indicators rose 0.4 per cent in September and that the August increase, originally put at 2.2 per cent, had been revised upward to 2.6 per cent. That made the August increase the best monthly percentage gain in more than a decade.

Retail prices for beef were lower in September, the Agriculture Department said, because of a dip in cattle prices and the first decline in middleman markups since last June. On an all-cut basis, including hamburger as well as steak, the retail price for beef was $1.13 a pound, 4.4 cents below the record high in July. The middleman markups in September were 43.3 cents a pound, compared with a record 44.8 cents in August.

Works Against Radicalism Image

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — With assists from television's Archie Bunker and Minnesota's Hubert H. Humphrey, Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern is seeking to dispel any image of radicalism lingering about him in crucial California.

Humphrey chimed in by telephone, and actor Carroll O'Connor via a campaign commercial, as McGovern broadcast his campaign wares in a question-and-answer session televised statewide Friday night.

In between, McGovern got calls from some critics who accused him of mudslinging and mind-changing. "The show is heating up," he said. McGovern also heard from the man who wanted to know why he keeps saying President Nixon should have ended the war four years ago "when he wasn't even in' office."

McGovern acknowledged Nixon didn't take office until Jan. 20, 1969, but said "there's no point in quibbling over a few weeks."

"I want to give him credit for any settlement, even if it comes on the day before the election," McGovern said. "I'm not interested in a political issue, I'm not interested in what my statements on the war do to me politically."

O'Connor, who plays Archie Bunker, the bigoted blue-collar star of the television program "All in the Family," appeared in a commercial denouncing what he called "the radicalism of the present administration."

"Radicalism is what any conservative man must try to remove from authority, and that is why I as a conservative man am going to vote with confidence for Sen. George McGovern," said O'Connor-Bunker.

Humphrey called in from Mankato, Minn., for a 3½-minute chat with McGovern, whose views he sharply denounced during their California presidential primary campaign.

McGovern asked him to spend some more time campaigning for the ticket in California. "We think with your added voice to what we've already said out here, it may provide that extra margin that we need to carry California on Nov. 7," the nominee said.

"George, I'm going to try to do that," said Humphrey. "I have a feeling that things are on the move for you and they're on the move strongly ....

"After hearing about Mr. Nixon's vetoes today, my glands are all revved up," said the Minnesota senator.

McGovern denounced the nine vetoes, too, as he campaigned in Los Angeles Friday with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

Later, he said Nixon should "call a special session of Congress and give us a chance to override those vetoes."

Congress is in adjournment and they were pocket vetoes which can't be overridden anyhow.

Kennedy was campaigning with McGovern Saturday at a meeting of Democrats from Orange County, one of the most conservative counties in the nation.

At one stop Friday, McGovern jokingly said that Kennedy had told him he couldn't serve eight years in the White House, only four. Kennedy is widely viewed as a top prospect for future Democratic presidential nomination.

BUSINESS NEWS

JEFFERSON CITY — John A. Myer, president of the Commerce Bank of Tipton, was elected regional secretary recently at a meeting of members of Region Eight of the Missouri Banker's Association.

William R. Mills, of Boone County National Bank, was named vice president. The group met at the Ramada Inn here.

Region Eight includes Cooper, Howard, Moniteau, Morgan, Pettis and Saline Counties, among others.

Unusual Wedding Performed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Drunks, street musicians, Jesus freaks and just about everyone else who calls the sidewalks of San Francisco home were there to throw rice and kisses as white-faced mime Robert Shields got married at a wedding which was a silent scenario in pantomime.

Shields, who was taught by French mime Marcel Marceau, has used Union Square as his stage almost daily for more than a year.

Passing pedestrians are his spectators and people eating lunch are his props. Some who didn't like being mimicked have punched him in the nose. Police have arrested him because his act stops traffic.

But the people on the street who like Shields' performance toss coins into a black top hat he sets on the sidewalk. He usually collects about $30 a day.

For the marriage vows, bride Lorene Yarnell, also a white-faced mime, pretended to take her pulsating heart out of her chest. Shields took his out, too, and they exchanged hearts. About 100 people who had gathered for the ceremony in Union Square sighed.

The bride wore a black and white drum major's outfit.

Baritone Bruce Yarnell of the San Francisco Opera, the bride's brother, sang something but it was in mime too so it's hard to say what the song was.

Most acids are characterized by sour taste.

Collects Papers for His Study

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy has been subpoenaing documents for two weeks for an investigation by his subcommittee into the Watergate break-in and other alleged incidents of political espionage, The Washington Post said Saturday.

But the newspaper reported Capitol Hill sources believe that the Massachusetts Democrat will wait until well beyond the Nov. 7 election before attempting to open public hearings.

The Post also said former White House aide E. Howard Hunt, indicted in the Watergate case, served as chairman of a network of "dummy committees" designed to hide campaign contributions from milk cooperatives to President Nixon's re-election efforts.

Details of the fund-raising plan were brought out in the documents and statements taken in a civil suit, the Post said.

In the suit, consumer advocate Ralph Nader contended the Nixon administration raised milk price supports as a payoff for more than $300,000 in campaign gifts from three large milk co-ops.

In a related development, U.S. District Court Chief Judge John J. Sirica postponed until Jan. 8 the criminal trial of seven men indicted in the break-in of the Democratic national headquarters.

Sirica said he suffers from a painful pinched nerve and his physician advised him not to hear the case until next year.

The trial had been scheduled to start Nov. 15.

The Post said Kennedy's Subcommittee on Administrative Practice and Procedure has issued at least five subpoenas, including one to the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co.

Fred Langbein, chief spokesman for the telephone company, told the Post that his firm was served with a subpoena last week and the records had already been sent to Capitol Hill.

Sources close to Kennedy's investigation said that subpoenas had also been issued to four banks and businesses, ordering each to supply certain records, the Post said.

The Massachusetts senator is said to have at least eight lawyers and investigators working virtually full time on the probe, the Post reported.

Loss of Weight Improves Playing

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Jazz Trumpeter Al Hirt says he can play the trumpet "better than ever" now because the 73 pounds he has lost in the last seven months has improved his breathing.

Hirt, who underwent surgery to lose weight at the Medical College of Virginia here last March, was at the hospital this week for a routine checkup.

"I'm feeling great," the New Orleans trumpeter said. "As far as I'm concerned, the operation has been a roaring success."

Vows

thanks "for the great support he has given me."

Two McGovern-Shriver signs bobbed a few feet from Nixon's face at the Parma stop but signs of opposition along the way were scattered.

In an arrival statement, the President said through the efforts of local police forces backed by massive federal support, "We have succeeded in stopping the spiraling growth in criminal activity."

The first city on his motorcade route—Parma—is among nearly half the nation's largest cities where crime "has already begun to decrease," Nixon said.

"My goal in the next four years," he said, "is for every American city to begin realizing the kind of victories in the war on crime which we have already achieved in the nation's capital—where the crime rate has been cut in half since my administration took office, and where heroin overdose deaths have almost disappeared."

Nixon referred in another arrival statement to the economic gains he said had been scored during his term.

After ticking off his statistics on the Gross National Product, on unemployment, on real earnings and on a lower rise in inflation, the President said:

"All this heartening economic growth should be sending us this clear policy message: continue on course. This is not a time to experiment with chancy economic theories, or to add vast expenditures to the federal budget and thereby force a tax increase."

Before flying to Ohio, where warm sunshine had broken through rain clouds, Nixon made another in his series of paid political radio broadcasts from the White House. He spoke of the need for national unity and told his hopes of building a new American majority.

"My greatest hope for the coming elections is that we emerge from them a stronger, not a weaker people—that when we look back on the 1972 elections, we can point to them as a mandate for peace, progress and unity," he said in the broadcast.

Nixon will give another radio address on Sunday—this one on national defense—and will campaign in Chicago on Tuesday.

Thieu's

Kissinger, is now widely accepted as the most important and revealing of his 5½ years as president.

The Communists, Thieu said, "talk with snakes in their mouths."

By lacing his address with such earthy, sometimes insulting language, Thieu offended some higher class Vietnamese but appeared to have struck a chord among a much larger group of people.

The speech set the theme for everything that Thieu has said since.

He has made it clear that the United States can make whatever agreement it wishes with Hanoi on a cease-fire that would end bombing and mining of North Vietnam and perhaps free the hundreds of American prisoners of war held there.

Political experts said Thieu apparently believes that if Nixon needs any boost for the Nov. 7 election, an agreement freeing POWs would accomplish it, and such a bilateral accord would not impede continued U.S. support, in money and materiel, for Saigon's own military effort.

Thieu also believes his own forces are strong enough that he need not fear a cease-fire, the experts said, but he is not willing to accept any agreements that would open the way to a political takeover by the Communists.

The South Vietnamese leader wants to deal head to head on a political solution with the South Vietnamese National Liberation Front — the Viet Cong — rather than take chances with a tripartite body made up of his own faction, the Communists, and a "third force" of neutrals.

Missing Truck Driver In Kansas Hospital

A local truck driver who left Sedalia Oct. 20 en route to Denver in a truck owned by the Klassic Manufacturing Co., 32nd and Clinton Road, was located Saturday in Saline, Kan., according to Pettis County Sheriff Emmett Fairfax.

Clarence Howell, Route 4, who left Sedalia driving a truck carrying a transport trailer and pickup camper, was reported missing Wednesday, Fairfax said, after he was due back from Denver Sunday.

Fairfax reported that Howell was admitted to a Salina hospital with a kidney disorder while enroute to Denver and that the hospital failed to notify Howell's employer.

Organize Halloween Spooking

WHEATON, Ill. (AP) — Nearly 100 old buildings across the country are being turned into haunted houses in a Halloween program designed to provide teen-agers with a "positive" off-the-street activity for the holiday.

The organized spooking is sponsored by Campus Life clubs, a division of Youth for Christ, an interdenominational organization with an international membership. Its headquarters is in Wheaton.

The Halloween haunted house project was started several years ago when vacated old houses, barns, warehouses and other structures were transformed into terrifying mazes. Club volunteers in monster makeup lunged out of the shadows.

Last year 500,000 teen-agers went through 89 haunted houses and about 750,000 are expected this Halloween period, says Clayton Bauman, director of the Campus Life high school pupil program.

"The idea is to give the kids something to do at a rough time of the year — something positive for them to do," he says.

A typical haunted house is in Libertyville, a northwestern suburb of Chicago. A vacant, 13-room farm house and barn were donated by its owners for the project. Campus Life members worked two months painting, constructing false partitions and mazes and installing black lights to add to the eeriness.

"We have a spider man, a pendulum swinging over a victim, a funeral room and all kinds of monsters," says Paul Veerman, coordinator of the project.

"At the hours the house is open, there is a continuous single-file flow on the 20-minute tour which is guided along by pointing monsters," he says, adding: " We expect 17,000 visitors in all at $1.50 a head.

Nixon Leading Survey

WASHINGTON (AP) — On the basis of their relative strength in the various states, President Nixon holds a massive lead over Democrat George McGovern as the presidential campaign enters its final days.

A survey by Associated Press bureaus in every state shows Nixon leading in all but a handful of states over McGovern, who also trails nationwide in the major public opinion polls.

Information for the survey was based on an assessment of conditions several days before the latest Vietnam developments—Hanoi's charge that the United States was stalling on signing a cease-fire agreement and presidential adviser Henry Kissinger's statement that "peace is at hand."

The survey therefore does not reflect any late shifts—but a major turnaround would be required to deplete the big Nixon lead. He appears to be strongest in the South, Midwest and Rocky Mountain states and, perhaps more important, holds the edge in such vote-rich states as New York and California.

In fact, the survey indicated Nixon was ahead in six of the seven biggest states—California, Illinois, Michigan, New York, Ohio and Texas.

McGovern, plagued by a slow start and the fallout from his dropping of Sen. Thomas Eagleton as his running-mate, is leading in the District of Columbia and is battling for the lead in such states as Wisconsin, Massachusetts and West Virginia.

The American party nominee, John Schmitz, is on the ballot in more than half the states. But in most, the survey found, his candidacy has had little impact.

Gov. George C. Wallace was the American party's 1968 nominee, and the bulk of his 1968 supporters appear to have shifted to Nixon—one reason for his big lead in the South.

In areas where Nixon is far ahead, many state and local Democratic candidates are avoiding identification with McGovern's campaign.

In Iowa, for example, Democratic State Rep. Charles Knobloch refused to place a McGovern bumper sticker on his car. "I want to get elected," he said.

"McGovern is my No. 1 liability," said Democrat Sam Nunn, nominee for a Georgia Senate seat. "If the federal and state ballots weren't split in Georgia, he'd cost me 100,000 votes."

Some big name Democrats who aren't up for re-election this year also are cool about being tied to McGovern.

Florida Gov. Reubin Askew, who delivered the keynote at the Miami Beach convention that nominated McGovern, is stumping for Democratic legislative candidates while avoiding any involvement in the presidential contest.

"I feel I should do all I can to work toward retaining a Democratic majority in both houses of the legislature," said Askew, who rates Nixon a "heavy favorite" in his state.

In Maryland, Gov. Marvin Mandel is lending considerable support to McGovern's candidacy. But three of Mandel's closest political associates and fund raisers are working with Democrats for Nixon.

Illinois is one major state where most top Democratic officials and party leaders are backing McGovern fully. Chicago Mayor Richard Daley joined the effort a little late, but now is calling for an all-out effort in McGovern's behalf.

Four Youths Hurt In One-Car Mishap

Two teenage youths, one from Smithton and another from Sedalia were admitted to Bothwell Hospital Saturday afternoon following a one-car accident 3½ miles south of Smithton on Route W.

According to Missouri Highway Patrolman Joe Dayringer, the accident occurred as a 1970 Plymouth, driven north by Larry McDonald, 16, Smithton, went out of control on an "S" curve and overturned.

McDonald and a passenger, Kenneth Louis Jackson, 16, Route 2, were admitted to Bothwell Hospital for observation, according to a hospital spokesman. McDonald suffered lacerations of the scalp and shoulder and Jackson may have sustained a concussion, the spokesman told The Democrat-Capital.

Two other 16-year-old passengers, Douglas Hayes, Smithton, and Mark Healey, Route 2, were treated and released according to the spokesman.

'Best'

Calif., before he flew to Washington state for campaign appearances in Spokane and Seattle.

Organizers of the breakfast said they had to turn away as many people as attended the breakfast, which spilled over into a second room.

McGovern repeated his hope that the Vietnam war may soon end and said, "This means that the next president of the United States is going to direct his attention primarily to healing the wounds that this war has opened in our own society.

"It means we must answer the question: which leadership and which party is best designed on the record to deal with the problems of the employment of our people who will be dislocated as a consequence of the end of this war; which party has the best record and which of the candidates competing in 1972 is most committed to the full employment of all of our citizens in this country who are able to work ..."

McGovern said President Nixon's vetoes on nine domestic bills Friday demonstrates his priorities for the country and that "in the closing weeks of this war which we surely hope it will be, we need a leadership in this country that is fully committed to doing whatever is necessary to provide a decent, fulfilling job for every man and woman in this country who is able to work."

Although this had been scheduled to be McGovern's last campaign visit to California, an aide said that there is a high possibility that the Democratic nominee would return for one last swing late this week.

Youth To Stand Trial As Adult

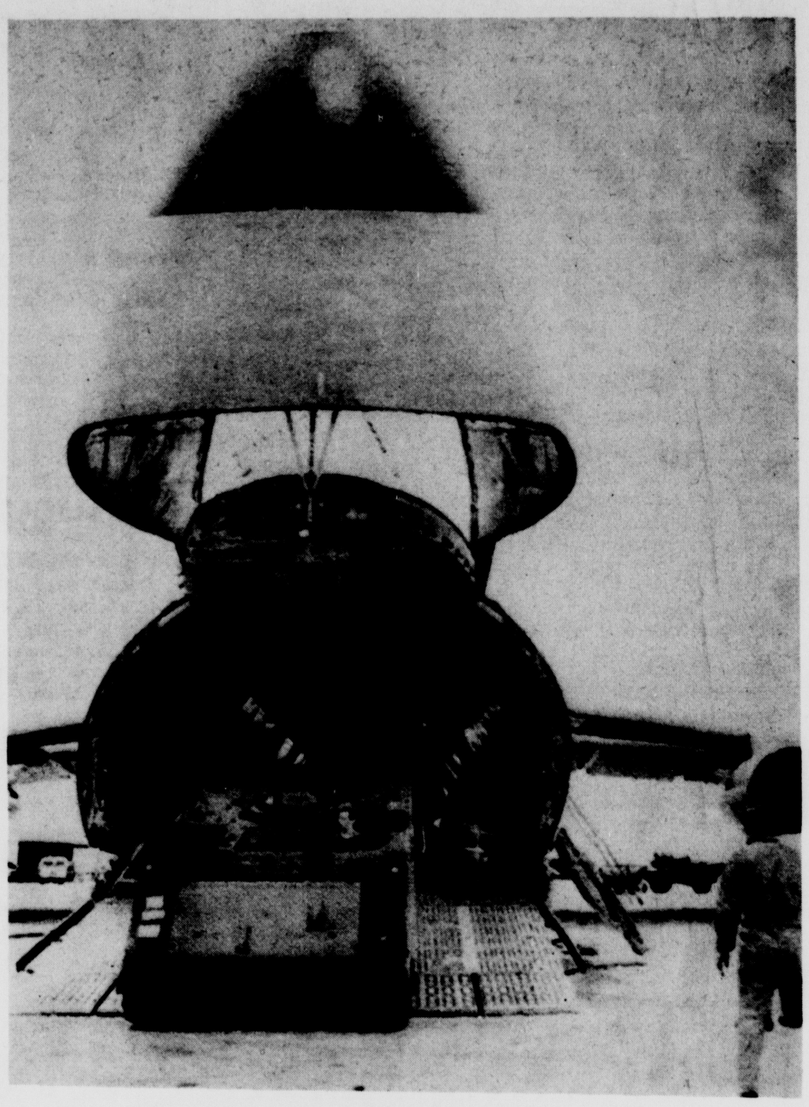
(Democrat-Capital Service)

WARSAW — Judge Charles Barker ruled here Friday that Richard Paxton, Kansas City, 17, will stand trial as an adult on a charge of first degree murder in connection with the May 24 slaying of Glenn Dale Hyatt, 18, Independence.

Paxton was released to the custody of Benton County Deputy Sheriff Richard Guyman Friday afternoon by Pettis County Sheriff Emmett Fairfax. Paxton had been in the Pettis County jail since June.

Another youth, Timothy Lattimer, Kansas City, taken into custody last May in connection with the shooting, is presently in the State Hospital in Fulton undergoing mental examinations.

Hyatt was shot in the head shortly after 1 p.m. May 24 about 11 miles southeast of here on Route VV. Both Lattimer and Paxton were alleged to have been in the car with Hyatt at the time of the shooting.



Shipping Arms

A giant U.S. C5-A transport plane unloads armored personnel in Saigon Saturday to be turned over to the army of South Vietnam as the U.S. races to send arms shipments to South Vietnam in advance of a possible cease-fire. In Washington, Pentagon spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim told newsmen Friday, "The other side has not stopped its infiltration and supply efforts and we have not either." (UPI)

Kirkpatrick Campaigns In Boonville

BOONVILLE, Mo. (AP) — In these closing weeks of the campaign, Secretary of State James C. Kirkpatrick said Saturday night, "It's time for the candidates to talk sense to the people of Missouri."

In a speech prepared for a Cooper County Democratic rally, Kirkpatrick said "We may not have all the answers, but as the party which has led Missouri through most of its history, we at least know where to look for the answers."

Kirkpatrick said an experienced Democratic legislature is needed to implement the governmental reorganization plan approved by the voters at the August primary.

And experienced Democratic legislators will be needed, he said, to give a tax break to senior citizens if the first constitutional amendment on the ballot passes Nov. 7.

"Our party has recognized good government doesn't have to be expensive government", he said. "In the secretary of state's office, for every dollar it costs us to operate, we return $2.50 to the state treasury for other agencies to use ...

"I know if our newspaper doesn't take in more money than it spends, it won't make money and it won't continue to exist. Government must be run the same way. To waste even one dollar of the taxpayer's money on an unnecessary expense is inexcusable."

Kirkpatrick accused the Republicans of creating "phony smokescreens" in the campaign. He said Democrats don't have to do that because they have served the people well and can prove it.

Pickup Rams Wall Of Grocery Store

(Democrat-Capital Service)

LaMONTE — A one-car accident here at 1:30 a.m. Saturday failed to stop "business as usual" at the Mill's Quik-Chek Grocery, Highway 127 and Main, although the vehicle involved collided with the west side of the building and came to rest partially inside the store.

Damage estimates to the business ranged from $5,000 to $6,000 at the time of the accident and then went to "over $10,000" during cleanup operations Saturday, Richard Mills, owner, estimated.

Trooper Joe Dayringer, who investigated the accident, said Jerry Dean Welch, 18, Knob Noster, lost control of his southbound 1969 Ford Ranchero pickup, skidded 102 feet, veered off the east side of the road and collided with an awning pole and then went through a display window and wall section before coming to rest partially inside the store.

Dayringer said Welch told him he was reaching for a tape cartridge on the passenger side floor when he started across the railroad tracks at the scene and lost control of the car.

He was charged with driving while intoxicated and taken to the Pettis County jail. Welch was released on bond later Saturday morning.

Trooper Dayringer said Welch suffered only bruises and abrasions in the accident.

Thefts Reported

George Azar, owner of the Fina Service Station, 2600 East Broadway, reported $750 in cash, checks and credit cards were taken from the station safe sometime during business hours Friday, according to police reports.

V. L. Corson, 814 Wilkerson, reported a picture window in his home was broken Friday afternoon. Police suspect the glass was broken by a pellet fired from an air gun, according to a department spokesman.

Receives Award

Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, right, presents the Horatio Alger Award to former Chairman of the Board of Nabisco, Inc., Lee S. Bickmore during the 26th annual Horatio Alger Awards ceremonies at the Waldorf Astoria, New York. Bickmore resigned his position at Nabisco earlier to accept a special position in the Mormon Church. Freezing Experiment Succeeds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government scientists say their successful freezing and thawing of live mouse embryos could lead to deep-freeze storage of human organs for transplants.

The scientists said Friday the embryos frozen and preserved at temperatures as low as 452 degrees below zero Farenheit survived and developed normally after being implanted in the wombs of other mice.

The experiments were described in the technical journal Science by biologist D.G. Whittingham and two colleagues at the Atomic Energy Commission's Oak Ridge (Tenn.) National Laboratory.

The scientists said more than 2,500 embryos, each consisting of only a few cells, were slowly frozen with liquid nitrogen, stored for up to eight days and then slowly thawed out. They said the slowness in freezing and thawing was the key to their success.

Between 50 and 70 per cent of them developed, within their test tubes, into blastocytes—a spherical mass of cells considered the starting point of a fetus.

About 1,000 blastocytes were transferred into the wombs of other mice, and 65 per cent of the latter became pregnant, the scientists said.

Attempt to Create New Social Unrest

ROME (AP) — Fifty years after Mussolini's "March on Rome" brought Fascism to Italy, extremists are again trying to exploit labor and social unrest. But unlike 1922, leftists as well as rightists are in the forefront of agitation and terrorism.

On Oct. 28, 1922, armed, black-shirted Fascists and gray-shirted Nationalists marched 26,000-strong into Rome and took up strategic positions in the city. They met no resistance.

On Oct. 30, King Victor Emmanuel III named Benito Mussolini prime minister.

The move, popular at the time, brought Fascism to Italy and 18 years later plunged the country into a world war on the side of Nazi Germany.

Many Italians see parallels in present day Italy to the conditions of the 1920s.

The bloom is off "Il Boom," the economic miracle of the 1960s that established Italy as an industrial power. Unemployment is currently estimated at 7 per cent of the labor force, about double what it was two years ago.

Unemployment is highest in the underdeveloped south, where thousands are forced to migrate to the industrial north. Housing and schools in the northern cities are often inadequate.

Meanwhile, workers demanding a bigger piece of the diminishing industrial pie have staged repeated strikes across the country.

Economists estimate that Italian industry had a net loss equivalent to $600 million last year as a result of strikes, loss of business confidence and a decline in investments.

A series of 34 shaky coalition governments since the war has whittled away public confidence in the ability of the leaders to get anything done.

All these governments have been beset from both sides: the Communists, who command one of every four votes in Italy, and the National Right, heirs to Mussolini's shattered Fascist dreams.

But even these groups, long denied cabinet positions, have not proved vocal enough for extremists on both sides.

Extremists on the left and right have carried out numerous terrorist acts such as bombing political headquarters and breaking up political demonstrations.

Class Ring Found 14 Years Later

GAINESVILLE, Ga. (AP) — A high school class ring, lost 14 years ago, was found Friday near here in Lake Lanier.

The ring, lost by Hall County Deputy Sheriff John Cronic while water skiing in the lake in 1958, was found by fishermen in a portion of the lake which became visible with a near record low water level.

The ring was traced to Cronic through one of the fishermen's relatives, a graduate of the same school, and by ring initials.

Guards Performing Important Function

Sedalia's street-crossing guards, employed to keep both traffic and school-bound youngsters moving in an orderly manner, have been doing their job "extremely well" in the seven years they have operated as a separate division of the city police department, according to assistant chief Charles Knapp.

"We're perfectly satisfied," says Knapp. "They have been doing their job real well."

Since starting work in 1965, the guards have expanded to 10 members. Currently, they are located at Broadway and State Fair, Broadway and Grand, Broadway and Warren, Broadway and Engineer, Broadway and Arlington, Fifth and Limit, Ohio and Johnson, 16th and Marvin, Main and Grand and at the Horace Mann School.

At present, the guards are all retired men. Last year, however, one woman was on year-round duty and "performed very satisfactorily," says Knapp.

According to police records, no injuries have been recorded at school crossings since the guards assumed control. Knapp credits this clean record not only to the guards but also to the Schoolboy Patrol volunteers. These youths, usually fifth and sixth graders, aid by standing at the curbside and controlling groups of youngsters while the guard himself is directing traffic in the street.

"We feel there are several advantages to the cross guards," Knapp continued. "They take a load off our regular force. It also gives these older men a chance to earn a little extra money and it breaks up their day."

A chief benefit of the program, however, has nothing to do with the age of the men or their status in the police department, Knapp indicated.

"In many instances, it gives kids their first contact with a man in uniform," he said. "They get used to the idea of the policeman as a helping friend."

Alonzo Hayden, 502 North Moniteau, has been a guard off and on for three years. Currently stationed at the intersection of Broadway and Grand, the 78-year-old former orchestra leader waves his hand to direct traffic with much the same flourish that no doubt characterized his baton handling years ago.

"I just couldn't keep still after I retired and I've always loved to work with kids," said Hayden in explaining why he applied for the job after working 45 years for the Missouri Pacific Railroad.

In Hayden's eyes, as in Knapp's, the attitude of a crossing guard is just as important as his ability to direct both kids and traffic.

"You have to be more than just courteous," Hayden said. "You've got to be downright really friendly with them."

"Them," of course, are the Horace Mann grade school students for whom he is responsible.

"I don't think there's a better bunch of kids in the whole district," Hayden said with a note of pride. "They're well behaved and we all get along fine."

Hayden's morning tour of duty begins at 8 a.m., about 30 minutes before most students begin their daily trek to school. Up until this week, this early-morning inactivity hasn't been too bad. With Wednesday's freezing temperatures, however, Hayden spent most of his free time in the warmth of his car, with one eye glued to the rear-view mirror.

"No sense freezing if you don't have to," Hayden said. "Besides, I can see the kids coming a long ways off in the mirror."

Although Hayden's morning shift officially ends around 9 a.m., he usually works a little overtime for a special reason.

"The kids who are late for school are usually the most careless," he said. "They're so anxious to get to school, they sometimes just keep on running and don't stop at all for anything."

Hayden's work hasn't been entirely limited to the younger generation either.

"Several times, elderly ladies have been afraid to cross the street because of all the traffic" Hayden said. "I do for them what I do for the kids...they're just as important."

Hope to Have Tea With Headhunters

LONDON (AP) — Eighteen Britons flew off to New Guinea Friday night for a 23-day hike through the jungle in hopes of having tea with a tribe of headhunters.

The trail-blazing group, aged 20 to 60, includes four women. They are paying Cook's, the travel agency, $1,320 for the ultimate in get-away-from-it-all package tours.

Apart from swamps, crocodiles, snakes and exhausting marches through some of the world's most rugged country, they face monsoon rains that sweep New Guinea at this time of year.

The Stone Age head-hunters live in the mountainous hinterland of Australian-administered New Guinea. They are not expected to be too much of a threat.

The tribe, called Biami, is reported to have given up cannibalism long ago. They do, however, keep a primitive museum of war implements and the heads of their victims near the tribal home at Mt. Hagan.

YOUNG UNEMPLOYED

QUEBEC (AP) — The Quebec statistics bureau says 46 per cent of all Quebec unemployed in 1970 were under 25 years old. The bureau also notes that the labor force has increased faster than the number of working men, but women apparently are less prone to unemployment.

"The Rotarian," the official international magazine of the Rotary Club, recently published an article on the restoration of the "Little Red School House" in Sedalia. Glancing through a copy of the magazine are, left to right, Charles J. Hofheins, president of the Rotary Club; James T. Denny, president of the Pettis County Historical Society; and Dr. S. D. Fisher, former president of the Rotary Club. It was under Dr. Fisher's administration that the restoration program was initiated. The magazine is published in 150 countries and in five languages.

Even Split on Work Question

An even 50 per cent of those readers responding to the latest Democrat-Capital survey said they favored giving every worker a choice on whether to accept union representation.

The survey asked: "An executive officer of the Missourians for Right to Work said recently in Sedalia that his organization wants to give every worker the freedom to choose whether he wants union membership. Do you support such efforts?"

A Sedalian who asked to remain anonymous wrote, "I believe every worker should be given the freedom to choose...but if he refuses union membership he should be willing to work for whatever the company offers him as wages.

"He has not put in the time and effort the union members have to bring wages where they are, and in Sedalia he might work for little or nothing," he said in a letter accompanying his "yes" ballot.

John T. White, 103 East 28th, voted "no" and wrote, "If you want the benefits of what the unions get for the working class of people, such as vacation pay, hospitalization, paid holidays, sick pay and many others ... I feel that you should belong to a union."

He added, "If you do not want to belong to a union, you should seek employment at a factory or place of business where they do not require you to belong to the union and there are a lot of them."

White also said that those expecting to reap the benefits of union membership should be willing to accept union membership. However, he wrote, "I ... feel that we have some bad in our unions ... but the good out-weighs the bad by far."

Another reader said, "When a worker is applying for work, he has the choice of applying at either a union or non-union plant. If he chooses the union plant, he automatically agrees to existing conditions."

The "no" ballot originated in Windsor and continued, "A check of wage statistics in any state having the so-called 'Right-to-Work' law will show that the average individual wage is well below the national average. I cannot see that anything is gained with this law — indeed, much is lost. I have been a union member and supporter for 18 years and feel that I have more rights and privileges as well as better wages as a union member."

A RARE FIND

BAGINTON, England (AP) — Archaeologists who found a Roman fort here have uncovered evidence of a massive eight-to-10-foot-high palisade with smooth interior walls enclosing a perfectly circular area more than 107 feet in diameter.

They said to complete it the Romans must have removed 1,000 tons of sand and gravel—a feat still unexplained.

DEMOCRAT-CAPITAL SURVEY

Question: A local church group has suggested that city revenue sharing funds be used to set up and support public bus service for Sedalians. The mayor says this would benefit only a "small segment" of the community. Do you think Sedalia needs a public transportation system?

Electric Co. Rate Hike Is Possible

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Union Electric Co. of St. Louis would get a $21 million rate increase under an agreement reached by the company and the staff of the state Public Service Commission.

The company has asked for $27 million, an increase of 11 per cent, but would settle for an 8.65 increase under an agreement reached Friday.

A commission member said the full PSC would meet in a month to approve, reject or modify the agreement. If the amount is approved, the new rates would take effect at the end of the year.

As part of the agreement, Union Electric representatives said the utility will not file for another rate increase for at least 12 months.

Probably the reason most people save is for the future. That probably doesn't come as any shock.

But at Third National we like to help people save for the two futures: the future you expect and the future you don't expect.

Of course it's easier to save for those things you do expect. like your child's college education or a summer home. But it may be even more important to set aside savings for that proverbial rainy day.

Come see us at Third National . . . we'd like to talk about your future.

Motorization Posing Threat

By PETER WEAVER

The big push for Christmas sales this year is to motorize the kids.

Minibikes have caused an increasing amount of parental concern. Now they're selling minisnowmobiles and even mini-ATVs (all-terrain vehicles) "specifically designed and marketed for the child on the go."

Some parents are buying these mechanized monsters on the dubious theory that a product "designed for children" must be safe. It's true that manufacturers have been trying to make their motorized toys safer with protected gas tanks, less sharp edges and other engineering pluses. But the big questions are: Where will the children use these machines, and how will they use them?

The sad story of minibikes is well known. The little motorcycles aren't permitted to be used on most streets and there are precious few other places they can be used. So kids ride them on the streets anyway and accident statistics pile up at an alarming rate.

With the minisnowmobile and ATV, it's the same story. Manufacturers piously say the machines are not to be used on streets, but where do you think many children are going to use them? Aside from the risk of being mashed by a car or truck, children also face the danger of being burnt or blown up by gasoline that can hit a hot exhaust manifold. Even under normal, off-the-road use, these little machines are often unstable and easy to tip over.

Malcolm W. (Mac) Jensen, director of the Bureau of Product Safety, Food and Drug Administration, asks: "Must we motorize everything? Must we conspire with our children to break the law? There are fewer and fewer places where these machines can be used without breaking some law."

The FDA is pondering the possibility of banning the sale of some motorized wheel and ski vehicles for children unless they're sold to some sort of organization that will supervise their use. To gather more evidence, the FDA ordered the Cornell Aeronautical Laboratory in Buffalo, N.Y., to study the engineering dynamics of minibikes.

Ray Rice, Cornell engineer supervising the study, warns that "the learning process for children using minibikes and other gasoline-driven vehicles is much longer and much more complicated than for a bicycle." Rice and others contend that many children aren't mentally or physically ready to use gasoline-engine vehicles in a safe and responsible manner.

Still, some parents feel they can readily supervise their child's use of miniwheel or miniski vehicles. Daddy pours the gasoline and both parents supervise the initial rides.

Later, the child begins to pour the gasoline when daddy is away and rides go further and further astray. Neighbor kids want in on the act. Somebody spills gasoline on a hot engine part or somebody whizzes down the driveway into the street. Then you read about the "tragedy" in the papers.

Who's to blame? The manufacturers? The parents? Perhaps both. If you must buy your child a gasoline-driven machine this Christmas, ask yourself the big questions. Where can we use this thing legally and safely? Who is to use it and how will it be supervised?

Here and there you can find supervised fields or trails where children can ride machines with expert instruction. But such facilities are rare. Think it all out before you buy — not after.

To help cope with this and other problems in the buying of toys, I've helped compile and revise a booklet called "Toy Buyers' Guide." The guide also contains a carefully reviewed list of toy catalogues and an "age chart" for specific kinds of toys.

You can get a copy by sending 25 cents and a self-addressed, stamped, business-size envelope to: TOYS; 665 National Press Bldg.; Washington, D.C. 20004.

Respected Policeman Suspended

MIAMI (AP) — Patrolman Daniel Zell, voted Miami's outstanding officer of the year in 1969, has been suspended from duty because his mustache is a quarter of an inch too long, police officials say.

"A lieutenant told me I look so bad that he's ashamed to see me in public because I embarrass him," the blond, curly-haired Zell said Friday. "I don't know what public he means."

Zell, 26, said he was ordered to trim his mustache, hair and sideburns at roll call Wednesday. When he returned Thursday without stopping at the barber shop, he was sent home by his sergeant.

Police spokesman Sgt. Kenneth Harrison said Zell's official status is "absent without permission and without pay."

In addition to his drooping mustache, police officials charge Zellos entire head is too hairy and in violation of the department's grooming code.

Zell contends that his superiors are out of step with the times and he was singled out because he led a fight which resulted in a relaxation of the department grooming code six months ago.

The code specifies hair shall be collar-length and "the ear shall be left well defined at all times." Sideburns are not to extend below the ear lobe and mustaches must not extend more than one-half inch beyond nor more than one-quarter inch below the corners of the mouth.

Zell won the Miami Rotary Club's $1,000 award as top policeman in 1969 and two officer-of-the-month awards in 1967 and 1968 when he was a crew-cut recruit.

Mexico City Manager Facing Damage Suit

KANAAS CITY (AP) — A $130,000 damage suit has been filed in U.S. District Court against J. Neil Nielson, city manager of Mexico, Mo., by 12 Mexico firemen and the International Association of Firefighters Local 2184.

The petition alleges Nielson has discriminated against the firemen by not letting them join the firefighters' union.

Also, the suit alleges Nielson got the city council to propose a public safety department to include all policemen and firemen.

An electric eel can give a shock of 300 to 500 volts, two or three times the voltage used in an ordinary house.

Flag War Urged For Civilians

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese civilians have been told to wage war with flags while government forces swap bullets with the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong.

All citizens have been ordered to carry at least one South Vitnamese flag at all times to "prove they are nationalists and not Communists." Those who don't run the risk of being held by police for up to three days while their backgrounds are investigated.

Sources said the government has ordered 7½ million national flags to be delivered to the provinces by the end of this month. These would be used to mark areas under government control in the event of a cease-fire.

The Interior Ministry's printing shop in Saigon confirmed it has run off more than 5 million paper pennants for distribution in rural areas.

"The peasants are poor, so if they cannot afford a flag we will give them one," explained an official. "In Saigon the people can afford to buy their own."

Police have also imposed restrictions on the sale of blue and red material that might be used to manufacture Viet Cong flags.

Buyers of red and blue material are now required to explain why they want it, and in some cases have to surrender their identification cards while their stories are checked.

Communist command documents captured in Binh Dinh province last week indicated the Viet Cong also are waging a flag campaign.

Hot line answers questions, looks into complaints, solves problems and generally serves readers and protects their interests. Write Hot Line, The Sedalia Democrat-Capital, Seventh and Massachusetts, Sedalia, Mo. 65301, or call 826-1000 between 7 a.m. and 11 p.m. Hot Line will appear as often as necessary to serve our readers.

All calls and letters to Hot Line must include name, address and phone number of inquirers. Names will not be used but are needed should additional information be required to answer questions.

Q — I have read in the newspaper and heard over the radio that no tax increase will be required to have Alpha Sintered Metals become an industry in Sedalia. However, I am confused by wording in the legal notice in Thursday's Democrat which read in part "The authorization of said bonds will authorize the levy and collection of an annual tax in addition to the other taxes provided by law on all tangible taxable property in said City sufficient to pay the interest and principal of said bonds as they fall due and to retire the same within twenty years from the date thereof." Am I misreading this or does this statement imply that our taxes will be increased? — M. G.

A — City Clerk Ralph Dedrick described the phrase in the notice of election to which you referred as a "legal precaution." He said it serves the purpose of providing a safeguard that a source of money would be available to pay off interest and principal on bonds if such action became necessary.

Dedrick said that same statement appeared in election notices for Permaneer, Duke, Rival and Town & Country Shoes, Inc., but that additional public support has not been necessary to pay off the bonds on any of those expansions. He added that it was not anticipated by city officials that a levy increase would be necessary in the case of Alpha Sintered Metals, Inc. He explained that the statement included in your question is required by law in any election notice of this sort.

Q — Is there a city ordinance which controls the type of movies shown late at night in some Sedalia theaters? I've heard some of the movies make the stag films shown at one local club look tame. — C. S.

A — City Prosecutor Robert Liston said a city ordinance prohibits the showing of indecent, immoral, lewd or obscene motion pictures. However, due to the U.S. Supreme Court's "narrow" interpretation of the word "obscene," Liston said, lower courts throughout the country are experiencing some difficulty in determining what movies are obscene.

He said since he has been in office, no one has filed a complaint seeking to ban the public showing of such movies. If someone did file a complaint, however, the city prosecutor's office would then decide whether to make a case on the complaint, Liston said. And if it was decided to bring the case to court, it would be up to Sedalia Police Court Judge Lawrence Englund to determine whether the owner of the theater was breaking the city ordinance by showing the film in question

Q — Why are the stamp machines at the Post Office always out of order on the weekends? — B. F.

A — Postmaster Maurice Hogan told Hot Line, "The self-service units are subject to break down like any machines. With the service windows being closed over the weekend, the use of the self-service units is increased, thus increasing the probabilities of minor breakdown during this period. As a general rule there is always an employe on duty who can make minor repairs," Hogan said.

Q — According to the first notice of the special bond election to be held Nov. 7, which appeared in the Democrat-Capital Oct. 19, City Clerk Ralph Dedrick offered the proposal on Oct. 10, 1972.

Doesn't notice of any special election for the city have to be made at least 30 days prior to the day of the election? And if so, isn't this proposed special election illegal? W. S.

A — Under present law, Dedrick said, notice has to be published 21 days before the special election, not 30 days. Notices announcing the special election have appeared in the Democrat-Capital Oct. 10, Oct. 12 and Oct. 26. Another announcement is scheduled to appear Thursday, Dedrick said.

Q — Is it a violation of Missouri law for trucks transporting gravel, lime, etc., to travel the highways without a covering? I was sure this was outlawed two or three years ago, but I see numerous instances of this practice on Highway 50 every week. This is a safety hazard to motorists and damaging to the car's paint and windshield. — G. L. H.

A — According to Prosecuting Attorney Adam Fischer, there is no state statute requiring a covering for the trucks you described.

There is a law, however, that prohibits a driver from knowingly allowing an object to fall out of a vehicle if that object would create a traffic hazard, he said. Technically, according to the law, if gravel falls off a truck the driver would be in violation of the statutes if he were aware of the problem and did nothing to correct it.

In the Mood

Halloween enthusiasts in LaMonte gathered in the streets Friday for a parade, top photo, that saw about 200 children from kindergarten through grade six participating. The parade started about 1:30 p.m. and went throughout the town before returning to school — all accompanied to music provided by the school band. The bewitching little beauty at the left is Kristina Blakely, 4½, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Toby Blakely, Route 1, LaMonte. (Democrat-Capital Photos)

Super Heroes Live on in Books

By RON JENNINGS
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

Do you know "The Caped Crusader's" secret identity? Or, who played Boris Karloff's mate in "The Bride of Frankenstein"? Or, (for a real toughie) what science fiction television show featured, in its opening episode, a living brain enclosed in an electrified aquarium?

If you're in doubt or just don't know, Craig Hughes, 228 South Vermont, will be glad to help you — he's get access to over 6,000 comic books and hundreds more science fiction and monster magazines filled with the answers.

"I've been a monster and comic book freak all my life," said Hughes, a 19-year-old art student at State Fair Community College. "I've been collecting them ever since I was a kid."

In today's world of razor-thin 20-cent comic books, Hughes looks back on the days of the 80-page giant editions with wistful nostalgia.

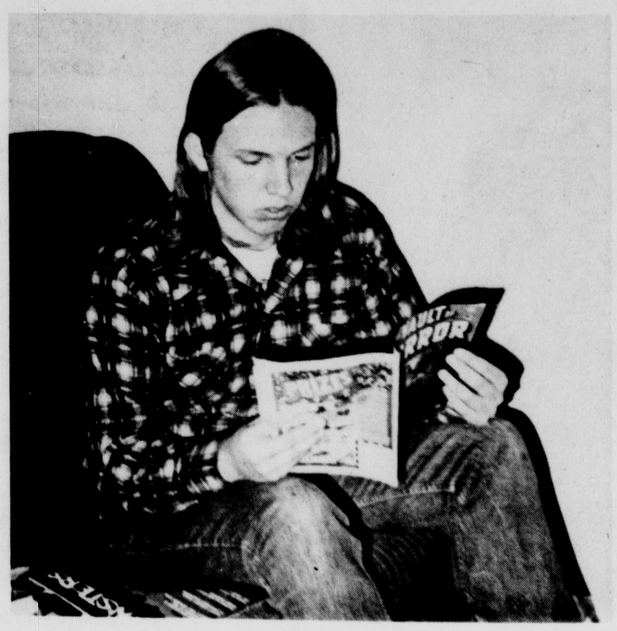
"Those were really the times when you could get something for your money," Hughes sighed. "Now you pay almost the same price for hardly nothing."

Asked why he has never outgrown his childhood affection with super heroes and comics, Hughes responded, "To me, comic books have always meant something special. The artwork, the episodes and even the sociological overtones enthralled me."

Among Hughes' most valuable collector's items are a March, 1952, copy of "Vault of Horror" which cost him $12. The publication was released before the comic book code of censorship went into effect in the mid-1950's and contains many pictures which are now deemed unsuitable for young audiences.

Another costly addition to his collection is a copy of Famous Monsters of Filmland. Originally selling for 50 cents in 1962, it cost Hughes $8 to acquire it nine years later.

Although sharing credit for the comic book collection with his brother, Terry, Hughes has a collection all his own which he is also proud of.



Craig Hughes...
This one cost him $12

"I've got practically all the issues of 'Famous Monsters of Filmland,' " Hughes said. "It's the final source for all horror hobbyists,."

While a student at the University of Missouri, Hughes, his brother, and several friends joined efforts to produce their own "fan zines" mimeographed magazines of original artwork and articles.

"We were so tied up in monster magazines and comics that we wanted to try our hand at it," recalled Hughes, who did the artwork for several "fan zines." Another contributor to their publications was Hank Luttrell, former reviewer of science fiction books for the St. Louis Post Dispatch.

For horror movie purists, Hughes believes the best films are produced at just above the amateur level.

"Night of the Living Dead," shown here recently, "was just a 16 millimeter job instead of the normal 35," Hughes pointed out. "It was a really fine film which made no pretext at social commentary at all."

Hughes' future hopes are to combine his art and cinema interests to join the ranks of horror film makers. "I've always dreamed of filming a vampire movie in Bothwell Lodge" he said. "It would be a perfect setting."

Incidentally, for those curious, Bruce Wayne is the face behind the cowl of Batman, the Caped Crusader; Elsa Lanchester played the heroine in the Bride of Frankenstein; and, last but not least, "Way Out" featured the macabre brain in its initial broadcast.

In Ranks

CARROLLTON — Daniel E. Meyers, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Meyers, formerly of Sedalia, will be the lead guitarist in the U. S. Navy string band following basic training and two weeks of music academy training in Virginia.

Meyers, a 1972 graduate of Carrollton High School, studied guitar for six years before enlisting in the Navy Sept. 23.

The nephew of Mrs. Gus Kivrizis, 1021 South Kentucky, Sedalia, Meyers will be stationed in Washington D.C. in the Music Special Service Navy Band.

Approval Is Given Pool Application

CLINTON — The Kaysinger Basin Regional Planning Commission here recently approved a pre-application notice from the city of Windsor for the construction of a swimming pool there.

The KBRPC reported Windsor hopes to build a $140,000 municipal swimming pool complex to be financed by a $70,000 federal grant from the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation and $70,000 in local matching funds generated through general obligation bonds.

Hard to Resist That False Nose!

Halloween is traditionally the time of year when children transform themselves from the kids on the block to a wide assortment of super-heroes, villains, animals and ghosts.

At one time, years ago, the majority of the costumes were made at home by mom, who labored for many hours over the family treadle turning out artistic creations.

A few devoted mothers still put in the time and effort to manufacture the costumes at home, but, in most cases, all the child needs to do is jog down to the local store to have Batman, Witch Hazel and Pluto Pup at his fingertips. He may choose from a wide array of masks, costumes, wigs, and makeup priced from a dime all the way up to several dollars.

A visit to an area store led to this film record of a few of the Halloween shoppers browsing through this year's possibilities.

The customers ranged from tiny tykes, who still couldn't figure out what it was all about, to middle-aged businessmen who just could not resist the temptation — a quick glance both ways and on goes the fake nose! You're never too old for Halloween.

Casual Chat

Clay Bain, 10, (left) appears to be having a casual conversation with his little brother Chris, 6, while shopping for Halloween costumes. The two youngsters are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Bain, 1000 South Carr.

Changed Features

William St. John, Whiteman AFB, dons fake glasses and nose to ham it up for his 18 month-old son, Bryan. The sudden change in dad's features didn't seem to bother Bryan too much.

Frankenstein?

Ronald Crawshaw, 12, checks out the possibilities of a Frankenstein mask while looking over this year's selection of masks and costumes. Ronald is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Crawshaw, Whiteman AFB.

Book By Lash Tops List Here

"Eleanor and Franklin" by Lash was listed as the top book in the Sedalia Public Library's list of "best sellers."

Columbia Claims CMC Title

S-C Can't Cut Kewpies' Tough Defense

By VAUGHN HART
Sports Editor

Collmbia Hickman has claimed the 1972 Central Missouri Conference football championship. They did it Friday night with a 19-0 victory over the Smith-Cotton Tigers.

For Columbia, it marks the first time since 1966 that anyone has been able to wrestle the title away from Jefferson City.

The Kewpies had pulled one of the major upsets of the year by knocking off highly-touted Jefferson City a few weeks ago, 14-13. That put them in the league's driver seat.

Last week, Hickman blasted Hannibal 48-0 in their second league contest to gain a 2-0 lead in the four-team conference race.

The Tigers had their chance to gain a share of the CMC football championship, but couldn't cash in on it as the stout Columbia defense kept them bottled up in their own territory virtually the entire contest.

Only once did the Bengals manage to cross midfield, late in the second quarter. However on the next play sophomore quarterback Rick McRoy fumbled, turning the ball over to Columbia.

So stiff was the Kewpies' defense in the second half that S-C was held to only two net yards rushing. Their total offense was only 20 yards for the last two periods.

After a scoreless first period, the Kewpies got on the board with 11:20 showing on the first-half clock, when quarterback Alan Whitesides hit Bob Hofsees on a 24-yard screen pass. The play came after the Kewpies had been called for a clipping penalty that set up a second and 18 situation.

Columbia went ahead 13-0 before the intermission as Whitesides hit Mike Onofrio on a 19-yard pass with just 41 seconds left on the clock.

Tiger safety Jim Sanders tried to intercept the pass as he stepped in front of Onofrio and jumped for the ball. But his timing was a little off and Onofrio hauled it in at the nine and went into the end zone untouched.

Sanders redeemed himself on the extra point attempt by Smith, getting in to help block the kick.

The Kewpies, leading 13-0 at the intermission, scored their final touchdown of the game with just one second showing on the third-period clock. Don Matthews roared into the end zone from the three on fourth and goal. Once again the extra point attempt was off, but the Bengals found themselves trailing 19-0.

Tigers' head coach Greg Cook, who alternated the signal-calling duties between McRoy and junior Paul Lostopolus, was forced now to go to the air in an effort to get on the board. But only two of the seven second-half passes found their marks.

S-C's defense played a strong game, forcing seven punts and picking off one Whitesides pass. But the Kewpies' defense was stronger, holding S-C to net yardage gain on the ground of only 46 yards.

Columbia had only three sustained drives in the game, but they made all three pay off. Hickman's first score came after they had started from the Bengals' 42. A 23-yard punt return by Mike Newman gave them their field position.

The second Columbia score came as a result of a four-yard punt that Mike Williams nearly shanked into the grandstand, giving the Kewpies the ball on the Tigers' 40. The third-period TD chalked up by Columbia came on a nine-play drive after they had started from the S-C 40.

The loss drops S-C to 3-5 on the season; they wind up with a 1-2 CMC record, good for third place in the final league standings.

The Tigers' final two contests of the season will be road encounters. Wednesday, they travel to Clinton and wrap up the season on Nov. 10 in Blue Springs.

Picks Washington To Shade Giants

NEW YORK (AP) — New York's a two-team football town again with Norm Snead and the revamped Giants in a dead heat with Joe Namath and the Jets for Gotham's heart.

The Giants, winners of four straight, now face the biggest hurdle in their climb back to glory Sunday in a matchup against Washington with a shot at tying the 'Skins for the National Football Conference's East Division lead.

The guess is nice try, but the Giants won't win.

Washington is a 24-21 choice to outgun the rejuvenated Giants.

Washington's graybeard defense and a productive Giant offense should be a near-standoff, but Sonny Jurgensen and the Redskin offenders have an edge on a young New York secondary that sometimes makes juvenile mistakes.

A Washington victory would put added pressure on Dallas in Monday night's television game against the Detroit Lions. Washington, 5-1, is a game ahead of both Dallas and the Giants at 4-2.

Monday's prediction is for Roger Staubach to make a comeback at quarterback and spur the Cowboys to a bruising 24-20 decision over the Lions, coleaders with Green Bay at 4-2 in the NFC Central.

An 18-7 season guessing record puts the percentage at .720 after incredible upsets last weekend by Philadelphia and Denver made the Sunday-Monday mark 8-4-1.

Here's a look at the other 11 NFL games scheduled this weekend:

Los Angeles, 4-1-1, at Oakland, 3-2-1: Maybe the A's left some luck at the Oakland stadium. The Raiders to run up a surprising 30-17 margin and protect a half-game lead in the fading American Conference West.

Kansas City, 3-3, at San Diego, 2-3-1: Chiefs, 0-3 in magnificent Arrowhead Stadium, are 27-20 picks on the road. Anybody who loses to Philadelphia has something to make up for.

Miami, 6-0, at Baltimore, 1-5: Colts are still grunting and fumbling over their coach's firing and John Unitas' demotion and the Dolphins seem strong enough to win even with so-so execution. Miami to take it 27-14.

Minnesota, 2-4, at Green Bay, 4-2: The Purple Puffs have had it if Fred Cox' leg doesn't straighten out and Fran Tarkenton's luck doesn't change. The Pack is sorta back, but the Vikings to take this one 21-17 and further scramble the Central race.

San Francisco, 2-3-1, at Atlanta, 4-2: Falcons have always been defensively potent and now Bob Berry's occasional passing wizardry gives them a blue chip chance at whipping the Rams in the NFC West. Steve Spurrier is doing okay as John Brodie's stand-in at quarterback, but Atlanta to do it 20-17 this time.

New England, 2-4, at New York Jets, 4-2: Jets murdered Pats 44-13 three weeks ago at Foxboro and Joe Namath didn't even cut loose his arm. If Joe goes after that leaky New England pass defense, it'll be 31-14 Jets.

Cleveland, 3-3, at Denver, 2-4: Quarterback Charley Johnson has put life in the Bronco offense while the Browns continue to flutter. Denver 17-10.

Pittsburgh, 4-2, at Buffalo, 2-4: Steeler defense hasn't allowed a touchdown in nine quarters, but that should end against a creditable Bill attack. But, the Steelers to win 20-14.

Houston, 1-5, at Cincinnati, 4-2: The Bengal offense still isn't Grade A, so it's placekicker Horst Muhlmann to settle the game 13-10.

Chicago, 2-3-1, at St. Louis, 2-4: Bears won't be as ready as when they tangled with Minnesota Monday night, but Bobby Douglass—the unarmed quarterback—will pull off a victory in the 20-10 neighborhood.

Philadelphia, 1-5, at New Orleans, 0-5-1: Both teams went out last Sunday and ruined the Losers' Bowl; the Eagles upsetting Kansas City and the Saints deadlocking the 49ers. But, it's still some sort of classic matchup of the NFL's bottom teams and Phillie is a 27-21 choice.

Follmer Leads Can-Am Circuit

NEW YORK (AP) — It may be a while before race driver George Follmer goes back to his insurance business in California.

At 38, Follmer finally has shaken the "George Who?" label he carried for years—he quit driving for almost four years one time because nobody believed he was for real—and now is riding at the top of the heap of the motor racing world.

The sometimes controversial, always intense Follmer goes into Sunday's final race of the Can-Am schedule at Riverside, Calif., with that elite series championship already in his duffle bag.

Earlier in the year, he captured the Trans-Am championship for Detroit sports sedans. His four wins in the first seven races hardly caused a flutter among the motoring press, though the American Motors Javelin he drove was not always the best car at the circuit.

But he was chiefly responsible for the ignominous downfall of the fabled McLaren works cars from a five-year domination of the Can-Am, North America's richest and most prestigious road series for unlimited sports-racing cars.

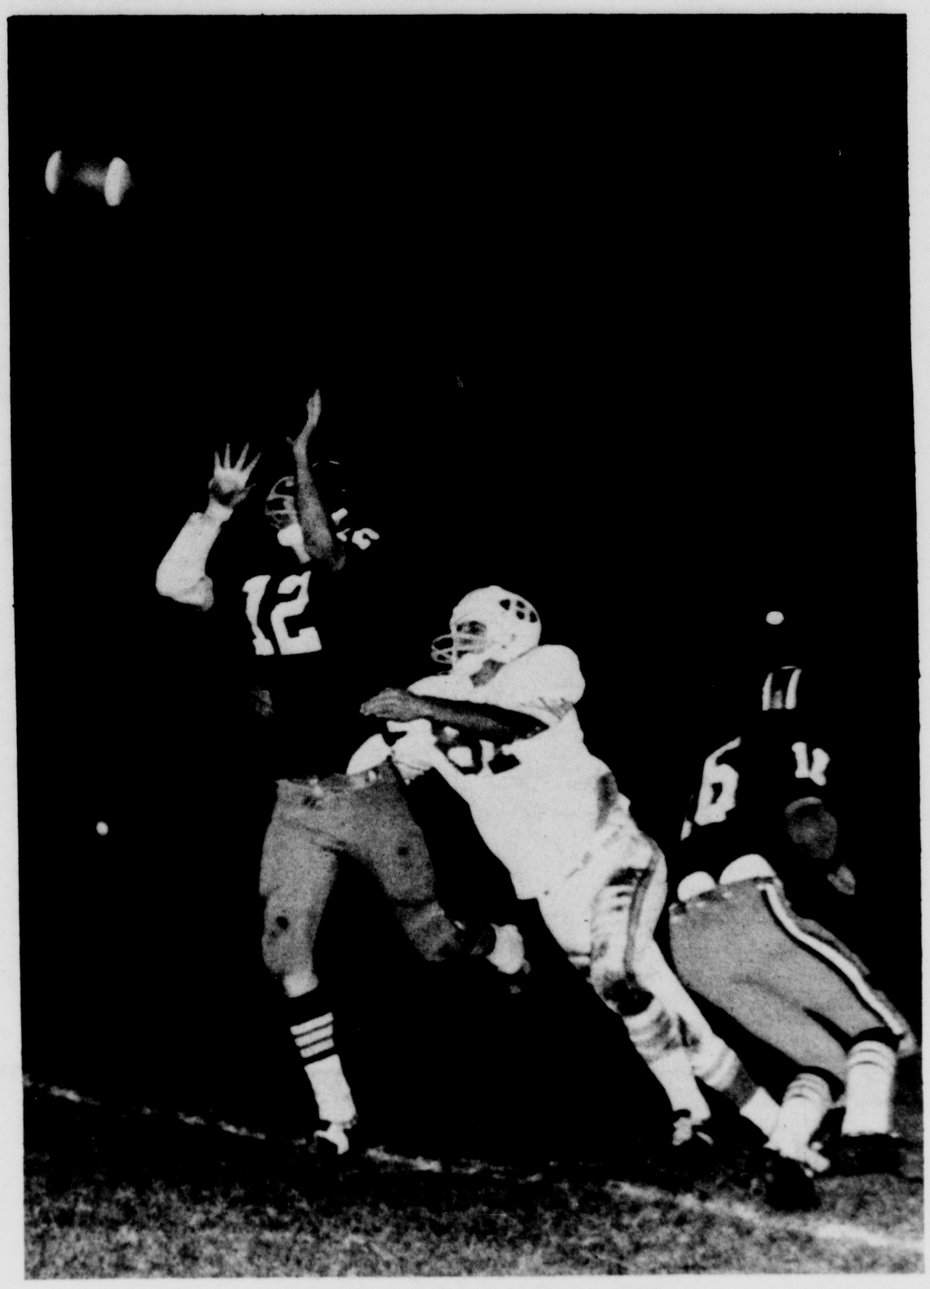
That's the vehicle which Follmer used to ride to fame and fortune. The Trans-Am paid him only $26,000. He'll get at least $100,000 for his share of the Can-Am prize and bonus money and, if previous ancillary rights that go to the champion hold up, he'll reap a sizeable harvest from personal appearances, endorsements and the like.

Tag Team Title Clash Scheduled

Rufus Jones and the Stomper risk their recently-acquired North American tag team championship against a tandem made up of Yasu Fuji and Harley Race as the top event in Tuesday night's wrestling at Convention Hall.

Jones and the Stomper gained the title by defeating the combination of Natureboy Kirby and Black Angus.

Angus will also be on hand Tuesday taking on the speedy Omar Atlas. The special event pits Less Thornton against Juan Sebastian while Race and Jones clash in the opener at 8:15 p.m.



Sander's Picks One Off

Jim Sanders (12) picks off his fifth interception of the season in Friday night's game in Jennie Jaynes Stadium as he stepped in front of Columbia's Mike Onofrio in the second quarter of action. Paul Kostopolus (16), the right cornerback for the Tigers, was also in on the play. (Democrat-Capital Photo by Bob Sheue)

Little Brown Jug Goes To Michigan

Cyclones Pound Jayhawks, 34-8

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — George Amundson and Mike Strachan punished Kansas for 452 yards total offense between them as Iowa State pounded the Jayhawks 34-8 to claim a Big Eight Conference victory Saturday.

The Cyclones, now 5-1 overall, and 2-1 in the Big Eight, spoiled Homecoming for Kansas, which now stands 2-5 for the year and 0-3 in the conference.

Amundson, the Cyclones' burly senior quarterback from Aberdeen, S.D., completed 13 of 27 passes for 178 yards and three touchdowns and tacked on 110 yards rushing on nine carries, including a 71-yard scoring scamper.

Two of his scoring passes went to Willie Jones.

Strachan, Iowa State's hard-running sophomore from Miami, Fla., powered his way 164 yards on 29 carries.

Kicker Tom Goedjen booted 41 and 48-yard field goals for the Cyclones and tacked on four extra points to run his conversion total for the season to 27, a school season record.

Iowa State mounted a 31-0 lead midway through the third quarter and coasted to victory. Kansas could never establish a running game and had to rely almost exclusively on David Jaynes' passing.

Jaynes wound up with 15 completions in 33 attempts for 247 yards and broke the Kansas one-season passing yardage record of 1,326 yards set by Bobby Douglass in 1967.

Jaynes now has 1,466 this season.

Jaynes hit Emmett Edwards on a 15-yard touchdown in the third quarter for Kansas' only score.

His backup man, Rich Jones, passed to John Schroll for the two-point conversion.

Iowa State sent Strachan careening through the line and encircling the ends with pitchouts for 108 yards on 17 carries in the first half, thrusting the Cyclones into a 17-0 lead.

It might have been a wider bulge at intermission but the Cyclones missed a touchdown when Larry Marquardt was stacked up by Eddie Sheats six inches from the Kansas goal 35 seconds before halftime.

A pass interception by John Schweizer had put Iowa State on the Kansas' nine two minutes earlier.

Amundson had connected with Jones a 49-yard touchdown pass the first play ran from scrimmage. The next time the Cyclones got the ball, Goedjens hit a 41-yard field goal for a 10-0 bulge.

Iowa State made it 17-0 before the first quarter ended when Amundson evaded a pass rush, broke into the open around right end and raced 71 yards down the sideline to score.

Kansas missed two chances at touchdowns in the first half. The Jayhawks lost the ball at the Iowa State four in first quarter when Jaynes' pitchout intended for Jerome Nelloms was wild. The Jayhawks also got to the Cyclone two-yard line in the second period before Jaynes' fourth-down pass into the end zone was incomplete.

Jaynes hit Bruce Adams on passes of 35 and 38 yards for the big gains and those two first-half Kansas drives.

Adams caught six passes for 103 yards in the first half, but didn't catch another one for the rest of the game.

Kaysinger Conference Report

Four Starters Return for Bulldogs

(Democrat-Capital Service)

STOVER — If Kaysinger Conference basketball fans thought that last year's league race was something — this year may top everyone's expectations. With four teams getting most of the pre-season nods, all of this year's conference games will be musts.

One of those four teams favored is Stover, who returns four of their five starters from last season's 20-8 team.

The Bulldogs finished the league race in the runner-up spot behind Sedalia Sacred Heart. Only a loss on their home court to the conference champs prevented Stover from winning the title.

Coach Dean Ringen enters his fourth season as the head mentor of the Bulldogs. Ringen will be shooting for his third straight 20-game victory season. In addition to his 20-8 slate of a year ago, the Bulldogs notched 21 wins in 1970-71, as well as the Class S regional championship.

Phillip Marriott, who was the league's four-leading scorer last year with an 18.1 average, returns for his senior campaign. Marriott was named to the all-conference and the all-district Class S squads in 1971-72. Marriott is 6-3 and will be one of the taller front-liners in the nine-team conference. He is also one of the loop's better shooters, as his average of a year ago indicates.

Steve Fischer, who gave the Bulldogs strength last year as a junior, stands 6-3 and has one of the inside spots nailed down.

A pair of 5-11 junior guards will be in the back court for Ringen. And there, the faces are the same as in the 1971-72 season. The two, Paul Marriott and Noel Heppard, averaged in double figures for the Bulldogs in their 20-8 season last year. Marriott averaged 12.5 points per game in 71-72, while Heppard added just over 10 points per game. Marriott is the better ball handler of the two, but Heppard has improved on his shooting. Both were named to the honorable mention list last season by the league coaches.

The fifth starter, right now anyway, is Ronnie Hodges, a 5-11 sophomore, who has been tabbed by Ringen as "one of the best sophomores in the league." Hodges will play inside with Phillip Marriott and Fischer.

"We vary our offense, rotating our three players inside," says Ringen. "We don't generally designate a center and two forwards," he added.

There are four others who should help the Bulldogs in their drive toward the conference championship and their third straight 20-win season. They include Robert Mueller (junior, 5-11), Jeff Kirksey (senior, 6-0), David Marriott (sophomore, 5-10) and Mark Stevens (junior, 6-5).

Stover got into state tournament play two years ago, when the majority of the team was made up of sophomores, knocked on the door last year and juniors and have high hopes of making the '72-73 campaign the winningest season in the school's history.

As Ringen put it, "It's a tough conference, but I believe we can compete with anyone this season. We have experience, desire, attitude and dedication ... and these things to a long way toward winning.

Stover opens the season at home Tuesday night in a non-conference contest with Smithton. The Bulldogs are seeded third in the Kaysinger Conference Tournament, which opens Nov. 6 in Lincoln.

Buffs Fall Prey

MU Pulls Second Consecutive Upset

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Greg Hill kicked a 33-yard field goal with six seconds remaining as giant-killer Missouri staged its second consecutive upset by edging seventh-ranked Colorado 20-17 Saturday.

Ironically, Hill had missed a 37-yarder only moments earlier. A week ago, Missouri had knocked off ranked Notre Dame. Colorado's defeat just about eliminated the Buffaloes, who conquered then second-ranked Oklahoma last week, from Big Eight title contention.

Colorado, after spotting Missouri a 10-point halftime advantage, came from behind twice, sending injured running back Charlie Davis into the second-half action in an effort to overhaul the Tigers.

Davis ran three yards for Colorado's first touchdown and had a big hand in the second, scored by Bo Matthews on a one-yard run.

Fred Lima's 22-yard field goal put Colorado even the first time, and his conversion after Matthew's six-pointer squared the game at 17-17.

The Tigers piled 10 points into 1 minute 4 seconds of the second quarter.

After Hill kicked a 37-yard field goal, linebacker Scott Pickens gave Missouri its first touchdown chance, recovering Ken Johnson's bad pitchout on the Colorado 24.

Tommy Reamon grabbed John Cherry's screen pass to the five, picked up two more in a burst through the line and got the touchdown on the next play.

After Colorado tied it 10-10, Missouri stormed 58 yards on the running of Reamon, Cherry passing the final seven yards to Jim Sharp.

Missouri is now 4-3 and 1-2 in the conference. The Buffaloes are 6-2 and 3-2.

The Tigers started the drive that led to Hill's winning kick on their 45 with 52 seconds left. Reamon picked up 6, and Cherry scrambled for 17 to the Colorado 32. Reamon swept the left for 12 more before Cherry's 4-yard burst put the Tigers on the 16. Hill's kick split the uprights.

It was Hill's second game-winning field goal of the season. He booted one with six seconds left that beat Oregon in the opener.

While Hill's toe actually won the game, the cocky, confident Reamon put on the big offensive show. He carried 15 times for 87 yards, including all of the distance on Missouri's first touchdown march.

With the score tied 10-10, the Tigers' John Moseley returned the kickoff 29 yards to the Missouri 42. Cherry passed to Jack Bastable for 14 at the Colorado 44. Seconds later, Reamon ripped around the left side for 36 yards before John Stearn's knocked him outside at the 7. Two plays later, Cherry passed to Sharp in the end zone.

Colorado had its best first-half opportunity to score after Bruce Peoples recovered Moseley's fumble of a punt at the Missouri 43. The Buffs got only to the 16 where Lima's 33-yard field goal try was wide.

Hill missed a 48-yard field goal in the closing minutes of the second period.

After Missouri had gone ahead 17-10, Colorado rolled 70 yards on 13 plays with the ensuing kickoff to get even again.

Immediately thereafter, the Buffs had Missouri backed up to its own 20 on third-down-and-11, but a face mask penalty gave the Tigers fresh life and they moved to the Colorado 5. On fourth down Hill missed his 22-yard try.

Before the game, Reamon had bragged:

"I didn't come here to block. I get stronger and faster as I get tired. If I run the ball, Missouri will win. I'm a helluva football player."

Goes For Big Yardage

Colorado's Gary Campbell races around end for 32 yards in the first quarter of the Colorado-Missouri game played Saturday at Columbia. Campbell picks up blocking from Chuck Mandril (61) as he eludes Missouri's John Moseley (40). Watching the action are Colorado's Steve Haggery (45) and Missouri's J.L. Doak (90) and Lynn Evans (58).

NU Buries 'Pokes

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—Mercurial Johnny Rodgers scored twice and Nebraska's bruising defense did the rest as the third-ranked Cornhuskers whipped Oklahoma State 34-0 in a Big Eight football game Saturday.

Rodgers took a 19-yard pass from Dave Humm for the first score and ran 17 yards on a fourth period reverse for another touchdown against a stiff Cowboy defense which had consistently held the high-scoring Cornhuskers in check.

But it was the Cornhusker "Black Shirt" defense which dominated the game as it registered a fourth straight shutout before a crowd of 76,432, the first time a Nebraska team had accomplished the feat in 35 years.

It was Nebraska's sixth staight win after an opening loss to UCLA and left the Cornhuskers alone atop the Big Eight at 3-0. Oklahoma State is now 4-3 and 2-1 in league play.

The Husker defenders stopped the ground-eating Cowboy wishbone offense by forcing quarterback Brent Blackman to turn inside where he was unable to run effectively.

The Cornhuskers also found tough going on the ground, but Humm hit 15 of 32 passes for 271 yards and two scores, including the pass to Rodgers and an eight-yard toss to Bob Revelle to end a third-period drive.

Onofrio Silent At Intermission

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — "They say success is built on adversity," Missouri Coach Al Onofrio said Saturday after his team beat seventh-ranked Colorado, 20-17.

"We certainly had adversity in our 62-0 loss to Nebraska," said Onofrio whose Tigers upset eight-ranked Notre Dame the week before.

Scouts from the Sugar and Gator Bowls were in the stands but Onofrio, whose team was 1-10 last year, said, "We're far from any bowl consideration."

Missouri is now 4-3 and Colorado 6-2.

The scouts who actually came to see Colorado saw Missouri's defense hold Colorado 100 yards under its 278 yards per-game rushing offense average.

"I didn't say anything at halftime after the Tiger lead 10-0," Onofrio said. When you're up 10-0 there isn't much you want to tell your squad."

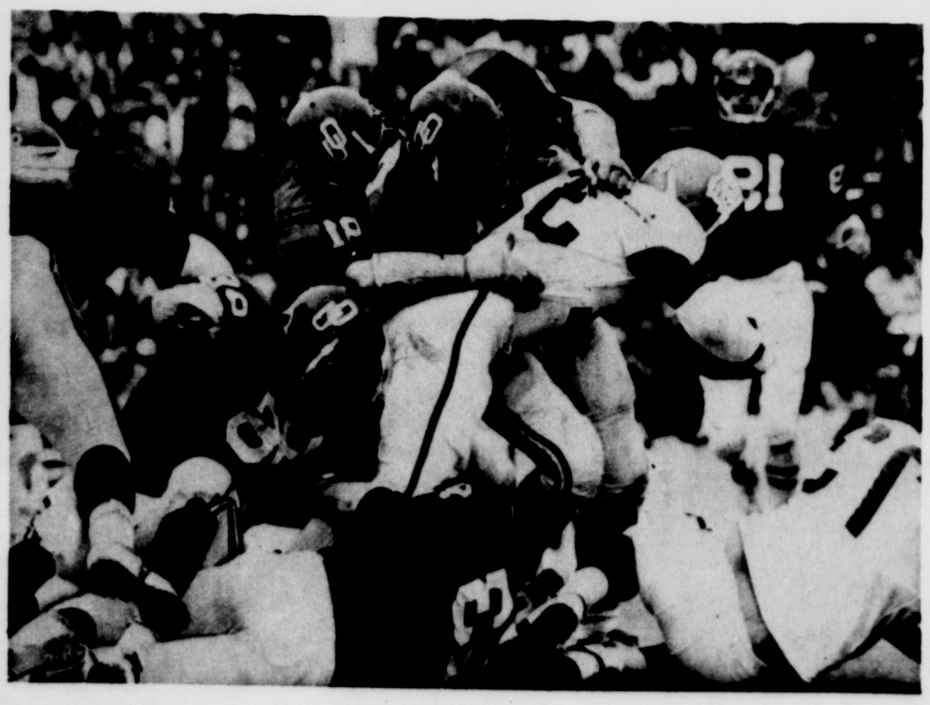
Sooners Blank K-State

NORMAN, Okla. (AP)—Flashy Greg Pruitt scored three touchdowns and gained 121 yards to become the second leading rusher in Oklahoma history as the eighth-ranked Sooners stormed back from last week's loss to Colorado by bombing Kansas State 52-0 Saturday.

Pruitt, 185-pound senior speedster from Houston, scored on a pair of three-yard runs to help OU take a 17-0 halftime lead, then got off a beautiful 22-yard scoring run in the third period. His 121 yards for the day gave him 2,396 career yards, putting him ahead of Jim Grisham's 2,339.

Quarterback Dave Robertson passed 19 yards to Joe Wylie for one touchdown and ran seven yards for another as OU widened the lead to 31-0 in the third quarter. Leon Crosswhite dashed 17 yards and Tinker Owens, a freshman and brother of Heisman Trophy winner Steve Owens, romped in on a 19-yard end-around to wrap up the scoring.

Kansas State failed to sustain a long drive as the Sooner secondary blanketed quarterback Dennis Morrison's receivers throughout the afternoon. The Wildcats had the ball on the Oklahoma 14 and 19 in the first half and on the 21 in the third period but couldn't make it the rest of the way.



Tearin' 'Em Up

Wayne Hoffman (81) and Derland Moore (on top) of Oklahoma each grab a handfull of K-State's fullback Don Calhoun to help teammate Rod Shoate (on bottom) bring him down. Also in on the tackle is Raymond Hamilton (96). The Sooners touted defense played a large role in the 52-0 shut out of the Wildcats Saturday in Norman Okla.

Mules Record 1st Loop Win

WARRENSBURG, Mo. (AP) — The Central Missouri Mules jumped to a 28-0 lead and went on to a 35-24 iaa football victory over the Rolla Miners Saturday for their first conference victory of the season.

Walter Rhone scored three touchdowns for Central — on a 75-yard run, a 31-yard pass play and a 50-yard punt return. He netted 159 yards in 15 carries.

The Miners, without a conference victory, finally got rolling in the second half, but didn't come closer than 17 points until the final seconds.

NFL Top Meets Bottom In Dolphins-Colts Game

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

West meets West and top meets bottom with Miami once again putting its unbeaten record on the line this weekend as the National Football League reaches the midway point of the 1972 season.

In the West, the Los Angeles Rams visit the Raiders in Oakland in the only interconference game of the weekend. The Rams, 4-1-1, hold a one-half game lead over Atlanta in the National Conference West while, in the American Conference West, Oakland, with a 3-2-1 record, also led by half a game, this over Kansas City.

The Dolphins, 6-0 and leaders by two games over the New York Jets in the AFC East, carry a seven-game winning streak—including last year's regular-season finale against Green Bay—into their meeting Sunday against Baltimore. One more victory will equal Miami's victory record.

The Colts, meanwhile, are looking for their first victory under new Coach John Sandusky—as well as for their second victory of the year. Both teams came very close to reversing trends last weekend.

The Dolphins, going for the first time with quarterback Earl Morrall as the starter in place of injured Bob Griese, managed to squeeze out a 24-23 triumph against surprisingly tough Buffalo. And the Colts, with quarterback Marty Domres starting in place of Johnny Unitas as part of Sandusky's youth movement, came within a minute of beating the Jets before Joe Namath and Eddie Bell combined on an 83-yard touchdown pass play that put New York on top 24-20 at the end.

Sunday's other NFL games have Washington going against the emerging Giants in New York, Kansas City at San Diego, Minnesota at Green Bay San Francisco at Atlanta, New England in New York to face the Jets, Cleveland at Denver, Pittsburgh at Buffalo, Houston at Cincinnati Philadelphia at New Orleans and Chicago at St. Louis. On Monday night, Detroit visits Dallas.

OSU Gets By Wisconsin

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Quarterback Greg Hare amassed 238 yards total offense and sophomore fullback Harold Henson ran for 122 yards and two touchdowns Saturday, powering fourth-ranked Ohio State to a 28-20 Big Ten football victory over Wisconsin.

The Buckeyes marched 77, 50, 87 and 70 yards for touchdowns the first four times they had the ball, twice after Wisconsin fumbles, in rolling to a 28-7 halftime lead on route to their sixth victory in as many starts.

Wisconsin, capitalizing on two Buckeye fumbles, scored in the third period on a 15-yard touchdown pass from Rudy Steiner to Jack Novak. Steiner passed the Badgers on a 68-yard march and scored himself from a yard out with 1:52 to play, but a pass for a two-point conversion fell incomplete.

Wisconsin's first touchdown came on a 12-yard pass from Steiner to Novak in the second quarter after Ohio State had taken a 21-0 lead. Hensen scored twice from a yard out for a season total of 13 touchdowns, four behind the school record shared by John Brockington and Jim Otis.

Hare passed 37 yards to Rick Galbos for the Buckeyes first touchdown and scored himself on an eight-yard run late in the half.

Southeast Crushes Lincoln In MIAA

CAPE GIRARDEAU, MO. (AP)—Southeast Missouri State College, with three touchdowns by John Gabrisch, rolled over Lincoln University 38 to 8 Saturday in a Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association game.

Gabrisch, a junior running back from Hazelwood, Mo., scored on runs of 79 yards and 31 yards in the third quarter. His other touchdown was a goal-line plunge in the final quarter.

Other touchdowns by the Indians were by Lance Brune in the first quarter and a Brune pass to Ed Slaughter in the third quarter.

Knob Noster Third

S-C Wins Regional

Sophomore Steve Fisher came up with a course record, a personal best and the number one finish in Saturday's regional cross country meet, sparking the Smith-Cotton squad to victory over a field of nine teams.

The amazing sophomore, who set a blistering pace of 4:58 at the 1-mile mark, ended up with a time of 10:17, breaking the course record of 10:41 which was set by Chris Kelly at the Smith-Cotton Invitational earlier this season. Kelly, who hails from Jefferson City Helias but ran as an individual Saturday, was dealt a cruel blow in comparison with his last Sedalia showing. He failed even to equal his own record and finished 13th in the regional.

Qualifying along with S-C to compete in the state race Nov. 4 were Jefferson City and Knob Noster. The same teams finished in the same order last week at the district meet in Marshall to qualify for yesterday's race. The Tigers total was 47, while the capital city squad managed a 64 and the Panthers turned in a 93.

Smith-Cotton also had another runner among the top 10 finishers as Jim Lovercamp turned in a time of 10:38 for 10th place. Lovercamp was followed closely by Robert Mayes who timed in at 10:41 for 12th. Rounding out the top five runners for the Bengals were C.E. Baldwin in 18th place on a 10:52 time and David Moore who took 24th with a 10:59.

Great improvement was noted in S-C's sixth and seventh men who both recorded personal bests in the race. Bob Buehn had an 11:10 good for 31st and Jeff Barnes placed 37th with an 11:18.

Surprising strength along with depth was exhibited by the Knob Noster team. Steve Pyburn grabbed fourth in the individuals with a time of 10:27. Teammates Dennis Gebhart, Dan Seeley, Mike Porter placed 21st, 28th, 34th, and 39th respectively to move the Panthers into the state meet for the first time in several years.

Although there were only nine 7-man teams eligible to compete, 74 individuals took part in the race. The extra men are accounted for since each district sends its top 10 finishers to the regional even if their teams fail to qualify. Likewise, the top 10 runners in yesterday's race are eligible to compete Nov. 4 at state.

Top 10 Individuals

1. Fisher, S-C, 10:17; 2. Baumstark, Hermann, 10:23; 3. Evans, Columbia University High, 10:25; 4. Pyburn, Knob Noster, 10:27; 5. Haas, Rolla, 10:29; 6. Tidd, Neosho, 1:30; 7. McBride, Warrensburg, 10:32; 8. Cooper, Jefferson City, 10:34; 9. Dobyns, Mount Vernon, 10:35; 10. Lovercamp, S-C, 10:38.

Team Finishes

1. Smith-Cotton, 47; 2. Jefferson City, 64; 3. Knob Noster, 93; 4. Rolla, 124; 5. Waynesville, 128; 6. Neosho, 153; 7. Washington, 159; 8. Mount Vernon, 164; 9. Carthage, 220.

Fisher Comes Through With 'Super' Showing

By KEITH A. OWEN
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

"He was super!"

That was the gist of Coach Joe Simones' comments Saturday about the performance of his top cross country runner, sophomore Steve Fisher.

Simones, in his first year as head cross country mentor, has good reason to praise his star harrier. Along with a number of other outstanding performances during the season, Fischer, Saturday, walked away from the regional meet with top individual honors, an Elm Hills course record and the respect of most everyone who viewed the finish of the race.

Fisher has been S-C's top finisher in every race this season and yesterday showed just what type of competitor he really is.

After making a lackluster start, perhaps setting up his pace, the sophomore distance man began to pick it up a bit and finally took the lead shortly before the halfway mark. From there he started to "stretch it out."

In the season's opening meet, the Smith-Cotton Invitational, Fisher only placed fourth, bowing to Chris Kelly, of Jefferson City Helias; Mike McBride of Warrensburg, and Steve Pyburn of Knob Noster. Perhaps that race was on his mind, perhaps not — whatever the reason, did not let up on the last hill nearing the finish chute.

Despite the fact he had been leading by at least five seconds for the last 250 yards, the young athlete maintained his pace all the way in. Another runner might have been satisfied to coast a bit with such a margin of safety, but not Fisher. He kept it up all the way and timed in at 10:17, bettering his time in the invitational by a full 30 seconds.

Although Fisher has been the most aggressive man on the squad on this season, his performances have in no way diminished the improvement achieved by a teammate.

Jim Lovercamp, a junior, last year ran on the B-team, performing a few notches down from the level of such athletes as C. E. Baldwin, Robert Mayes, David Moore, and of course, Fisher. Not so this year. Lovercamp, who placed 10th yesterday, worked on his own during the summer, and started the season right on the coattails of seniors Baldwin, Moore and Mayes, who all have much more experience.

In recent weeks, however, Lovercamp has become the Tigers' ace-in-the-hole and number two man, coming up with the vital placement in the top 10, ahead of the challenging team's number two man.

Lovercamp was forced to take over the pressure position when Moore, Mayes and Baldwin missed practice time due to injuries and illness. However, the junior evidently decided not to just step aside when his elders became active again, although Mayes is currently putting on real pressure as evidenced by his 12th place finish Saturday.

The Tigers' top five men all turned in good performances in the regional meet, while the sixth and seventh men, Bob Buehn and Jeff Barnes, recorded their finest times to date.

Those facts, coupled with a steadily improved team attitude, lead Simones to be fairly optimistic about the state meet on Columbia's A. L. Gustin course this Saturday.

"I think that next week at state we're going to surprise some of those people," Simones declared yesterday following the regional.

"Those people" being teams like Lee's Summit, Raytown South and St. Louis Parkway North, all of whom the coach expects to be "right up there" when the team scores are determined.

The Tigers finished eighth in the state competition last year.

Knudson After Second Straight

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Streaking Canadian George Knudson, seeking his second victory in as many weeks, stormed into a three-shot lead in the third round of the $135,000 Sahara Invitiation Golf Tournament Saturday but was upstaged by the abrupt and unexplained departure of Lee Trevino.

Trevino, the Britsh Open champion and defending title holder here, stomped off the Sahara-Nevada Country Club course after playing only nine holes of the third round and reportedly left town without a word to tournament officials.

It is possible that he will face disciplinary action from the Tournament Players Division of the PGA.

"I'll make a report to the commissioner (Joe Dey of New York) and then the matter will be in his hands," said TPD tournament supervisor Wade Cagle.

The surprising Knudson, meanwhile, flashed over the 6,800-yard desert layout in a six-under-par 65 to sweep past Arnold Palmer and into the lead with a 201 total.

Just as in the Kaiser Open a week ago in Napa, Calif., Palmer led Knudson for the first two rounds before the Canadian invader swarmed into the lead. Knudson won the Kaiser for his first tour victory in nearly two years.

Rookie Lanny Wadkins was alone in second after a 70 for 204.

The 43-year-old Palmer, who shared the lead the first two rounds, could do no better than match par 71 and slipped back to third place with a 205 total, four strokes away.

The obviously disturbed Palmer, in the midst of a 15-month victory drought, bogeyed the 17th hole and had to scramble to salvage par five on the final hole after driving into a lake.

At 206, seven under par and very much in contention, were veteran Art Wall, Hale Irwin and Lee Elder. Wall had a 71 while Elder and Irwin matched 67s.

Jack Nicklaus, winner of six titles this season and the pre-tourney favorite, couldn't get anything going. The U.S. Open and Masters champion blew to a 73 and was well back at 208.

Trevino, who was eight shots off the pace when the day's play started, went four over par on the first six holes, finished out the nine and left. "He just said, 'I'll see you guys later'," said Chuck Courtney, one of Trevino's playing partners. "He'd said earlier in the day that he just hadn't prepared for this tournament."

"I've had it," was Trevino's only comment before he left the course, muttering to no one in particular.

TPD rules stipulate that a player may withdraw after playing 18 holes if he informs tournament officials of his intention.

"As far as I know, he didn't talk to anyone," said Cagle, the official in charge of this event.

Bruins Top Cougars

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Quarterback Mark Harmon threw two touchdown passes, James McAlister ran for two other scores and ninth-ranked UCLA romped to a 35-20 victory Saturday over Washington Staee in a Pacific-8 football game.

The Bruins, who entered the game as the nation's No. 1 rushing team, averaging 381.7 yards per game, ran up about 330 yards and upped their record to 7-1, including 4-0 in the Pac-8.

The Cougars' attempt at a ball control offense was marred by four fumbles as they fell to 2-2 in the conference and 5-3 over-all.

McAlister's two-yard smash off right tackle on fourth down produced the game's first touchdown 4:53 into the second quarter and UCLA never trailed.

The 205-pound junior raced 22 yards for another touchdown and Harmon capped a 21-point second-quarter surge with a 13-yard pass to Bobby Ferrell.

Washington State, coming out in a Power-I offensive formation, waded through the Bruins for eight first downs on the ground in the first period.

Lincoln, Smithton Grab Kaysinger Jr. High Wins

(Democrat-Capital Service)

COLE CAMP — In a hard-fought basketball contest matching almost identical teams, Lincoln defeated Stover 31-26 here Saturday night to claim the Kaysinger Junior High Championship.

The volleyball crown went to Smithton's girls who defeated LaMonte 29-25 after being behind 16-10 at the half.

The title cage game saw Rod Ingram get hot for Lincoln, pumping in 14 points. Kurt Hagedorn had 10 for Stover.

Third place in basketball went to Smithton with its 38-28 victory over host Cole Camp. Greg Siegel keyed the action in that contest, hitting for a whopping 22 points. Mark Harms contributed 13 for Cole Camp.

Stover downed Cole Camp 40-29 for third in volleyball. In that game, too, the winner had to fight back from a halftime deficit as Cole Camp had a 12-11 advantage at the intermission.

A third quarter cold spell nearly spelled disaster for the Lincoln players in the cage championship as the Bulldogs got tough and held them scoreless. The charity stripe proved to be the major factor in the final period when aggressiveness brought out the contact.

Both teams used the press and fast break. The main difference, if any, was that Stover used a man-to-man defense while Lincoln went into a zone.

Cage Scores

Lincoln	8	11	0	12—31
Stover	6	5	9	6—26
Smithton	6	11	8	13—38
Cole Camp	6	9	3	10—28

Basketball season is only a few weeks away for the State Fair Community College Roadrunners, the defending Region XVI (state) JuCo champs.

Included on their schedule is a contest with the defending National Junior College Athletic Association champion, Vincennes, Ind. University. SFCC will take on the Trailblazers in the Mineral Area Tournament over the Thanksgiving Vacation.

It takes a lot of money to operate the basketball department at State Fair, especially when one considers that nearly half of the Roadrunners' 35 games will be on the road.

All told, SFCC will have 18 away dates, including three four-team classic tournaments.

One of the ways that the school's money burden is lessened during the basketball season is by the funds collected by the Roadrunners Coyote Pack (booster club).

The first year the school was in existence, there were 100 members in the booster club. The revenue generated from the memberships alone during those two seasons was $5,000 ($25 membership).

In 1970-71, the membership slipped from 100 to 89. And in the 1971-72 season, those memberships fell to 65.

Head SFCC cage coach Bill Barton is hopeful that this year's membership will increase rather than decrease, as was the case in the two previous years.

Barton said after the 1971-72 season was over, "...if we are going to have a first-class program, we're going to have to at least double our membership next season (1972-73)."

Although the membership cost has risen from $25 to $35 (the cost was raised prior to the 1971-72 season), the money generated by the booster club goes toward a good cause — namedly room and board for the players.

"Without the money from the organization, it would almost prohibit us from having a strong basketball program," says Barton. He went on to say, "The school alone cannot foot the bill for all of this...it takes help from other sources...one of those sources is the booster club."

Membership in the organization includes two reserved season's passes to all the Roadrunners' home games, five news letters during the season and your name engraved on the membership plaque that's on display in the Agriculture Building on the Missouri State Fairgrounds, where SFCC plays all their home games. Also, the booster club members are listed in the Roadrunners' program.

State Fair Community College basketball has come a long way in the school's short five-year history. Last year SFCC went all the way to the top capturing the Missouri junior college championship, enabling the Roadrunners to reach the national finals in Hutchinson, Kan.

We would hate to see the college's basketball program take a step backwards. It has been built to a point, but there is always room for improvement.

Persons interested in obtaining more information about the booster club's operation may contact Bob Hoskins, president; Ray Hendricks, vice president; or Dr. Darrel Payne, secretary-treasurer.

Defending Champs Humbled in Loss

KIRKSVILLE, Mo. (AP) — Northeast Missouri State, the defending MIAA football champion, suffered its first homecoming loss since 1967 Saturday, beaten 10-0 by Northwest Missouri State.

Northeast also lost possession of the Old Hickory Stick, it had held for the past four years.

Northwest's rushing defense and the running of tailback Jim Albin brought the victory. Albin picked up 195 yards and lost only 3 in 41 carries. He scored in the second quarter from the one on a recovered fumble. Jim Maddick booted a 30-yard field goal in the third period for the other score.

Top defensive men for the winners were linebackers Steve Pfieffer, Brent Behrens, tackle Verle Clines and rover Doug Rinas.

Postpone Vote

Northern Ireland Secretary William Whitelaw, left, talks to M. A. Van Der Zee, president of the Foreign Press Association, during an FPA luncheon in London. Later, Whitelaw said that local government elections planned for Dec. 6 in Northern Ireland would be postponed six months. He said a referendum would be held first on whether Northern Ireland should stay with Britain or join the Irish Republic. (UPI)

Original Combatants Now Junior Partners

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

The horse trading that hammered out Vietnam peace terms leaves little doubt that the original combatants, the Saigon government and the Viet Cong, were much the junior partners in the end.

In the course of the bargaining both sides evidently made important concessions. But the bargaining was done by representatives of the United States and North Vietnam. The pronouncements were made by them, while the Saigon regime and the Viet Cong's "Provisional Revolutionary Government" waited on the sidelines.

The Vietnam war began as a contest between a guerrilla movement dominated by Communists and a Saigon regime consolidating its hold after the 1954 ouster of France and the Geneva settlement. The guerrillas were aided by the North but for years there was no overt infiltration of northern troops. The South was assisted by the Americans, but for years only a handful of U.S. advisers was on the scene.

Now, after many years of bloodletting, the Americans and North Vietnamese emerge at peace negotiations as the main antagonists, while the others just look on.

The Americans' partner, represented by President Nguyen Van Thieu, seemed to be dragged kicking and screaming in the direction of compromise.

There is no public indication yet of how Hanoi's junior partner is taking it all. But the Viet Cong's subordinate role was indicated, for example, in the issuance of instructions from North Vietnam on when and how to expect the cease-fire.

President Nixon's chief negotiator, Henry A. Kissinger, noted that one point at issue has been whether the United States would sign the agreement for South Vietnam. He conceded that it was "understandable" that the South Vietnamese might want to sign their own peace treaty.

The Americans and North Vietnamese came a long way, even from where they were less than a year ago. Then the Americans said they would withdraw all remaining forces within six months of an agreement. Now, the period for total withdrawal is down to 60 days.

The North Vietnamese had insisted on unconditional U.S. withdrawal of all men and materiel and dismantlement of all bases. Nothing is said about materiel and bases in the terms broadcast by Hanoi. The Viet Cong is unlikely to welcome the idea of all that hardware remaining in the hands of South Vietnam's million-man army and police forces.

Since the beginning of peace talks in Paris, Hanoi had demanded that President Thieu be dumped. It repeated this demand as recently as Sept. 27 in an article in Hoc Tap, the official party magazine.

We urge you to elect John W. W. Ragland to the Board of Trustees of State Fair Community College on Tuesday, November 7, 1972.

Although Mr. Ragland lives at Cole Camp where he has spent his working years as Superintendent of Schools and administrator of the Nursing Home District, he will be a servant to the entire college district if he is elected.

Mr. Ragland is primarily interested in providing the best possible service to young men and women with the support made available by the people.

His broad background of training and experience is needed on the Board of Trustees. Vote for a school man for a member of The Board of Trustees of the Junior College.

New 'Zoo' Concept Healthy

The llama hesitates a moment, perks his ears, and then briskly strides to the side of your car, poking his head inside — if you care to keep your window down. A similar reaction can be expected from the ostrich or a variety of other grazing animals. A more aggressive welcome might be expected from a Big Horn sheep, or a curious and hungry black bear.

They're all residents of the Buena Vista Exotic Animal Paradise 15 miles east of Springfield, just one example of a growing trend of theory in "zoo-ology" where freedom to range through a natural habitat is greeted by the animals as a much-needed change from the traditional concrete slab bordered by iron bars. And it allows zoo-goers a chance to see animals in a natural state.

Buena Vista, a relatively new attraction which sprawls over hundreds of acres of woodland punctuated by manmade lakes, advertises 3,000 live exhibits, ranging from the native white-tail deer to the exotic animals of Asia, Africa and South America called tapirs, elands, emus, wisants, aoudads, rheas and gnus.

The so-called "free zoo" concept has been in existence for several years, with early renditions of the plan sporting only a moat to keep the animals (and humans) in their places. A Brooklyn zoo initiated several radical changes in the early 60's, striving to attain a natural-habitat setting for all its animals. Today, attractions in Texas, Florida and California have turned the tables on zoo-goers. The people are caged, in their cars, while the animals roam free. Usually a large fence, conspicuously absent from the common view, surrounds the entire "zoo."

Such is the setting at Buena Vista, where a family can take a two or three-hour trip along a winding road, stopping at a halfway mark to visit a more traditional zoo containing some animals, such as grizzly bears, not prone to be contained by an eight-foot chain link fence. For them, the zoo-of-the-future concept now enjoyed by other Buena Vista residents has yet to be realized. Pacing and sliding back and forth along a concrete floor, the powerful predators exhibit all the neurotic tendencies of a caged, wild animal ... tendencies once considered normal by zoo-goers of an earlier day.

Engagements

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. Raymond F. Snow, 1706 South Vermont, of the engagement of their daughter, Linda Jean, to James Michael Gosnell, son of Mr. and Mrs. James G. Gosnell, 320 East Saline.

A 1971 graduate of Smith-Cotton High School, Miss Snow is employed by the Sedalia Democrat-Capital.

Her fiance is a 1969 graduate of Smith-Cotton High School who works at Town and Country Shoe Factory.

Wedding vows will be spoken Dec. 8.

The engagement of Miss Rebecca Kaye Hageman to Joseph Wesley Arbisi, is announced by her mother, Mrs. Mary Lou Hageman, 1500 South Montgomery.

Miss Hageman is also the daughter of the late James Hageman Jr.

Her fiance, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Arbisi, Wrenshall, Minn., is a 1970 graduate of Central Missouri State College and is employed as a teacher at Smith-Cotton High School.

A Nov. 18 wedding is planned.

Miss Darice Colleen Crawford

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Crawford, Route 3, announce the engagement of their daughter, Darice Colleen, to Michael Lee Montgomery, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Montgomery, 1502 South Prospect.

Miss Crawford is a 1972 graduate of Green Ridge High School and attends State Fair Community College.

Her fiance, a 1971 graduate of Smith-Cotton High School, is employed at the Harry S. Truman dam site.

A May wedding is planned.

Famous Women To Be Honored

SENECA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — This Finger Lakes village, site of the first Women's Rights Convention in 1848, will soon be home to a national women's hall of fame.

A National Honors Committee of 25 women and men has been mulling over a list of 30 prominent American women of the past and present who have been nominated for enshrinement.

Mrs. George M. Bantuvanis, president of the Hall of Fame corporation, said plans are to keep the identities of the honored women a secret until the Hall of Fame is opened officially.

Initially, the hall will be housed in a campus building at Eisenhower College, a liberal arts school in Seneca Falls.

The corporation hopes eventually to construct its own building on land the college already has agreed to donate, Mrs. Bantuvanis said, and aid from foundations and individuals is being sought.

Seneca Falls gained prominence 124 years ago when pioneer suffragettes Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Lucretia Mott convened the Women's Rights Convention here. Mrs. Stanton and Amelia Bloomer, another early activist, resided in the village.

The idea of the Hall of Fame was given birth more than three years ago by a group of local women, who held an organizational tea to interest others. The corporation now has about 115 members, mainly in eastern states, who pay annual dues of $5.

Pat Nixon, wife of the President, is an honorable member of the board.

"We went into it full force, securing legal counsel to set up a constitution and handle incorporation and soliciting suggestions for women to be honored from members of the public, national organizations and newspaper editors," Mrs. Bantuvanis said.

Official documents of the hall state that women to be enshrined must be or have been United States citizens "whose contributions to the arts, athletics, business, education, government, humanities, philanthropy and science have been of the greatest value for the development of their country."

At first, the hall will contain commemorative plaques of the honored women, but it is planned for sculptured busts to be placed in the hall later, along with a library and museum of their accomplishments, Mrs. Bentuvanis said.

After the initial election, at least five women will be elected to the hall at five-year intervals by the honors committee.

25 Wedding Anniversary For Schilbs

OTTERVILLE — Mr. and Mrs. Bill Schilb, Otterville, were honored with a surprise reception at the Otterville Baptist Church, Oct. 22, in observance of their 25th wedding anniversary.

The occasion was hosted by the couple's three sons, Steve, Randy and Rusty, of the home.

They were married Oct. 24, 1947, at the home of Rev. H. A. Wood, Otterville. Their attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Elroy Grupe, Smithton, who were also present for the occasion.

The dining hall was decorated in blue and white. The serving table was centered with a three tiered decorated cake and flanked by silver candle holders holding blue tapers. A silver floral piece also complimented the table.

Serving were Mrs. L. M. Schilb, Mrs. Jerry Faulkner and Mrs. David Grupe. Attending gifts were Mrs. David Meyer and Mrs. Elroy Grupe. Mrs. David Schilb was in charge of the guest book.

Cookies For All Ghosts, Goblins

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

Keeping cookies on hand is a delightful chore. The major problem is for the baker to resist oversampling each batch. A hearty cookie with a different flavor and texture incorporates wheat germ and dairy sour cream. These are ideal for the Halloween crowd.

SOFT SOUR CREAM COOKIES

2½ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
one-third cup wheat germ
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon soda
¾ cup butter or margarine
1 cup granulated sugar
½ cup firmly packed light brown sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup dairy sour cream
one-third cup granulated sugar
1 tablespoon wheat germ
½ teaspoon cinnamon

Measure flour, one-third cup wheat germ, salt, baking powder and soda onto wax paper. Stir well to blend. Cream butter, granulated sugar, brown sugar, eggs and vanilla until light. Add blended dry ingredients to creamed mixture alternately with sour cream. Drop by rounded teaspoonfuls onto greased baking sheet. Flatten slightly. Combine one-third cup sugar, 1 tablespoon wheat germ and cinnamon. Sprinkle about ¼ teaspoon on each cookie. Press in lightly. Bake at 400-degrees for 10-12 minutes. Store in container with tight fitting cover. Makes 5 dozen cookies.

Miss Wasson Marries Larry Colson

(Democrat-Capital Service)

KNOB NOSTER — Miss Edna Mae Wasson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bishop Wasson, Knob Noster, became the bride of Larry Richard Colson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Colson, Sweet Springs, Oct. 20, at the Baptist Church in Concordia.

The Rev. James Short and the Rev. Roy Smith officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The altar was decorated with a 15 branch candelabrum holding white tapers and tied with white bows, and a bouquet of large spider mums and small lavender chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Marion Bird, organist, played a prelude of nuptial selections and the traditional wedding marches. She also accompanied Bernie Clark, vocalist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length empire styled gown of brocaded satin. The gown was fashioned with full length sleeves that ended with cuffs at the wrists and a round neckline. Her floor length veil of illusion fell from a coronet studded with pearls and she carried a white Bible, a gift of her parents, topped with a large white orchid held with a jeweled heart. Her only jewelry was a necklace, a gift of the groom.

Mrs. Danny Williams was the matron of honor. Her empire styled gown of purple satin was designed with butterfly length sleeves and a square neckline. She carried a large white mum tipped with orchid.

The bridesmaids were Mrs. Bob Wasson, sister-in-law of the bride, Mrs. Danny Lunsford, and Miss Mary Rector. They wore orchid satin gowns, which were styled similarly to the bride's gown. Their short tulle veils were held by head pieces of orchid satin, and each carried a large white mum tipped with orchid.

Bob Wasson, brother of the bride, was the best man, and the groomsmen were Keith Feagans, cousin of the groom, Roy Guier and Carl Ray Colson, cousin of the groom.

Tim Tebbenkamp, Larry Clear, Jimmy Tyler and Kenneth Mieser seated the guests.

Miss Janet Colson and Miss Jennifer Colson, twin cousins of the groom, were the candlelighters. Their dresses were styled similarly to the attendants. They had wristlets of white and orchid mums.

Miss Jeanette Frerking was the flower girl. She wore an orchid and purple floor length dress and carried a white lace basket with orchids and white mums. Troy Schroeder was the ringbearer.

Miss Joyce Tyler attended the guestbook and Miss Cheryl Lindhart, Miss Diana Tyler and Miss Julie Vance were in charge of the gifts.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church. The bride's table was covered with a white lace cloth over orchid satin underlay. Table decorations were two three branch candelabra with orchid tapers and arrangements of orchid and white mums.

MRS. LARRY RICHARD COLSON
Miss Edna Mae Wasson

Serving were Mrs. Ledru Hurd, Mrs. Katie Iiams, Mrs. Marion Daugherty and Mrs. George Clear.

For a wedding trip to south Missouri, the bride wore a yellow jumper with a tan blouse and a white orchid corsage.

The couple will reside in Sweet Springs.

The bride is employed in the Unitog office in Warrensburg and the groom is a farmer and drives the school bus.

The parents of the groom hosted a rehearsal dinner at Topsy's Cafe in Concordia Oct. 19.

Novelist Says Best Sellers Began at 40

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — When Marilyn Durham decided to learn to paint she started right in doing portraits. When she decided to learn to sew she went out and got five yards of wool and a pattern and made a coat.

And when she decided—at the age of 40—to write, she sat down at her typewriter and in two months turned out a novel, "The Man Who Loved Cat Dancing."

"If I'm going to do something I want to try to do it right and I don't want to start with little baby stuff," declared the Indiana housewife-turned-author as she lounged shoeless on the bed of her Manhattan hotel room.

Feet tucked under her and smoking one cigarette after another, she recalled the day a year ago when she was ironing shirts in her Evansville home. She still held the starch spray can in her hand as she went to answer the telephone.

"It was my agent calling from New York to say that the book had been sold," she remembers. "It took a while to get through to me. I hung up the phone and just stood there. Then I picked up a cigarette and put it in my mouth and tried to light it with the spray starch.

She had been sending the manuscript to one publisher after another for more than a year, meanwhile starting on another book "to keep from going crazy" while she waited. This second novel, "Dutch Uncle," will be published in 1973.

She admits she probably would have gone on sending "The Man Who Loved Cat Dancing" to every publisher in the business. "I didn't think it was great but I did think it was a story with action, love, a beginning and a middle and an end, and someone ought to buy it—I've read worse."

After that the breaks came fast. The movie rights have been sold, the book has been chosen as an alternate Book-of-the-Month Club selection, paperback reprint and foreign rights have been sold and it has received critical acclaim.

"But by far the most exciting moment for me was opening the box of books and seeing 10 copies with my name on them," says Mrs. Durham, a soft-spoken woman who talks matter-of-factly about her first trip to New York, her television appearances and her new status as a celebrity.

So far, she says life hasn't changed much for the family, which includes husband Kilburn, Social Security Department field representative, and daughters Elaine, 17, and Jennifer, 14.

"Jennifer did get a horse out of it," her mother reports, "and I suppose eventually our life will change. I hate to cook and wash dishes and bake pies and wash and iron but I'm just not on to how to give the job to someone else yet. We are buying a larger house though—11 rooms—and we'll finally have an extra room for me to write in."

Up until now her writing room has been the bedroom, where she works regularly starting at 8:30 a.m. after the kids are in school and her husband at work. "I type until lunchtime, get up and run through the house, have lunch and sit down for another couple of hours, then get out whatever we're going to have for dinner and make a pass at a shirt with an iron."

Mrs. Durham explains of her decision to write a book, "The fact that I was going to be 40 pretty soon had really been bothering me. At 15 I gave myself until I was 23 to become an actress. In my 20s I gave myself a few years to do other things like learn to swim and ride a horse, but I never did any of them. I realized that when I was 50 I'd still be daydreaming that next year I was going to do something."

Having made up her mind to write, she "cold-bloodedly began examining all the possibilities." She arrived at "Cat," as she fondly refers to her story set in Wyoming Territory in the 1800s, more or less through the process of elimination.

"I wanted to write an adventure story because I like to read them," she relates.

Club Notes

Mrs. John Houston hosted the Wednesday meeting of Liberty Homemakers Extension Club with Mrs. Houston acting president.

Due to the absence of Mrs. Paul Neel president, who has moved out of the area, Mrs. Houston was appointed president by the group.

Mrs. Parker B. Green gave the devotional.

Mrs. William F. Rife gave a lesson on storage and showed pictures on shelf arrangements for members of Prairie Ridge Extension Club Wednesday.

Meeting at the home of Mrs. Harold Schanz, Mrs. Rife pointed out that arranging seasonal articles can simplify the problem of storage.

Announcements were read concerning the fall homemaker's luncheon and a report on county government day was given by Mrs. J. R. Chamberlain.

Members were reminded that the club will host the 4-H Club in November.

Lap robes were finished by the 15 members and guests introduced were Mrs. J. O. Coffelt, Mrs. Frank Norfleet, Mrs. A. J. Witthaus and Mrs. Glen Karrick. Mrs. Virgil Singer was welcomed as a new member.

A noon luncheon was served Tuesday to 14 members of Striped College Extension Club at the home of Mrs. Aleda Weselon.

A program on storage was given by Mrs. Glenn Cox and Mrs. Don McQueen.

LOOKING INTO WINDOWS

By Deanie Long

A truly versatile and "fun to have around" window treatment is the cafe curtain. The attractive cafe style goes well in any room in the home, and enhances almost any style decor.

One of the beauties of cafe curtains is that they look great in any fabric, from an inexpensive little cotton print to dressier more luxious fabrics. Cafes are often styled in the traditional two-tiered treatment, with the hem of the top tier overlapping the rod of the second tier. You may prefer two tiers of equal length, the triple-tiered effect, single hanging cafes, or single cafes complementing full length draperies. They're all high fashion styles, and one is just for your window.

Of course, cafes do more than just beautify a room. They can, for example, allow light to enter while still giving you complete privacy or hiding an unsightly outdoor view. Simply hang double panels, and keep the bottom one permanently closed.

Keep in mind that attractive hardware is vital to a successful cafe treatment. We'd like to assist you with your curtain and hardware selections. Stop in soon.

If you're decorating a new home or designing a new look for your present home, you're sure to like the large selection of curtain and drapery window treatments at HOBSON'S. We are at your service at all times without cost or obligation. Open 8:30 to 5:00 p.m. Tuesday thru Thursday & Saturday. Open Monday and Friday until 8:30 p.m. See us at 2805 West Broadway, Sedalia, Missouri 65301 or phone 826-1192.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy R. Holman 1972

Mr. and Mrs. Rolla Sole

Area Couples Note Golden Anniversaries

Mr. and Mrs. Roy R. Holman, Route 5, will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary with an open house from 2 to 4 p.m. Nov. 5 at Olive Branch Baptist Church, near Beaman.

The former Ruby May Grimes and Roy Richmond Holman were married Nov. 1, 1922.

Mr. Holman retired from the Missouri Pacific Railroad in 1962.

Hosting the anniversary event will be families of their sons, Russel Holman, 724 West Sixth; Floyd Holman, Kansas City; and Lloyd Holman, Kansas City.

The golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Rolla Sole, 1812 South Park, will be honored with an open house from 2 to 4 p.m. Nov. 5 at the American Legion Hall, 16th and Thompson.

Married in Windsor Nov. 5, 1922, the Soles are the parents of two children. They have five grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Hosting the event will be their children, Mrs. Talmadge Hale, 1123 Crescent Drive and John Sole, Kansas City.

Mr. Sole is retired from the grocery business, having been owner of the former R and H Market at 16th and Park for many years.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Burrus, 2514 Wing, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Saturday at their home.

The two were married Oct. 28, 1922 in Bloomfield, Neb. They have five children, 14 grandchildren and one great-grandson.

The couple have lived in Sedalia most of their lives where Mr. Burrus is a semi-retired barber.

PILOT GROVE — A reception honoring Mr. and Mrs. Earl C. Asbury, Pilot Grove, on their 50th wedding anniversary was held Sunday at Pleasant Green Methodist Church here.

Hosts were children of the couple, Mrs. Wendell Meyer, Boonville; Bob L. Asbury, Route 5, Sedalia; and Mrs. Troy Scott, Napton.

Serving were Mrs. Gordon John and Miss Debbie Asbury and presiding at the guestbook were Miss April Asbury and Miss Kim Meyer.

Pictures of the couple's wedding and early childhood were displayed at the event. They were married Oct. 21, 1922.

They have 12 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Mr. Asbury has worked as a plastering contractor in the area.

The 50th anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Bahner, 1107 South Osage, was celebrated Oct. 22 with a Holy Mass at Sacred Heart Catholic Church, the same church in which they were married Oct. 26, 1922.

The Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father Vincent Hoying with nephews and grand-nephews of the couple acting as servers and lectors.

The Bahners have lived their entire lives in the Sedalia area where Mr. Bahner was engaged in farming before moving in town 25 years ago. He has worked at Mike O'Connor Chevrolet and is still employed in a limited capacity.

Dinner was served at Maxine's Gourmet House for the immediate family and was followed by a reception at their home where 125 guests including relatives from Kansas City, Topeka and Centralia came.

Mr. and Mrs. Bahner have three children, Miss Mildred Bahner and Robert Bahner, both of Kansas City, and James Bahner, Smithton. They are the grandparents of five.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard H. Miller, Hughesville, observed their 50th wedding anniversary Oct. 22 with a family dinner at Flat Creek Inn.

Preceding the dinner the family attended church services at St. Paul's Lutheran Church where bouquets of yellow gladioli, snapdragons and chrysanthemums were placed on the altar in commemoration of their golden anniversary.

Following the dinner relatives gathered at the Miller home where they have resided since 1934.

Mr. Miller and the former Josephine Holsten were married Oct. 22, 1922, at Holy Cross Lutheran Church near Cole Camp.

Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Bahner

Program Honors United Nations

A program honoring the United Nations entitled "Workshops for the World," was presented at the Wednesday meeting of the Helen G. Steele Music Club at Heart Memorial Club House.

Under the co-chairmanship of Mrs. Norman Capps, Mrs. Robert Edmonds and Mrs. Anthony Monsees, the program consisted of choral numbers directed by Mrs. Donald Barnes and voice solos.

"I'd Like to Teach the World To Sing," was performed by Mrs. Richard Parker; Mrs. Barnes sang "What the World Needs Now," and "There's A New World Coming," was sung by Mrs. Carl Zimmerschied.

Following the chorus number of "Let There Be Peace," the preamble to the Constitution of the United Nations was given by Mrs. Edmonds. The program was closed with a hummed version of "Hymn of Nations," by the chorus.

Mrs. Eugene Logan, past president, presented the club with awards won last year including a state ribbon for the best program of the year. This was given for the program on Johann Sebastian Bach, The Man and His Music, presented last October by Miss Florence Morseman, Mrs. James W. Atkinson and Mrs. M. O. Stevens.

A double award of merit was given the club for its "Parade of American Music," during February, American Music Month. Co-chairman for that event were Mrs. Barnes, Mrs. Larry Carter and Mrs. Capps.

A collection of dolls from many lands was displayed by courtesy of Mrs. Kenneth Love Jr., at the afternoon meeting.

Former Sedalian Becomes Firm's Vice President

Miss Margaret Kathryn Eickhoff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo E. Eickhoff, Route 1, has been named vice-president of the Townsend-Greenspan Consulting Firm, New York, it was reported in the Thursday edition of the Wall Street Journal.

Miss Eickhoff, 32, has been associated with the firm since 1962, "long before the hiring of women professionals became fashionable," the Journal article states.

Located in New York Plaza, the business consulting firm is 19 years old and employs less than 20 economists. Miss Eickhoff is one of three women economists who was promoted to vice president.

The front-page Wall Street Journal article describes how owner Alan Greenspan mixes politics with his business, and is working for the re-election of President Nixon. The article calls the firm one of the most respected in the nation, and terms Miss Eickhoff one of its "three top economists."

Miss Eickhoff attended Sullins College, Bristol, Va.; Stephens College, Columbia; and the University of Missouri-Columbia, where she received a bachelor of arts degree with distinction in history. She earned her master's degree in economics from New York University in 1970.

In 1971-72 Miss Eickhoff was listed in Who's Who of American Women and she is a member of the American Finance Association, American Economists Association, American Statistics Association.

Miss Margaret Eickhoff

the National Association of Business Economists and Chi Omega.

Aside from her position with Townsend-Greenspan, she serves on the boards of several big corporations.

Jumpers Go Bare

Halter jumpers are a big part of the fall lineup. Worn with a blouse or sweater for daytime, jumpers easily convert into bare evening dresses.

Monica Lane Kelley and Ray E. Vogel Married

Wedding vows were spoken Oct. 17 between Miss Monica Lane Kelley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loy E. Kelley, Apt. 11, Townhouse Manor, and Ray E. Vogel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Vogel, Route 2, at First Christian Church.

The Rev. Richard Leach officiated at the afternoon ceremony before an altar centered with a chancel bouquet of white gladioli, white mums, red roses and blue carnations and flanked by a pair of 20-branched pyramid candelabra holding white tapers.

Mrs. Rosalie DeLozier was organist and vocalist was Miss Mary Ann Hart, who accompanied herself on the guitar.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white crepe, fashioned with a mock bolero bodice of Venice lace, lace standup collar, empire waistline, bishop sleeves and drindle skirt. Her ensemble was completed with a cathedral mantilla of illusion held by a juliet cap of lace. She carried four white long stemmed roses gathered by red ribbons and a white Bible, given by a friend.

Mrs. Tom Gardner, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Gayle Goff and Mrs. Riley Kindle.

All were in dresses that had white nylon bodices lined with satin and red, white and blue striped voile overskirts with red satin lining. The outfits were completed with a red satin cummerbund.

Each attendant carried one long stemmed red rose entwined with a white ribbon.

Fred Kelley was best man and serving as groomsmen were Steve Boots and Steve Morris. Performing ushering and candlelighting duties were Tom Gardner and Scott Kelley.

A reception followed the ceremony at First Christian Church where the bridal cake centered the serving table. Miss Liz Stock and Miss Sharon Bechtal were servers.

Presiding at the guestbook was Mrs. Frank Fiorentino and attending the gift table were Miss Pam Devin, Miss Bev Bates and Mrs. Fred Kelley.

For traveling on a wedding trip to the Lake of the Ozarks and St. Louis, the bride wore a navy and white dress with red accessories.

The couple will reside on Route 4. The bride is employed by Beneficial Finance Co. and the groom works for Vogel Masonry.

What's in a Meat Cut Name

By GAYNOR MADDOX

Just what does the modern slogan "the consumer's right to know" have to do with the buying of meat?

For one example, there are more than a thousand retail names for cuts of meat. Yet there are basically only eight wholesale cuts from the meat animal. This means that many different names refer to exactly the same retail cut.

"Surely this incredible array of fancy names lowers the confidence of the average shopper. It is devastatingly confusing. But today the meat industry is being seriously challenged to simplify meat cut identification. Consumers are demanding it," says David H. Stroud, president of the National Live Stock and Meat Board.

"It is just common sense — not only from the consumer's standpoint, but also from the industry's — that we develop a common national system of names for retail cuts. Then a man or woman could go into any store anywhere in the country and get exactly what he or she wants by simply asking for it by the generally accepted name," says Stroud.

The National Live Stock and Meat Board is active in this campaign for national terms of identification.

Massachusetts has a new law this year. It requires butchers to state the basic meat beef, lamb or pork, and the primal cut, such as chuck, round, loin, etc. After these have been stated, the butcher can add his own designation within reason. Many names such as "daisy roast" have an almost traditional reality to Massachusetts people, for example.

Connecticut is thinking about such a law. New York state put its new law into effect in July.

Before the New York state law was passed, names of meat cuts had been acquired by usage, caprice, merchandising zeal and mere chance. The new law is designed to help consumers shop with confidence. It gives specific definitions for many different cuts.

For example, "T-bone steak" means meat that comes fgom the short loin of cattle and has not less than one-half inch diameter of tenderloin muscle. "Porterhouse steak" also comes from short loin but has not less than 1¼ inches in diameter of tenderloin muscle.

According to the new New York state law, no one can sell packaged meat unless the label clearly states the "true name" of that cut. The "true name" has two parts: one identifies the species of animal, such as beef or lamb. The other part tells the primal area or the section of the animal from which the cut came — such as tongue, heart, shoulder, brisket round, flank, etc. Only one of these primal areas may be listed on the meat label.

Non-reader Johnny is now in college

A few years back, we were hearing a lot about Why Johnny Can't Read. But now, it seems, Johnny has graduated to college.

Dr. Benjamin Fine, writing for the North American Newspaper Alliance, informs us that one third of all freshmen entering college today lack the basic reading skills necessary to meet the minimal requirements for college study. The figure comes from the National Reading Center in Washington.

Many college freshmen can read no better than at a sixth-grade level, says Dr. Fine. As a result they also are handicapped when it comes to writing and speaking. Textbooks leave them cold.

In short, they are educational busts.

Why should this be, in a nation that prides itself on universal education, and pours billions of dollars a year into schools and colleges that are supposed to teach our young people?

Part of the answer, according to the good doctor, is that our kids' teachers aren't always doing the job they are expected to do. State laws governing reading instruction in elementary schools are often loose or non-existent; certification standards may not be defined; and methods of teaching reading vary from school to school, which can be disastrous for transfer students.

Even when Johnny gets to college, things are often just as bad. The teaching of freshman English — which should be one of the crucial touchstones of a college education — is mainly left to inexperienced graduate students, while the professors save themselves for literature courses.

Another factor contributing to the problem is the "open admissions" policy of many state colleges and universities, which says that a student must be admitted, prepared or not. As a result, more and more instructors on the college freshman level find themselves trying to teach students what they should have learned in high school, or earlier.

Merry-go-round

Mother is victim of bureaucrats

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — The story of Mrs. Harry Merica of Naked Creek, Va., is a story of how America's bureaucracy can neglect the people it is supposed to serve.

Mrs. Merica is a spunky, mountain woman in her late 40s. When Hurricane Agnes ripped through Naked Creek last summer, the floods wiped out a wooden footbridge that connected Naked Creek to the outside world.

Mrs. Merica was the hardest hit. She was forced to carry her two disabled children on her back every day across a small, makeshift bridge which had been hastily constructed upstream. Mrs. Merica made this dangerous trek so that her children could catch the school bus on Highway 609 across the creek from her home.

After two months of this, Virginia officials finally heard about Mrs. Merica's plight.

Unfortunately, the state didn't fix the original footbridge or begin construction of a badly needed concrete highway bridge. Instead, incredibly, the state took the two children away from the despairing Mrs. Merica.

Both children are handicapped with muscular dystrophy. The Virginia State Nursing Home in Charlottesville, with typical bureaucratic reasoning, concluded that a safe bridge across the creek was essential to the children's welfare and, therefore, that Mrs. Merica did not provide a proper home for her children.

Of course, it's up to the government, not Mrs. Merica, to provide the bridge. But for seven years, we are told, state and local authorities have squabbled over who should build it.

Mrs. Merica's local minister George Shivers is trying to persuade federal authorities to act. He has talked to Virginia's Sen. Harry Byrd and to the Transportation Department. But so far no solution is in sight.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Merica's neighbors continue to shake their heads. Their attitude toward the government was expressed by one neighbor, who told us laconically: "The government doesn't make the rain. It doesn't make the sun. It doesn't grow my farm. And it doesn't affect me."

Despite a federal court ruling that nursing home files should be open to the public, Social Security Commissioner Robert Ball has brazenly suppressed information on the quality of nursing homes where many older Americans spend their last years.

It's common knowledge in the health industry that some of these facilities are unsanitary firetraps. This is information, obviously, that the public is entitled to know.

The 4,500 nursing homes that receive Medicare money must pass federal inspection. This usually isn't too difficult; routine approval is given if the homes are in "substantial compliance" with federal standards.

The nursing home inspection reports, however, are never released. The taxpayers, who paid for the inspections, can't find out which homes are safe and clean.

For three years, an enterprising investigative reporter, Mal Schechter, has battled with Social Security to gain access to inspection reports on nursing homes, hospitals and clinical laboratories.

He bumped into a brick wall at Social Security. So Schechter enlisted the help of a Ralph Nader attorney, Ron Plesser, and filed suit under the Freedom of Information Act. They argued that an old Social Security law, which protects the privacy of individuals, shouldn't be used to hide nursing home deficiencies.

Federal Judge Joseph C. Waddy agreed and ordered the release of 15 reports requested by Schechter. Reporters assumed this settled their right to nursing home information. But they didn't reckon with the wily ways of the bureaucrats.

Commissioner Ball has chosen to interpret Judge Waddy's decision as an order to release only the specific reports requested by Schechter. If reporters want to see other inspection records, they, too, must go to court.

This amazing cover-up policy has been put in writing. "The Department of Health, Education and Welfare, in responding to future requests for disclosures of similar documents, will be guided by its present regulations prohibiting disclosure," states the directive.

"This means that, for the present, the Department of Justice will oppose any further efforts to obtain court orders for the disclosure of nursing home survey reports that have already been prepared."

A conservative view

McGovern's self-righteousness

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — One of the most revealing interviews of this campaign appeared on October 20 in the Washington Post in the transcript of the conversation between Sen. George McGovern and reporter William Greider. When the postmortems begin on November 8, and our political pathologists begin to explain McGovern's loss, they might find a good starting point here.

Kilpatrick

It is the absolute self-righteousness of the man; and this is one characteristic, I venture to suggest, that the American people simply will not buy when they choose a political leader. Our voters have stomachs of stainless steel. They will tolerate the hypocrite, the gasbag, the wheeler-dealer, and the second-rater, but in the presence of moral rectitude, the typical voter comes down with the heebie-jeebies. He starts glancing around for the nearest exit.

"You know," McGovern said to Greider, "all of my life I've grown up in a religious climate where I was taught that life is a struggle between good and evil, that that's what it's all about. For every individual and every nation, it's a struggle between the impulses of evil and the impulses of goodness and, historically, sometimes the good impulses win out and sometimes the evil, so who knows what's going to happen? But I just feel very strongly that this election is different than any one in my lifetime in terms of the stakes."

Greider was plainly taken aback. "Well," he said, "the good-and-the-evil — Washington would say certainly, wow, that's an arrogant black-and-white description of the choice."

"That's the way I feel," McGovern said.

It was a moment of uncomfortable truth — for this is indeed the way McGovern feels. He views this campaign as a kind of apocalyptic combat: On one side the legions of darkness, on the other the angels of light. He is convinced that Nixon's impulses are the impulses of evil: He himself is "really terrified at the thought of another four years of Nixon." But he cannot perceive how any decent person could look with terror on the thought of four years of McGovern, for McGovern is Virtue and Nixon is Sin. What reasonable man, having been offered a chance at salvation, would opt for perdition instead?

This Olympian attitude cropped up earlier in the campaign, in McGovern's crack about the working man. Any man who works with his hands, and votes for Nixon, "ought to have his head examined." Such a man, in this view, is not merely misguided: He is nuts.

The trouble with this approach is that it wipes out a middle ground, and it sets in motion some uneasy apprehensions. If this election is a struggle between the Impulses of Evil and the Impulses of Goodness, how would a President Goodness deal with his foes once he took over the White House? Hellfire and damnation? Outer darkness? No wonder Bill Greider said, "Wow."

The voters, if I am not mistaken, are not so willing to march to Armageddon on a Tuesday. They know — their observation tells them ,so — that the political art seldom is crafted in stark black and white. They understand that honest differences of opinion cannot be bottled and labeled, here are the juices of goodness, there the poison of evil. We do not think, most of us, in millennial terms. It is all we can do to get out of bed in the morning.

Moral rectitude ought to be an admirable quality in a man. As an abstract proposition, doubtless it is. But a man who identifies himself with the impulses of goodness ought to have the grace to keep that high opinion to himself.

The Senator is fond of quoting from Holy Scripture. One of these days, when the campaign is over, he might want to return to that parable in Luke 18 of the Pharisee and the Publican. The story was aimed at those who "trusted in themselves that they were righteous, and despised others." And the moral of the story, though it may have slipped the Senator's mind, is that "everyone that exalteth himself shall be abased, and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted." It's a useful tale for publican sinners, but it seems to be lost on the Democratic nominee.

The pumpkin

The little pumpkin watched as the watermelon grew
And didn't know he was growing, too,
The most beautiful thing he had ever seen,
Striped, it was, in two shades of green
And when it was ripe, one summer day,
Somebody came and took it away;
"Just look at this one," somebody said,
Plugged it and lo, the inside was red.
Thought the pumpkin: "I can plainly see
"Why they want it instead of me,
"I'm only a sickly yellow shade,
"I'll stay here and rot on the vine,
I'm afraid."
Sure enough on the vine it had to stay
While someone took the big melon away,
But the summer went into a glorious fall
And nobody noticed the pumpkin at all
Until one day some people came by,
"That pumpkin" said a woman, "will make a good pie."
And a little boy squealed with delight
"What a great Jack-o-lantern for Halloween night."
So the pumpkin to the house they took
Where they cut out the inside of it to cook,
The outside was gold and the inside, too,
For the pumpkin was a bright gold all the way through,
"What a nice pumpkin," the little boy said,
"Won't he make a great pumpkin head?"
After his mother cut the inside all out
Then the little boy set about
Cutting a face in the pumpkin shell
And really, he did his job so well
That the pumpkin could feel the smile on his face
Even as the cutting was taking place,
So the pumpkin grinned at the world with pride
With the aid of the candlelight inside,
And he was glad that he was gold
—not green,
For he knew he was special for Halloween.

Lying to Lou Harris

WASHINGTON — Zimbalist phoned me at 11 o'clock the other night. "I have to see you right away," he said nervously.

"What is it, Zimbalist?"

Buchwald

"I can't tell you on the phone. Please see me, I beg of you."

"All right, come over," I said.

Twenty minutes later a haggard and distraught Zimbalist arrived at the front door. "Where can we talk privately?" he demanded.

"Anywhere. There's nobody in the house."

He looked over at my wife and asked, "Can she be trusted?"

"She's my wife, Zimbalist," I said. "She's like one of the family."

"I'm sorry," he said. "I'm a nervous wreck. I'm going out of my mind."

We took him into the library. "Tell us about it," I said soothingly.

He sipped hot coffee. "It happened three days ago. I was walking down the street when this man came up to me. In one hand he was holding a clipboard and in his other hand a pen. He said he was a Lou Harris pollster and asked if I would mind answering a few questions. I wasn't thinking, so I said I would. First he asked me my name, then my age, my religion, my income bracket and finally he asked me who I was going to vote for on Nov. 7. I told him Nixon."

"There's nothing wrong with that," I said.

Zimbalist put his head in his hands.

"I lied. I'm really going to vote for McGovern."

"You lied to a Lou Harris pollster?" my wife asked in disbelief.

Zimbalist looked at her, tears welling in his eyes, "I didn't mean to," he said, "but I didn't know who the guy was. He could have been from the Committee for the Re-Election of the President or he could have been working for the White House. I was scared, I'll admit it. I jurt blurted out Nixon without thinking.

"But I represent 500,000 votes. Now Lou Harris thinks everyone in my age, religion and income bracket is going to vote for Nixon. It could throw off his whole poll by 5 per cent."

"I never thought of that," I said.

"For the last few days I've been going crazy," Zimbalist sobbed. "I've been thinking about turning myself in. But if word got out that I lied to a Lou Harris pollster it could destroy me professionally. I have to think of my wife and the children.

"What am I going to do? What am I going to do?" Zimbalist moaned, rocking back and forth in his chair.

"Look," I said, "I think the best thing to do is make a clean breast of things. We'll call Lou Harris in the morning and tell him you made a mistake. We'll say you were temporarily insane and didn't know what you were doing. Maybe he won't press charges. Lou Harris may be a pollster, but he does have a heart."

Zimbalist, a shaken man, grasped my hand gratefully. "I don't know how to thank you," he said. "I'll never forget this."

After he left, my wife said to me, "I don't know if you should get involved in this or not. They might blame you."

"I have to do it. If I had lied to a Lou Harris pollster I'm sure Zimbalist would have done it for me."

Opening lead—♣ 8

By Oswald & James Jacoby

We are indebted to Eric Jennersten for this beautiful play, which is best described as a three-suit, criss-cross squeeze.

You don't have to approve of the bidding if you don't want to but you do find yourself in six hearts against a club lead. You also remember that East put in a vulnerable overcall and it looks as if he will hold all the high cards.

You have 11 easy tricks and a 12th if diamonds break 4-3, so you take dummy's ace of clubs and ace of diamonds, ruff a diamond and lead a trump.

East is in with the ace and leads a third diamond. You ruff this high and get the bads news about that suit.

Don't give up. If East holds the king of spades he belongs to you. You enter dummy with the queen of trumps; discard one spade on the king of diamonds; ruff a club and run off all your trumps but one to leave dummy with the ace of spades, seven of diamonds and queen of clubs while you hold queen-five of spades and one trump.

East has to hold the king of clubs and a high diamond. He must chuck his 10 of spades.

Now you simply lead a spade to dummy's ace, dropping East's king. That leaves your last trump and spade queen good for the last two tricks.

Country Questioning Servicemen's Loyalty

By TOM TIEDE

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — When one of the recently released prisoners of war returned to his hometown, he received a mixed reception. There were cheers representing the sentiment of hometowners who were happy to have their soldier back and never mind anything else. And there were grumblings, too, prompted by the suspicion that the POW paid for his Vietnam release at the expense of the United States.

He had said, some felt, some fuzzy things about America. Antiwar things. And here he was, for it all, being treated like a hero by the nation he knocked.

The latter opinion, correct or not, is a growing one in the land. Confused by more than a decade of war, bitter about the changes occurring in national patriotism, many Americans feel that the last of the country's uniformed values — the serviceman's loyalty — is disappearing without so much as a yelp from the regulatory authorities.

To be sure, this opinion has been repeatedly reinforced by current events. Several years ago the North Vietnamese began periodic broadcasts of alleged antiwar statements by captured Americans. Over the years such statements multiplied through the world press. Most recently a captured Air Force captain is reported to have said (via short wave broadcast) that Senator McGovern should be elected president, because: "I feel that (McGovern) is the only reasonable choice for the American voter. This war must be stopped immediately so that the Vietnamese people can live in peace..."

These statements, some much worse, fall decidedly outside the bounds of what is expected of American prisoners of war. And the question is being raised, even though POWs still are imprisoned: What, if any, action should eventually be taken?

There is no doubt that many of the POW statements beamed out of North Vietnam are, in and of themselves, grounds for court-martial. The U.S. military has always had a set of responsibility regulations, written or implied, in time of war: Do not aid or comfort the enemy. Do not jeopardize fellow prisoners. Even when the specifics were vague, the intent was clear and enforcement was a matter of well-understood logic.

After the Korean war, moreover, the vagueness was removed from the list of prisoner responsibilities. Military officials were taken back by what they considered to be deplorable behavior by so many prisoners of war (no one escaped from a camp, or even made a good try). The Korean statistics, actually, were not all that bad — of 7,150 POWs, only 6 per cent were specified as having possibly misbehaved, and slightly more than a dozen were court-martialed — but the military reacted anyway. Dwight Eisenhower, then president, ordered that a specific "Code of Conduct" be drawn up to mandate honor.

The Code, which is still required reading (at least once a year) for every serviceman in the nation, suggests that they not be captured, but if, under "superior force," they are, they should conduct themselves as "God and the United States" would want. The key point: "When questioned, should I become a prisoner of war, I am bound to give only name, rank, service number and date of birth. I will avoid answering further questions to the utmost of my ability. I will make no oral or written statement disloyal to my country or its allies or harmful to their cause."

Clearly, many of the statements out of North Vietnam in recent years would bust this Code of Conduct. Thus, many Americans feel, the offending prisoner should be held responsible.

But will they?

With some discomfort, the Pentagon says it is too early to tell. Key officers in the Defense Department warn that the public should not make any judgments about the prisoners until all are safely home and all the facts are in. "The broadcasts by themselves mean nothing," says one spokesman. "We don't know what the conditions for the statements are. We don't know if they are being forced to make them. We just don't know. And until we do we are assuming that our men are handling themselves as expected."

In fact, the military does more than assume the POWs are handling themselves well. "All of our indications point to the fact that they are doing an admirable job." More than 20 prisoners have escaped from the enemy's detention. Most established camps in North Vietnam, according to good information, have set up military-like structures for behavior and activity. And the word from the releasees-escapees has been, except for some instances, that the majority of POWs refuse to cooperate or abet their captors.

Therefore, say authorities, "At present we are not planning or comtemplating charges against anyone. We don't even like to talk about the possibility of charges."

Speculations on the military's part, indeed, would be hazardous. Not only do authorities want the public to keep faith with POWs, but they don't want to risk any further public controversies on the prisoner question. "We know the public is wondering about this," says one civilian in the POW section, "but what can we say, really?" The shrug is understandable. Public sympathies lie with the prisoners, not the Pentagon; and anything said without compassion would be met with an avalanche of contempt. (The Marines did try one former prisoner, a sergeant, for alleged misbehavior, but public criticism was cut short by a rather quick finding of innocence.)

Besides, says another authority, the whole question of right and wrong in Vietnam is murky: "I've read all the statements allegedly made by POWs. I don't like them, but they are no different from what politicians in America are saying every day. I think we have to ask ourselves a hard question: What is treason in war, anyway?"

So. Still another dilemma out of the Vietnam era. What, indeed, is treason in this war? Should a POW, aching with years of captivity, be held answerable when millions of others, living free, are not? And on the other hand is a military without rules, and the right to enforce them, a military at all? Even when the war ends, it appears, its distressing agonies are likely to continue in this weary, weary nation.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

When questioned, should I become a prisoner of war, I am bound to give only name, rank, service number and date of birth. I will avoid answering further questions to the utmost of my ability. I will make no oral or written statement disloyal to my country and its allies or harmful to their cause.

THE ISSUES OF THE 1972 CAMPAIGN

Environment

REPUBLICANS

We call upon the Congress to act promptly on the President's environmental proposals still stalled there—more than 20 in all.

We pledge a workable balance between a growing economy and environmental protection. We will resolve the conflicts sensibly within that framework.

We commit ourselves to comprehensive pollution control laws, vigorous implementation of those laws, and rigorous research into the technological problems of pollution control.

DEMOCRATS

Strict standards and vigorous prosecution to prevent pollution by private as well as public projects.

Where appropriate, taxes to be levied on pollution to provide industry with an incentive to clean up.

We must enforce the strict emission requirements on all pollution sources set under the 1970 Clean Air Act.

We must support the establishment of a policy of no harmful discharge into our waters by 1985.

Windsor Rally Is Announced By Democrats

(Democrat-Capital Service)

WINDSOR — A large turnout is expected for a Democratic rally and free fish fry at 7 p.m. Wednesday at the American Legion Hall here.

The principal speaker will be Ed Dowd, Democratic candidate for governor. Also appearing on the program will be Congressman William Randall; LeRoy Schantz, gubernatorial candidate in the August primary election; William Cason, state senator; and Curt Davidson, state representative from the 117th District.

Arrangements for the rally were made by a committee headed by Harold Lee Gehrig and Charlene Beck, Windsor township committeeman and committeewoman. Also helping in the sponsorship are committees from the Tebo and Springfield townships in the Windsor area. The public is invited.

'Lay Ministers' Play Active Roles

By RON JENNINGS
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

In a year when a former Methodist lay preacher (George McGovern) is running for the Presidency, an ordained Episcopalian clergyman (John Danforth) is campaigning for re-election as Missouri attorney general, and a Christian Church minister (James Spainhower) is vying for state treasurer, the matter of "pulpip politics" has perhaps been brought into sharper focus for voters across the state than ever before.

Although many of them may not realize it, Sedalians are being served in city governmental circles by two former ministers.

While not having given a sermon in over a year, Mayor Jerry Jones spoke highly of his role as a lay Methodist preacher.

"This was something I did prior to becoming so busy politically, although I have continued to remain active in other capacities," Jones said. "You meet people on a completely different set of circumstances than you do in the normal workaday world or in government ... it's refreshing."

Jones says he has "made references in some sermons to personal involvement. I feel both areas are important but the sermons I've written deal mainly with people reaffirming their faith and coming to Christ. I've always been emphasizing bringing outsiders to Christ and not sending Christians out into politics."

Economic Development Director Bill Hall, unlike Jones, was a full time Methodist pastor in the mid-1950's, but later assumed the position on a "fill-in basis" and has preached in several area churches since coming to Sedalia in 1965.

"I certainly don't see that there is any conflict of interest," Hall said. "They both have their place in our society."

In his opinion, Hall said, "I'm serving the public in both capacities. I certainly feel comfortable in both positions."

One local public servant has been unable to avoid public recognition of his position as a pastor. The Rev. Marvin Albright is a full-time minister and director of the Sedalia Housing Authority.

In a recent interview, Mr. Albright described his "participatory ministry."

"I certainly don't feel it's affected my regular ministry to any extent," Mr. Albright said. "In fact, I would say it helped me. Ministering is aiding people and you certainly can't do that by just standing in front of a pulpit ... you've got to be involved."

Although indicating he would not stress it in his sermons, Mr. Albright said he is encouraging his congregation to be at the polls Nov. 7 in a church newsletter message.

"I feel it very important that Christians be concerned in the political arena," Mr. Albright continued. "Church people have a very important role to play in keeping a democracy going."

The Rev. Robert Magee, pastor of the First Christian Church, holds no elective or appointed governmental post but he has been concerned in political affairs this year, he said.

In a Democrat-Capital interview, Mr. Magee stressed the importance of what he termed "Christian citizenship" which he feels "is basic to good government because government is no better than the people who run it."

The best embodiment of "Christian citizenship," Mr. Magee feels, is the vigorous recruitment "of men of honesty and integrity to run for office irregardless of their party label."

"It's not a question of partisanship, but rather of committment," he said. He added he is centering a sermon around the subject Nov. 5.

"Our nation's history has always been tied to its religious heritage," he continued. "We are indeed one nation under God. The constitution of the United States was drawn from the constitution of the Presbyterian Church."

Like Mr. Albright, Mr. Magee considers it vital for Christians to be concerned in a political and governmental sense.

"I do believe it is the responsibility of every Christian to be involved in his country's welfare and to be responsible to our fellow man. I believe it's basic to the Christian belief," he said.

To The Voters of Pettis County

During the recent Primary Campaign, there was a select few who did everything they could to hurt my being renominated to my office. These few people are the ones who think taxes are wonderful as long as someone else pays them. There are three reasons why they are continuing this into the General Election.

1. Because I will not go all over Sedalia and the rural area and raise taxes on real estate.
2. Because I would not raise the Merchants Ad Valorem Tax assessment.
3. Because I would not raise the personal tax on the companies we have in Sedalia and the rural area.

I will answer them accordingly.

It would be pathetic if an assessor would do this or let this happen to the people he represents. Pettis County has needed a reassessment for 90 years. I will not raise a persons real estate assessment only on new construction and transfer of property, or until we become a second class county and can have a reassessment where everyone can be treated fairly on an equal basis. Secondly, our Merchants and Manufacturers in Sedalia and Pettis County can not pay any more taxes than they are now paying. I know for a fact if these people were to pay more taxes, some of them would have to close their doors.

Third, We ought to be thankful we have as many companies in Pettis County as we have now. A committee has done everything they could do to get them here and I am not going to be instrumental in assessing them right out of Pettis County. They hire Pettis Countians and this is what we need desperately. In the past I have stated my feelings on these subjects, and I will repeat them again. I will not raise anyone's real estate taxes, only on new construction and transfer of property, or until we become a second class county and can have a reassessment from an outside company when everyone will be treated honestly and fairly and on a just basis. I hope my views on these important issues coincide with yours, and that you may give me your vote and support November 7, 1972.

FBI Admits Probe of Congressmen

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI, which never before had acknowledged that it maintained files on Congress members and candidates, now says that it had been doing so for 22 years but stopped the practice Friday.

"Such a program is not essential to FBI operations," said Acting Director L. Patrick Gray III as he ordered an end to it.

"I believe it is obvious that it can be misinterpreted easily as a program to investigate congressmen and congressional candidates," he added in the statement released to newsmen. "Therefore, I have decided to terminate this program as of today."

Gray said that, although the agency had maintained files of biographical data on congressional members and candidates, it had not conducted full-fledged investigations of them.

The FBI came under attack during the last years of the late J. Edgar Hoover's reign for allegedly tapping telephones of some congressmen or investigating them in other ways.

The FBI denied it. And Gray, in interviews shortly after he was appointed acting director, said:

"I have not found any evidence whatsoever of the existence of secret files or political dossiers."

Friday, though, Gray said an incident in Ohio brought to his attention the fact that the FBI since 1950 had compiled data on Congress members and candidates from newspapers, magazines, campaign literature and various reference publications.

The Ohio incident involved an FBI agent in Lorain County, who had been making inquiries about the background of John M. Ryan, Democratic candidate for Congress in Ohio's 13th district.

Gray said the agent's inquiries "were not authorized and were in violation of specific instructions that the gathering of information on congressional candidates is to be made from readily available published sources only, and not through any outside inquiries."

The FBI, he added, "is conducting an internal administrative investigation of this agent's actions to determine why this instruction was not followed."

The agent, Lee Kias, was functioning "as an interested voter" in asking about Ryan, said John Burns, agent in charge of the Cleveland FBI office.

Ryan, a realtor, is running against Republican incumbent Charles A. Mosher.

The initial purpose of the data collection, Gray said, "was to provide briefing material for FBI officials who might desire it before making a call on a newly elected congressman or senator."

"In short, the routine was a part of the congressional relations program of the FBI."

Candidates Speak At GOP Rally

(Democrat-Capital Service)

GREEN RIDGE — Republican candidates for county and state offices met with residents here Friday in the Green Ridge High School gymnasium to present their programs. The school band provided musical entertainment at the rally.

John Ryan, running unopposed for state senator, was the principle speaker at the rally, introducing the other candidates.

Those speaking and their topics were:

Dr. Gus Salley, Republican candidate for state representative from the 117th district spoke of a necessity for a complete change in the Missouri legislature; Pete Stohr, state representative hopeful in the 113th district made brief remarks promising an honest effort on his part; Harry Walch, running for presiding judge of the county court, was plauded by Ryan for his record of civic service; Fred Kraft, eastern district judge candidate spoke briefly; John Bluhm, candidate for western judge talked on the badly needed repairs at the court house, county roads and old age services.

Bill McCune, running for assessor, promised to save the county money by eliminating a deputy assessor, a savings, he said, of $4,000 annually for the next four years.

Dr. James Houchens, coroner candidate, reviewed his law enforcement and investigative background in noting the duties of the coroner and Tom Miller, recorder of deeds candidate, promised to process documents through that office in shorter time.

Film Series Planned By Regional Library

The "Films for Fun" series of Boonslick Regional Library will present a "Halloween Happening" from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Monday. Virginia Corley, adult services librarian, will show three films especially chosen with the party theme.

School-age children and adults are invited and asked to wear costumes to further the atmosphere while watching "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," "Rapunzel" and the "Red Balloon." Cider and apples will be served as refreshments.

In Ranks

Airman Paul R. Allain, son of Robert C. Allain, Pilot Grove, has been assigned to Lowry AFB, Colo., after completing Air Force basic training.

During his six weeks at the Air Training Command's Lackland AFB, Tex., he studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special instruction in human relations. He has been assigned to the Technical Training Center at Lowry for specialized training in the munitions and weapons maintenance field.

Allain is a 1972 graduate of Otterville High School.

Airman Allen D. Crider, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Crider, Cole Camp, has graduated at Sheppard AFB, Tex., from the U.S. Air Force medical supply specialist course conducted by the Air Training Command.

The airman, who was trained to distribute medical supplies and equipment, is being assigned to the USAF Hospital at Blytheville AFB, Ark., for duty.

He is a 1972 graduate of Benton County R-I High School.

INSTRUCTIONS TO VOTERS

A vote for names of candidates for president and vice-president is a vote for the electors of that party, the names of whom are on file with the secretary of state.

On receipt of his ballot the voter shall forthwith, and without leaving the enclosed space, retire alone to one of the voting booths provided, and shall prepare his ballot for voting in the following manner:

STRAIGHT TICKET

Should the voter desire to vote a "straight" party ticket he shall place a cross (X) mark in the circle immediately below the party name.

SPLIT TICKET

If the voter desires to vote for one or more candidates on more than one party ticket, by voting what is commonly called a "split ticket" he may place a cross (X) mark in the circle immediately below one party name and mark cross (X) marks in the squares at the left of the names of candidates on other tickets for whom he wishes to vote.

Where there are two or more candidates for like office in a group, a cross (X) mark in the square to the left of a candidate's name automatically votes against the candidate whose name appears within the same horizontal lines in the column under the circle in which appears the cross (X) mark, unless the voter indicates another candidate to be voted against by drawing a line through such candidate's name.

WRITE-INS

If the voter desires to vote for one or more candidates whose name or names do not appear on the printed ballot he may do so by drawing a line through the printed name of candidate for such office, and writing below such canceled name the name of person for whom he desires to vote, and placing a cross mark in the square at the left of such name. The squares so marked shall take precedence over the cross marked in the circle.

All candidates of the party whose circle is marked shall be counted as voted for excepting where squares are crossed preceding the names of the candidates in other columns. If two or more candidates for the same office are thus designated, neither shall be counted. If the cross (X) is not placed in the circle immediately below the party name at the head of the column, but does appear in the squares opposite the various candidates' names, then only these names shall be counted for, and none other. A cross (X) mark is any line crossing any other line at any angle within the voting space, and no ballot shall be declared void because a cross (X) mark therein is irregular in form.

It is unlawful to deface or tear a ballot in any manner or to erase any printed name (except as provided above in this section), figure, word or letter therefrom, or to erase any mark made thereon by the voter, or to enclose in the folded ballot any other paper or any article. If the voter defaces or tears a ballot, or wrongly marks the name or makes an erasure therein, he may obtain one additional ballot on returning to a judge in charge of the ballots the one so defaced or wrongly marked. He shall at once mark and vote the ballot and the spoiled ballot shall be marked "void" in the voter's presence. A person who does not vote a ballot delivered to him shall, before leaving the polling place, return the unvoted ballot to the judges having charge of the ballots.

A ballot placed in the ballot box without any marks shall not be counted. Ballots shall be counted only for the person for whom the marks thereon are applicable; when a voter places a mark against two or more names for the same office, and only one candidate is to be chosen for the office, none of the candidates is deemed to have been voted for and the ballot shall not be counted for either candidate.

Before leaving the booth the voter shall fold his ballot in such a manner as to conceal his marks thereon. He shall mark his ballot without undue delay. He shall then deposit his ballot in the ballot box being used at that time and shall quit and leave the enclosed place as soon as possible.

Mennonite Farmer Is Forced To Sell

READING, Pa. (AP)—The Mennonites are an old world sect whose legacy often is land.

In Berks County, that legacy could be priced out of existence, a threat that has caused a handfull of Mennonites near here to look to the West for their future.

"The farmer is being pushed out," explains Titus R. Martin, a 38-year-old Mennonite minister who is taking his wife, four sons and two daughters to Missouri.

"A lot of young people like to farm," he says, "but it's too expensive for them in the East."

Martin just sold his 86-acre dairy farm for $75,000, or $872 an acre. He and another farmer are buying an 825-acre plot in Missouri—across the Mississippi River from Quincy, Ill.—for $140,000, or about $167 an acre.

Judge Is Indicted By Jury

ST. LOUIS (AP) — City Court Judge Nathan Young stepped down from the bench Friday immediately after being indicted for neglect of duty in connection with a grand jury probe of ticket fixing in traffic cases.

Young, who was appointed by Mayor A. J. Cervantes in 1965, asked the mayor for a leave of absence and it was granted. Cervantes will appoint a provisional judge to take over for Young next week.

The judge was cited on a misdemeanor for accepting pleas by persons not actually in court and not verifying that guilty pleas were made voluntarily.

Also indicted on misdemeanors, for misconduct in office, were two of the judge's deputies, Tom Wright and John Dilberto. They were accused of accepting fines but not turning them over to the city.

A bail bondsman, Milton Walton, was charged with a felony for alleged perjury before the circuit court grand jury. The jury began its probe after a series of articles appeared in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat outlining irregularities in handling traffic court cases.

I.O.O.F. Lodge Neapolis No. 153, will meet in regular session on Tuesday, Oct. 31st, at 8 p.m. at 13th and Montgomery. All members are urged to be present.

See the 1973 LINCOLN-MERCURY CARS

There's a complete line of smart, new, better built cars at the sign of the cat.

Not shown: Mercury Monterey, the medium-priced car that's built better to ride better. And Capri, the sexy European.

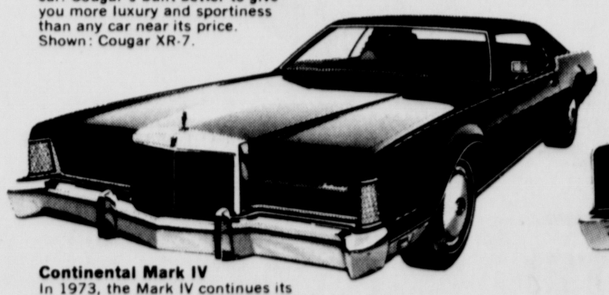
See a whole new family of wagons, too, the kind only Mercury could build.

Mercury Marquis
Completely restyled. Steel-belted radials standard. Tests show that the average driver can expect 40,000 miles of tread wear from these tires under normal driving conditions. Shown: Marquis Brougham.

Mercury Montego
Personal size, but with the luxurious ride of a big car. Uses same type suspension system as Lincoln-Mercury's most expensive cars. Shown: Montego MX Brougham.

Mercury Cougar
The cat is not like anybody else's car. Cougar's built better to give you more luxury and sportiness than any car near its price. Shown: Cougar XR-7.

Mercury Comet
One tough little car, now available with fine car options usually found only in expensive cars. Comet. Built better to last longer.



Continental Mark IV
In 1973, the Mark IV continues its tradition of offering as standard equipment many luxury features, including Sure-Track anti-skid braking, and 6-way Twin Comfort Lounge Seats.

Lincoln Continental
Designed to ride and handle even better than our '72s. Which, in a test, rode and handled even better than the other make of luxury car. It is a very good year.

MERCURY LINCOLN

All Mercurys illustrated with optional whitewalls and bumper rub strip. Lincoln Continental shown with optional wheel covers and vinyl roof. 1973 cars must meet Federal emissions standards before sale.

Catholic Priest-Congressman is Something Else

By TOM TIEDE

BROOKLINE, Mass. — (NEA) — Father Robert Drinan would have made a lousy parish priest. He is impatient, abrasive and cold as a glass eye. His features are harsh, his manner unpredictable, his personality stunted. "I have the feeling," says one who knows him well, "that in the confessional he might turn to me and say: 'God Almighty, man, is that all? Get out of here, you're wasting my time.'"

But as a United States congressman, Bob Drinan is something else. Dedicated, energetic, clean, compassionate, knowledgeable — two years after taking office as the first Catholic priest elected to the House of Representatives, Father Drinan is the complete legislator; some believe he's the finest lawmaker in the nation.

His record, say colleagues and some critics alike, is a marvel of competence. In Congress he has voted 97 per cent of the time, has become (as a freshman) one of the most influential members of the Eastern liberal block, and has earned the highest accolade (100 per cent pure) from such Congress watchers as Americans for Democratic Action, Consumer Federation of America and the League of Women Voters.

Back home in Massachusetts' 4th District, the priest's involvement is just as admirable. He is home every weekend, usually recording constituent complaints through storefront listening posts (one recent problem, from a woman who was having trouble collecting medical insurance for a retarded son, was solved when Drinan convinced the agency to fork over $2,600 in retroactive payments). His $42,500 congressional salary is recycled back to the voters through his office staff (one version has it that the salary goes to pay "above and beyond" staffers who have been hired to work with district officials seeking federal aid). Drinan's office keeps 238,000 voters informed of each of the congressman's votes, spreads the word on district problems via a privately funded newsletter (on recycled paper, of course), and books the priest into every meeting hall, every high school auditorium, every sewing circle tea where his presence is requested.

"He's a real treasure," says one of his aides, "and he should be dipped in bronze. At a time when more and more people are getting turned off by the antics of their politicians, this guy is almost too good to be true. Just the other night, for instance, we held an important news conference to announce that Sen. Abraham Ribicoff (D-Conn.) had endorsed our man. Well, Ribicoff felt the thing was important enough to fly up here on a Thursday evening even though Congress hadn't adjourned. But Drinan? He wouldn't miss a vote in the House if Raquel Welch was standing outside stripped to the waist. Rather than come up for the endorsement and bask in the limelight, he stayed on in Washington, for God sakes, to vote on the highway bill."

Not everybody, of course, gushes over the Boston area priest-legislator. His opponent this November, liberal Republican Martin Linsky, feels Drinan votes more for his record than he does for his constituents. Many of the constituents, also, are irked by what they consider to be a radical strain in the former Jesuit college instructor. "I voted for him in 1970 because he was against the war," says a Brookline storekeeper, "but now I think he's too locked up with the lunatic fringe. He never passes up a chance to score the President. You don't ever hear him say much good about the country. And look at his campaign headquarters — all kids. Now I like kids, but, pardon me, I don't think we should let them take over."

Aside from this, many voters feel Drinan is a bit of a turncoat. The 4th District is mostly Catholic (although becoming increasingly Jewish) and there still lingers the sentiment that priests should stick to the pulpit. "It's not right," says one woman, "that the Father should be mixed up in dirty political business. All those shady deals and all. He took a vow of honesty, didn't he? How can he be in Congress?"

For his part, Drinan, 51, mostly bald, is concerned only with some of the criticism against him. He says he ignores the charges that he's not representative of the voter opinion in his district ("I can't think of many areas where the voters and I disagree"). But he does dwell occasionally on the controversial aspect of a good priest getting mixed up in bad politics. He says politics, really, isn't all scum. Frustrating maybe. Amorphous and confusing, of course. But not so dirty as to stain everyone it touches:

"Someone once asked me, right out, if I had ever made a vote in Congress that I was ashamed of. I said no. And that's true. I haven't. I'm not influenced by outside interests. I vote as I see it. I remember one time someone wanted me to change my vote on a procedural matter. I was a small thing and it really didn't make much difference how I voted. But I didn't change it. I just wouldn't do that."

Drinan suggests there are about 100 other House members who are equally principled, thus allowing nonpartisan decency to survive at high government levels.

So, after nearly two years of it, in clerical collar, Father Drinan is campaigning for more of the same. Some here say it's a thirst for power. Others insist he is stimulated by a desire to continue his personal congressional clean-up. Whatever his motives, voters of this state's 4th District are subject once again to what still is a novelty: a priest turned politician. Clad in black, he pumps hands, kisses babies (but seldom women), hands out leaflets, the whole bit. "Father," asks a man on the street, seriously, "where in hell do you stand on this abortion thing?"

The polls indicate he is a 10-point favorite. His people say he'd have to be arrested for indecent exposure to lose. "I'm sure he'll be reelected," says a fellow priest, "because we need someone down there praying for the Congress." Also because, adds a voter, "Given the Congress, we need someone down there praying for the country."

Tentative Agreement With UAW

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Tentative agreement has been reached in a dispute between General Motors and the United Auto Workers Union over production standards and layoffs at the St. Louis plant.

A company spokesman said the agreement Friday night settles "the major issues in dispute." He declined to comment on the pact, pending the outcome of a union ratification meeting scheduled next Wednesday.

UAW Local 25 delayed a strike set for midnight Thursday, saying "significant progress" was being made.

The union's 8,500 members left the job Oct. 13 to protest what it said was almost 1,400 layoffs since GM merged its Chevrolet and Fisher Body assembly lines. The local returned to work Oct. 17 while negotiations continued.

Study Is For Department

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Health, Education and Welfare says it will move quickly to end the widely criticized Alabama syphilis study.

The department agreed to the immediate termination recommended Friday by a special panel set up by HEW to investigate the 40-year syphilis experiment known as the Tuskegee Study.

The nine-member citizens panel also recommended a thorough physical examination for all survivors of the study followed by full medical treatment.

During the Tuskegee Study, begun in 1932 by the U.S. Public Health Service in rural Macon County, Ala., more than 430 black men who had syphilis never received treatment for it in order that doctors could determine through eventual autopsies what damage the disease did to the men's bodies.

The experiment continued even after penicillin became known as a safe, effective cure for syphilis.

At least 28, and possibly as many as 100, of the study participants died as a direct result of untreated syphilis.

"We will do everything within our power to implement this first recommendation as rapidly as possible," said Dr. Merlin K. DuVal, assistant HEW secretary for health and scientific affairs, after receiving the panel's report.

However, HEW spokesmen said that, although the panel's recommendations had been accepted, the means of implementing them had not been worked out.

The panel's report said that 125 of the participants in the study still are alive, 75 men from the group of untreated syphilitics and 50 men, presumably free of the disease, who were used as controls.

Sees Big Task Ahead for Navy

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — The commander of the Pacific fleet says the U.S. Navy has "much to do" to calm racial tensions that led to recent disorders aboard two ships.

Clarey said he felt "deep concern" over the racial disturbances aboard the aircraft carrier Kitty Hawk and the oiler Hassayampa.

"We have much to do in the Pacific fleet to correct the situation," he said.

Progress Is Noted

Two-year-old John Lewis, Charleston, S.C., born with a life-threatening kidney problem that kept his legs so tiny and wobbly he couldn't even walk during the first 23 months of his life, is now making up for lost time thanks to a kidney transplant performed in Minneapolis recently. Since the operation John has gained five pounds and grown nearly two inches and his mother says his energy is boundless. (UPI)

Progress Obvious By Kissinger's Speech

WASHINGTON (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger's picture of peace at hand clearly etches the long leap forward in U.S.-North Vietnamese negotiations while leaving fuzzy the difficulties still in the way of a final settlement.

Obviously Hanoi's "firm demand" Wednesday that the proposed peace deal be signed Oct. 31 can hardly be met, given Kissinger's estimate that several days' negotiating will still be needed at a final secret session yet to be scheduled.

Presumably the North Vietnamese will have to relent on their deadline, and not toss in some troublesome new conditions, to fulfill the optimistic scenario of the U.S. presidential adviser.

Then there is South Vietnam's President Nguyen Van Thieu, who reaffirmed his strongly anticommunist stand in a two-hour speech Tuesday following lengthy conferences with Kissinger. The two agreed on much but differences admittedly remain.

Kissinger's plan is to get the South Vietnamese ally lined up in time for a Saigon signature jointly with America's on the peace agreement.

He will also have to persuade the North Vietnamese to let Saigon sign. Hanoi wants only a U.S. signature in behalf of the Thieu government, which the communists contend is a U.S. stooge.

The exact stand-still cease-fire areas will have to be delineated, details worked out for prompt on-the-spot policing by international supervisors, and arrangements developed for cease-fires in neighboring Laos and Cambodia.

One major military demand publicly repeated by Thieu Tuesday was for a North Vietnamese pullback. "If they want U.S. troops to withdraw they must also withdraw their troops back to the North," he said.

The nine-point plan as disclosed by Hanoi and Washington Thursday does not call for withdrawal of North Vietnamese forces, which Hanoi has never formally admitted are in the South.

U.S. officials contend this matter is dealt with, however, by a ban against further infiltration and by provision for negotiating reduction of opposing forces in the South after the cease-fire.

On the gut political issue—who will rule in Saigon—U.S. officials expect more clashing statements from rival Vietnamese leaders as secret negotiations head into the hoped-for final lap.

A prime communist public demand has been for ouster of Thieu and installation of a three-party coalition government. Thieu has been equally set against such a political solution.

The nine-point plan, in the U.S. view, is so worded that each side can point to something in it to sustain a claim that the agreement is no giveaway.

The political clause, according to Hanoi's summary, provides for a "'Council of National Reconciliation and National Concord,' consisting of three equal segments," to supervise and urge the Saigon government and the Viet Cong to carry out the signed agreements and organize general elections.

Kissinger says the Vietnamese text of the proposed agreement may have to be reworded to make clear the allies don't see the council "as anything comparable to a coalition government."

He hopes Thieu will rate it as similar to the election commission already agreed to by the allies in their peace proposal made public last January.

Even with the signing of a peace agreement, some here wonder whether the proposed elections will actually take place. The two South Vietnamese sides are supposed to jointly solve the country's internal problems, if they can, within three months after the cease-fire.

Analysts here figure that in a South Vietnam-wide election the communists might get only 15 per cent of the vote and therefore may prefer to seek a governmental role by negotiation.

Committees Late Filing Statements

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two committees which have funneled large amounts of money into President Nixon's re-election campaign have failed to file registration statements in apparent violation of federal law.

Examination of hundreds of campaign financial reports pouring into the General Accounting Office also shows a $25,000 loan to Democratic Presidential candidate George McGovern from a secretary who refused to say how a secretary could afford such a loan or whether the money was hers.

The Republican Support Committee of Los Angeles loaned $161,500 to the California Finance Committee to Re-elect the President on Sept. 13, reports to the GAO show.

The Executive Club of the Republican Party of New Jersey is listed as contributing $57,000 in the Sept. 1 to Oct. 16 period to 20 Nixon committees on the state level.

Another $12,000 was contributed to four national Nixon committees during the same period by William B. Colsey III who lists the same Trenton, N. J., post office box as the Executive Club.

Neither registration statements nor reports of over-$100 contributors could be found for the Republican Support Committee or the Executive Club in GAO records going back to April 7 when a new election law requiring full campaign finance disclosure went into effect.

Under the new law any political committee which anticipates receiving or making contributions or loans exceeding $1,000 to a national candidate during the calender year must register with the GAO within 90 days of organizing.

It also must report quarterly and on the 15th and 5th days before a primary or general election all expenditures, loans or contributions over $100.

Colsey, a Mt. Holly, N. J., lawyer, could not be reached by telephone. A New Jersey newspaper quoted Colsey last June as saying the Executive Club received contributions from business and professional leaders.

The address for the Republican Support Committee was listed as in care of Asa Call at 523 W. 6th St., Los Angeles. Call, who personally gave Nixon $10,000 earlier this year, is chairman of Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Co., which is located at the same address.

Two telephone calls to his office, to ask about the absence of the club's registration or report, went unanswered.

On the McGovern side, a $25,000 loan was received by McGovern for President, Inc., of Washington from a San Francisco secretary who in two telephone interviews repeatedly refused to say whether the money was hers or how a secretary could afford such an outlay.

"I don't have to answer that," said Mrs. Dorcas Taylor. Later she said, "This isn't any of your business."

Colorado's 34 institutions of higher learning had a combined student enrollment of just under 127,000 last fall.

Federal Agents Seeking Mysterious 'Mr. Smith'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal agents are looking into the case of the mysterious "Mr. Smith" who tried to lead details of the U.S.-Soviet wheat deal to a trade magazine before the size of the sale became public.

His long-distance tips — from London to Kansas City — went to Morton Sosland, editor of Milling & Baking News, who at first discounted them because he considered them fantastic. But as details of the wheat deal became generally known, much of the caller's information was verified.

Magazine officials Thursday said federal agents interviewed Sosland a few days before he published an account of "Mr. Smith's" calls on Oct. 3.

About $1 billion worth of U.S. grain, mostly wheat, was sold to the Russians this year. Sen. George McGovern and others have said the Agriculture Department withheld information from farmers, who sold grain at lower prices than they could have obtained had they waited until the market went up because of the huge sales.

Two officials of the magazine, who asked not to be identified by name, said in a telephone interview that a Central Intelligence Agency investigator had visited with Sosland once before publication of the article and that FBI agents had been in the office "several times," but not in recent days.

Sosland's article said a series of telephone calls, beginning July 17 before the size of the wheat deal was generally known, was received from a man who initially identified himself as "John Smith" of the London Financial Times.

Sosland found out the London newspaper did not employ "Smith" and the caller told Sosland he was a grain spy.

Sosland said that for nearly a month in successive calls, "Smith" provided tips pointing to a much larger sale than was publicly known at the time.

A week ago, Rep. Roman C. Puckinski, D-Ill., said the calls possibly were made by an Agriculture Department employe "with a conscience," he added that the department held back earlier CIA reports indicating serious crop shortages in Russia, thus pointing logically to a larger wheat sale.

In all, the United States sold more than 400 million bushels of wheat to the Soviets this year through private dealings by U.S. grain companies.

Acapulco was founded in 1530.

Looks Like a Year For Republicans in Iowa Elections

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — After Iowa's primary election in August, Iowa State University political scientist Charles Wiggins said it "looks like a Republican year." And that is how the upcoming election indeed looks.

President Nixon appears to hold a strong edge over Democrat George McGovern—and may do even better than in 1968, when Iowans gave Nixon 142,507 votes more than Democrat Hubert Humphrey.

At the state Capitol, Republican Gov. Robert Ray is expected to win almost hands down over former State Treasurer Paul Franzenburg.

Sen. Jack Miller, R-Iowa, is believed heading for a narrower victory over Democrat Dick Clark, who walked 1,313 miles across Iowa last summer in his campaign and has since pledged to visit every college campus in the state. If Miller wins, it will be his third term.

In addition to a full list of top state officers and six congressmen, Iowans will for the first time elect all 150 members of the legislature, now undoubtedly the most closely apportioned in the United States because of a reapportionment plan imposed by the Iowa Supreme Court.

Many political observers early in September were predicting a Republican landslide in Iowa of the proportions of the 1964 Democratic avalanche which swept all the state offices and left Rep. H. R. Gross of Waterloo the only Republican survivor among seven congressmen.

While most still are looking for a substantial Republican victory, they aren't now predicting a landslide of that magnitude.

Democratic Sen. Harold Hughes is just about alone in forecasting a startling turnaround that will carry the state for McGovern. He bases his prediction on what he calls the repugnance Iowans feel for corruption in government, citing the Watergate affair and alleged political espionage in support of his contention that the Nixon administration is "the most corrupt in history."

Soundings by others, however, reveal general public apathy over the corruption charges and there is little in poll results to bear out Hughes' prediction.

The latest Des Moines Register and Tribune Iowa Poll, which has often accurately foretold election results in the past, showed Nixon favored by 60 per cent of the voters to only 27 per cent for McGovern, and Ray with a 61-24 per cent advantage over Franzenburg in mid-October.

A similar poll taken Sept. 22-24 showed Nixon ahead of McGovern 54-32 and Ray leading Franzenburg 64-29.

There were indications, however, that some Iowans might be having second thoughts about their voting intentions.

While the September poll showed 6 per cent undecided between Nixon-McGovern and 5 per cent undecided in the Ray-Franzenburg contest, the September counts showed 12 per cent undecided in the presidential and 15 per cent undecided in the gubernatorial races.

The poll director, Glenn Roberts, said this may be partly accounted for by an easing of the dissatisfaction many Democrats had felt toward McGovern over the "Eagleton affair."

The "dumping" of Sen. Thomas Eagleton of Missouri as vice presidential candidate disenchanted some young people with McGovern, but some now are returning to the fold, or thinking about it, Roberts explained.

The Eagleton incident undeniably cost McGovern some of his early support among young people, and the trend is reflected in polls taken by student newspapers at the University of Iowa and Iowa State University.

The Daily Iowan showed McGovern with support of 54 per cent to Nixon's 28 per cent of the voters on the University of Iowa campus in mid-October, but a similar poll in March gave McGovern a 66-30 edge.

The Iowa State Daily, in a poll printed last week, found students there reflecting the Republican bias of the state as a whole, though by a lesser margin. It showed 52 per cent of the students favored Nixon and 38 per cent McGovern.

All of Iowa's seven incumbent congressmen are seeking re-election, two of them in the southern Iowa 4th District where Republican Rep. John Kyl and Democratic incumbent Neal Smith were thrown together by redistricting.

Smith has pinned his hopes for re-election on the normally strong Democratic leaning of Des Moines and Polk County, which has more than 60 per cent of the district's total population.

Kyl, however, has been campaigning hard for Polk County votes as well as the rest of the district which he represented before the redistricting on the basis of the 1970 census.

He has Democratic leaders worried, especially since the party's traditional strength in Wapello County, second most populous in the district, appears to have waned because of lukewarm backing for McGovern among labor union members.

The other congressional race sparking most interest is in the 1st District, where Republican Rep. Fred Schwengel is seeking his ninth term in a rematch against Edward Mezvinsky of Iowa City.

Mezvinsky lost to Schwengel by just 765 votes in 1970 and Democrats feel he has an excellent chance to win this year, given the Democratic leanings of the University of Iowa students. Both Schwengel and Mezvinsky, an Iowa City lawyer and former administrative assistant to Rep. Smith, have devoted much of their campaigns to wooing the youth vote.

The other Republican incumbents — Reps. H. R. Gross in the 3rd District, William Scherle in the 5th and Wiley Mayne in the 6th — are regarded as safe for re-election.

Democratic Rep. John Culver in the 2nd District is reported to be worried over a strong, well-financed challenge by Theodore Ellsworth, a Dubuque insurance man and state representative.

Ellsworth has been hitting hard at the theme that the 2nd District is getting shortchanged on federal funds. He said the district has been getting only about a fourth of the federal money each of the other congressional districts in Iowa have received.

McGovern made two campaign stops in Iowa previously and has scheduled another appearance Thursday at a University of Iowa rally in Iowa City.

His Iowa campaign manager, Democratic State Committeeman Robert Fulton, says McGovern will be the only presidential candidate in recent history to make more than one campaign visit to Iowa.

Secretary of State Melvin Synhorst, the state commissioner of elections, says there is a good possibility that the voter turnout Nov. 7 could hit a record level. The biggest vote in Iowa ever recorded was 1,273,820 in 1960.

Most observers feel the national issues which McGovern has been hitting—alleged corruption in the Nixon administration, failure to end the Southeast Asia war, charges that news of the Russian grain deal was leaked in advance to the big grain companies, welfare reform and the like—have had little impact in Iowa.

The traditional Republican leanings of agriculture-oriented Iowa instead are strengthened by good farm prices, a bumper corn crop, the recent progress toward an Indochina settlement and prospects of large future grain sales to the Soviet Union and China.

American High School Blends Tradition, New

FREMONT, Calif. (AP) — What could be more patriotic than a school with red, white and blue school colors, an American eagle mascot and the telephone number 796-1776?

What could be more nontraditional than a school with giant pillows on the floor and acid rock music piped in between class periods?

American High School has it all.

In the morning, principal Joe Tranchina hangs his coat on a red, white and blue coat hanger and sips coffee from a mug of the same colors as his secretary briefs him on a red, white and blue phone.

No, Tranchina isn't bent on making 1,270 ultrapatriots. In fact, the students themselves named their new $5 million high school which opened this fall, and chose their own mascot and colors.

"All I'm trying to do is to make the kids a part of the school," Tranchina said in an interview.

"The degree to which we've de-institutionalized the school's setting allows the students to become more involved in the learning process," Tranchina explained. "The positive attitudes from this improved environment make the student a better learner."

Put more simply, the principal's vision of American High was a school which didn't look like a school.

Wall-to-wall carpeting covers all 180,000 square feet of the school building. There are no classrooms as such, only colorful screens between groups of students.

Large fluffy pillows help students relax while in class.

Between classes, music booms out through the public address system.

"We have run the gamut from Bach to the Beatles to acid rock," said Tranchina. "We call it traveling music."

Although Tranchina says the curriculum is standard, keys to the school are "how the students and teachers relate" and interdisciplinary instruction with emphasis on integrating various subjects.

Of the 54 men and women he selected to teach at American High, Tranchina says:

"They were old pros and young people in the profession beginning to feel impersonalization impinging on their teaching. Many saw their vision fit American."

But do the students share their principal's enthusiasm?

"I found the response was very positive," Tranchina said. "One girl told me that she hated to come to school since the fourth grade but now looks forward to school. Parents say that, too."

Wandering Hippo Returned To Home

MEREDITH, N.H. (AP) — A 450-pound baby hippopotamus that John Smith found on his porch at 3 a.m. in the morning has been recaptured and returned to Animal Forest Park, a nearby tourist attraction.

Workmen from the animal park caught up with the escaped hippo in a swamp near Scenic Road at Weirs Beach on Thursday and returned him to captivity.

Smith had doubted that police would believe a call about a hippo on the porch, especially from a man named John Smith.

Senate Control Battle 'Tight'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican and Democratic strategists agree that the battle for Senate control in the 93rd Congress is a tight one with the outcome in some doubt in 19 of the 33 races to be decided Nov. 7.

Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., chairman of the Democratic Senate Campaign Committee, says he is more optimistic about the close races than he was two months ago and is confident his party will remain on top in the Senate.

Sen. Peter H. Dominick, R-Colo., head of the counterpart Republican groups, insists the GOP has the best chance in 18 years to capture the Senate.

The arithmetic seems to favor the Democrats because they have a 10-member margin now and have only 14 seats at stake this fall as against 19 for the Republicans.

This means the GOP would have to win 24 contests, for a net gain of five, to take Senate control. The dominant party holds all committee chairmanships and governs the flow of legislation.

The present lineup is 54 Democrats and 44 Republicans, plus one member of the New York Conservative Party, James L. Buckley, who voted with the GOP on organization of the Senate last year, and a Virginia independent, Harry F. Byrd Jr., who sided with the Democrats on Senate control.

If Republicans should gain five seats, there would be a tie which the successful candidate for vice president could break in favor of his party.

Campaign strategists cite 10 Democratic seats which could be lost to Republicans, and nine GOP places which seem to be up for grabs.

Republicans say they expect their Senate contenders to ride in on President Nixon's coattails in many of the states.

Several Democratic contenders are tacitly conceding the thrust of this argument by taking steps to keep the presidential campaign of Sen. George McGovern at arm's length from their efforts.

Republican strategists zero in on four contests where they see the best chances of taking over Democratic seats.

In three of these, the incumbent is not running for reelection. They are:

New Mexico—where veteran Sen. Clinton P. Anderson is retiring. Vying for the seat are Democrat Jack Daniels, a banker and insurance executive, and Republican Pete V. Domenici, an attorney.

Oklahoma—where Sen. Fred R. Harris decided not to seek re-election. The Republican nominee is Dewey F. Bartlett, a former governor. His opponent is Rep. Ed Edmondson, a 10-term congressman.

Georgia—where Sen. David H. Gambrell was defeated in the primary. Rep. Fletcher Thompson is the Republican nominee. He is opposed by State Rep. Sam Nunn.

The fourth contest where the Republicans have high hopes is in Rhode Island, where Democratic Sen. Claiborne Pell is trying for a third term against the challenge of John H. Chafee, ex-governor and former Secretary of the Navy.

The Democrats also cite four GOP seats which they consider ripe for plucking and, again, three involve races where the incumbent is leaving the Senate. They are:

South Dakota—where Sen. Karl E. Mundt is retiring after being incapacitated for three years with a stroke. Democratic Rep. James Abourezk is running against State Sen. Robert Hirsch.

Kentucky—where Sen. John S. Cooper is retiring. State Sen. Walter Huddleston is the Democratic nominee; his opponent is former Gov. Louie B. Nunn.

Idaho—where Sen. Len B. Jordan is leaving. William E. Davis, on leave as president of Idaho State University, holds the Democratic nomination; he is opposed by Rep. James A. McClure.

The fourth state listed by the Democrats as offering good prospects for an overturn is Texas. Republican Sen. John G. Tower, is trying for a third term; his opponent is Barefoot Sanders, a former assistant attorney general and White House aide under President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Republicans say they also have good prospects in three other Southern states—Alabama, where Democratic Sen. John Sparkman is challenged by Winton M. Blount, former postmaster general under Nixon; Virginia, where Sen. William B. Spong, Jr., is opposed by Rep. William L. Scott; and North Carolina, where Sen. B. Everett Jordan lost in the Democratic primary to Rep. Nick Galifianakis who now faces Jesse Helms, a television broadcaster.

In Louisiana, the Republican nominee, Ben C. Toledano, appears to have little chance. But the Democratic nominee, former State Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, faces a stiff fight with former Gov. John J. McKeithen, a Democrat running as an independent.

Two other Democratic incumbents who appear in some jeopardy are New Hampshire's Thomas J. McIntyre who is opposed by former Gov. Wesley Powell, and Montana's Lee Metcalf who faces State Sen. Henry S. Hibbard.

Democrats assert they have a chance to defeat five other Republican incumbents.

They are J. Caleb Boggs, Delaware, opposed by 29-year-old Joseph R. Biden Jr., a lawyer; Robert P. Griffin, Michigan, opposed by state Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley; Mark O. Hatfield, Oregon opposed by veteran former Sen. Wayne Morse; Jack Miller, Iowa, opposed by Dick Clark, a former congressional aide; and Margaret Chase Smith, Maine, seeking a fifth term against the challenge of Rep. William D. Hathaway.

Convicted Man Overcomes Prison Sentencing

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Less than 11 years ago a jury was urged to send 19-year-old William Homer Hunter to the gas chamber for killing a Kansas City policeman, with the counsel "it will help society."

Today he is a parole officer aide, working toward his college degree and anticipating the day he can be a field officer with the Missouri Board of Probation and Parole.

On Nov. 29, 1961, J. Arnot Hill, then an assistant Jackson County prosecuting attorney, asked a jury of 12 white men to send the black youth to the gas chamber for killing Officer Arthur Marti.

"The loss of Arthur Marti was a loss to society," Hill said in his summation to the jury. "We can lose this man (Hunter) and it will help society."

Despite the fact that Hunter had never been arrested before and his life had centered on church activities, school and sports, the jury, after two days of deliberation, found him guilty of second-degree murder. He was sentenced to prison for life.

According to Hunter's mother he was timid, often afraid to walk the streets after dark. That impression is supported by former schoolmates who say he was occasionally beaten up and often had his lunch money taken from him.

On Aug. 28, 1961, John Franklin Woods was shot by a member of a rival street gang in Kansas City. Within the hour another youth was shot.

Hunter says, at the urging of friends, he got a pistol and rifle from his grandfather's house and he and three other youths were taking them to a friend's house when an unmarked police car pulled to the curb.

"As soon as the car came into sight, someone, I forget who, threw the rifle into some bushes," Hunter said. "The car pulled to the curb and this man jumped out and ordered us to get up against the car. "I had the pistol, and when I thought he wasn't looking I tried to throw it under the car. He saw me, told me to stop, then started hitting me over the head with his pistol.

"We wrestled for the gun and it went off."

On Jan. 26, 1962, William Homer "Butch" Hunter arrived at the Missouri State Penitentiary in Jefferson City, a prison a few years later that would be described as the "bloodiest 47 acres in America."

It was here where men were killed for packs of cigarettes that Hunter would have to try to keep his religious convictions and find a purpose to life despite the knowledge "cop killers" serve more time on a life sentence than others.

"I was aware of what was going on and after you see enough stabbings—many of them over insignificant matters—you become cautious," Hunter says. "On the other hand the things I was involved in didn't bring me into contact with those people.

"I never did become paranoid like a lot of people. I was too involved with doing my own thing."

His thing was working as clerk in the Protestant chapel, taking Bible courses, directing the choir, participating in group counseling, taking a Dale Carnegie course and then serving as a graduate assistant. He accumulated 20 hours credit with International Gospel Assemblies toward a bachelor of divinity degree.

When the prison started a dental technician school in 1969, Hunter signed up. Two and a half years later he was supervisor of the dental laboratory, with 1,800 hours credit.

"Even though I was told that I wouldn't get out, that life was life, I always felt that I would get out—that to some degree I could determine my own destiny," Hunter says. "So I continued to try to better myself and to avoid falling into the general rut that a lot of long-timers fall into."

One of Hunter's firmest supporters is the Rev. Dr. John M. Swomley, a theologian at St. Paul School of Divinity.

"I always did feel that Butch was innocent of murder in any real sense of the word," Swomley said recently. "Don't get me wrong. He deserved to be punished, but not anywhere as harshly as he was.

"That's why I stood by him while he was in prison, and went before the parole board on his behalf."

On Aug. 24, 1971, after nine years, six months and 28 days, Hunter stepped out of prison. He enrolled at Lincoln University in Jefferson City, where he opted to major in law enforcement.

In January of this year the parole officer aide at the pre-release center resigned. After considering a number of candidates for the job, the parole board asked Hunter if he would take it.

"We feel that inmates about to be released will relate more readily to an ex-inmate," said Ferd N. Sturm, a member of the board. "They know he's been through the same thing, and they'll open up to him in a way that may not be possible with someone who has never been to prison and who, therefore, may not understand the feelings and fears they have."

Hunter spends five days a week at the center, leading group discussions, giving aptitude tests, writing progress reports and looking forward to the day he can be a field officer with the parole board.

Asked if Hunter would be permitted to become one, Sturm said, "If he gets the degree he is working toward, and if he still wants to be a parole officer, there is no reason why he couldn't or shouldn't be accepted."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When there's nothing between you and the pavement but two thin bicycle tires, you notice things—things like flowers, animals and beer cans.

And when you pedal these thin tires 6,200 miles up, down and across the United States, you collect memories.

You remember the 65-year-old cyclist in Louisville, Ken., who weekly pedals the 100 miles to Cincinnati and back.

And the motorist who pulls alongside you on a steep stretch of Rocky Mountain road just to tell you how fast you're coasting. And the kids at every town who beg to join you.

Four cyclists had those experiences as they spent the last 2½ months riding across the United States for St. Jude's Children's Hospital in Memphis, Tenn.

Accompanied by a van and a dune buggy, the four rode 15-mile shifts from Washington, D.C., to Los Angeles, stopping in 60 cities along the way to symbolically collect money raised for the hospital by local groups.

The trip was sponsored by Epsilon Sigma Alpha, a 33,000-member international women's service organization. The cross-country ride was made to publicize the project.

Potato Production Outlook Is Bright

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's potato growers, who sliced production this year after surpluses caused a price slump last season, appear to be headed for better times, according to the Agriculture Department.

The fall potato crop, which accounts for the main supply, is estimated to be 7 per cent smaller than a year ago. Eastern producers expect to have 14 per cent fewer potatoes, and Midwestern growers anticipate a 16 per cent smaller crop.

"However, the West expects to harvest a 1 per cent larger crop," officials said Thursday, "due largely to gains in eastern and central Idaho."

The potato outlook was included in a summarized report on the nation's vegetable situation. The full report will be issued Nov. 3. Although there was no specific price analysis in the summary, officials commented:

"Prices to growers are averaging well above a year earlier, and with smaller supplies for the storage season prices are expected to be substantially higher, particularly in the East and Midwest."

Production of all types of vegetables for processing this fall generally is expected to be about the same as last year, except for "moderately" more tomatoes and the smaller potato crop.

The output of fresh market vegetables, however, will be slightly less than last fall. There will be more lettuce and celery but fewer cabbages and carrots.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Peanuts held in commercial storage as of Sept. 30 were more than 1.61 billion pounds of unshelled or farmers' stock equivalent, down 9 per cent from a year ago, the Agriculture Department said Thursday.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three of the four basic segments of the nation's commercial fertilizer industry reported reduced profits during 1971-72 when compared with sales volumes, says the Fertilizer Institute, a trade organization.

Only businesses which manufacture fertilizer ingredients other than potash—such as phosphates and nitrates—showed an increase during the year ended last June 30, the institute said.

Those averaged net incomes of 5.1 per cent of total sales before interest and taxes, compared with 2.9 per cent the year before.

The figures were released by the institute in a semiannual industry financial report.

Potash-producing companies reported net incomes equal to 18.2 per cent of sales, down from 21.1 in 1970-71.

Manufacturers, who turn out finished fertilizer products, reported profits of 2.8 per cent of sales, down from 3.3 per cent; and retailers dropped to 5.8 from 6.9 per cent, the report said.

The improved profits for firms making ingredients other than potash were attributed in part to larger export sales of phosphate products last fiscal year, the institute said.

Bongo Puts Bite On Police Officer

TITUSVILLE, Fla. (AP) — A six-member jury has found an animal trainer guilty of resisting arrest without violence for telling his pet chimpanzee "Bongo" to bite a police officer.

Rudolph Alexander, 33, of Titusville faces a maximum sentence of one year in the county jail or $1,000 fine.

Alexander was arrested in the early morning hours of Aug. 27 and charged with driving while intoxicated, resisting arrest and failure to drive in a single lane.

Prosecution witnesses said Alexander refused to go to jail without Bongo, a 4-year-old 55-pounder, but the pet monkey was having no part of the squad car driven by Patrolman Mark Reed.

Alexander told Bongo to bite the officer and "kill him," witnesses said.

Bongo took the stand Thursday and was given the same instructions regarding Asst. Brevard County Solicitor Lou Cinfrogna.

However, Bongo merely rolled over a couple of times and back-flipped into the prosecutor's lap.

The jury decided against Alexander after 2½ hours of deliberation and Magistrate Robert B. McGregor delayed sentencing.

Earlier Alexander negotiated a gulty plea on a reckless driving charge and faces 90 days in jail or a $500 fine on that count.

FLOATING FIBERGLAS

NEW YORK (AP) — The British have launched the world's first plastic warship, the 153-foot mine hunter HMS Wilton.

The ship was made of 65 tons or 100,000 yards of woven Fiberglas combined with polyester resin. The same materials are used in many of today's pleasure boats.

Leonard: Deforests School Radio, Chicago two years Bryant Stratton School of Business, Boston, Mass.

Occupation

Bond: State Auditor of Missouri—took office in January 1971.

Dowd: Lawyer and farmer.

Leonard: Business Executive, Chairman of Board of Directors President Lenco, Inc. Jackson, 63755

Additional Training and Experience

Bond: Attorney General's Office — 1969-1970. Assistant Attorney General and Chief Counsel of Consumer Protection Division.

Dowd: Former Agent, FBI and Teacher, St. Louis University Law School; elected Circuit (Prosecuting) Attorney, City of St. Louis; Past President St. Louis Board of Police Commissioners; active in law reform and civic groups.

Leonard: Worked Funiture Factory 1930 - Started present Corporation 1948, now employs 150 people. Because of vast experience Factory Worker to executive I am qualified.

1. What are the major services you consider the Missouri state government should provide?

2. How do you recommend they should be financed?

Bond: The major services that the state should provide are: Education—Recent court decisions, and disparities between school district assessed valuation per child places upon the state the obligation to equalize educational opportunities from general revenue and federal sources. Judicial, Criminal and Penal Services—The high recidivism rate requires reform of our judicial and penal systems, with emphasis on young offenders, from general revenue and federal funds. Transportation—Missouri needs a balanced transportation system providing better highways, bridges, airports and mass transit from the recent gasoline tax increase and a sales tax on gasoline. Health and Welfare—Aid for our elderly...

Dowd: Missouri should provide those necessary services most efficiently administrated statewide; assist and co-ordinate local programs; analyse and implement Missouri's role in Federal programs. Therefore, Missouri should: Provide higher educational and mental health facilities; land-use planning (including environmental) programs; transportation planning, regulation, and construction; utility, insurance, banking and business regulation; and effective law enforcement; Assist local educational, police, safety and governmental operations; Analyse and implement its role in Federally funded programs for the States. These operations should be financed primarily with progressive taxes; until reform is achieved, with existing taxes at present levels; and with Missouri's fair share of federal funds.

Leonard: Adequate financing of public schools by improving expenditure of tax monies through the reorganization of the executive branch of the State Government as proposed by the State Reorganization commission. Careful screening of health and welfare services to insure a more effective use of present health facilities including mental health and mental retardation. Special emphasis on law enforcement and the prevention of crime with improvement of correctional facilities coupled with a good program for rehabilitation of criminals. Good planning for improvement of streets and highways using the additional two cent increase in gasoline tax to its maximum efficiency.

State Treasurer

George W. Parker Age 49
Republican

James I. Spainhower Age 44
Democrat

Term: Four years
Annual salary: $20,000

Education

Parker: Nevada Missouri High School; B.S. University of Maryland; Additional graduate hours University of Missouri

Spainhower: Political Science Ph.D., Master of Arts — University of Missouri Bachelor of Divinity — Lexington Theological Seminary Doctoral Thesis — Fiscal management of state government.

Occupation

Parker: Legislator. Political Writer.

Spainhower: Past Political Science Professor, Lincoln University, Jefferson City. Past President, Associated Medical School of Missouri.

Additional Training and Experience

Parker: Associate Professor University of Missouri 1958-61. Executive Director Missouri Republican Party, 1963-66. USAF Pilot, 21 years career.

Spainhower: Representative, Missouri Legislature eight years — six years on House Appropriations Committee; Chairman, House Education Committee last four years.

1. What do you consider the most important function of this office, and how would you carry it out?

Parker: Because Fairness Not Favoritism is the key issue in the Treasurer's office, my activity as a legislator has included sponsoring or actively supporting bills to abolish private auto license fee offices; establish annual audits for counties; establish an advisory board for determining the amount of state money deposited at interest and prevent favoritism in state purchases and leases.

If elected Treasurer, I have proposed a standard system to select banks for deposit of state funds. This would eliminate political favoritism and eliminate any conflict of interest with banks.

My other platform items include having:

(1) An advisory board of 3 to 4 competent...

Spainhower: The State Treasurer is in effect the banker for the State. Hence, the integrity, honesty, knowledge and experience of the holder of that office are prerequisites to building the necessary confidence the citizens must have in the office.

The judicious and impartial selection of banks to serve as state depositories is essential to the conduct of the office so that the majority of citizens of Missouri will benefit therefrom. I pledge to follow such a course as State Treasurer.

I believe the public should be kept informed at apl times of the policies and operations of the State Treasurer's office.

Term: Four years
Annual Salary: $16,000

Education

Phelps: Nevada, Mo. Public Schools. University of Missouri—Columbia, AB Econ. JD Law.

Schramm: University City public schools. Colgate University, B.A. degree, cumm laude with honors in political science. Washington University Law School, LLB degree.

Verburg: Born in Chicago. Graduated Night High School; Business College; Cook County Real Estate and Missouri Brokers' Examination.

Occupation

Phelps: Attorney at Law in private practice since May, 1959. State Representative— 1961-1972.

Schramm: Lawyer, private practice

Verburg: Retired

Additional Training and Experience

Phelps: House of Representatives. Committees— Appropriations, Judiciary, Economics. Joint and Interim Committees— Fiscal Affairs and Correctional Institutions. Formerly on Tax Study Commission and Committee on School Finance.

Schramm: Eight years in the Missouri House of Representatives. Have served as chairman, Municipal Corporations Committee; vice-chairman, Judiciary Committee; and as a member of the Education Committee, Workmen's Compensation Committee, and the Joint Interim Committee on the Administration of Justice. Attended Eagleton Institute of Politics (Rutgers University) national seminar on State Legislatures. One of fifty legislators selected nationally.

Verburg: Ten years Creditman Gulbransen Piano Company. 28 years Contracting Officer, FAA Kansas City. Liberal in thought, Progressive in demands, Conservative in action. Antiwar. Member ACLU, Common Cause, League Industrial Democracy. Dry Protestant.

1. What do you consider the most imoortant function of this office, and how would you carry it out?

Phelps: As President of the Senate, I will exercise leadership for reforms in state government which will permit government to function more effectively and be more responsive to needs. I would devote full time to the office (thereby changing the part-time Lt. Governor role), being available to assist the Governor in the reorganization of the executive branch and leading citizen task forces to identify solutions to problems before they become crises. As acting Governor in the absence of the Governor, I would carry out the duties of the office in cooperation with the policies of the Governor.

Schramm: The Lieutenant Governor's job has two important dimensions. There's the traditional dimension where the lieutenant governor presides over the Senate and a dimension I would add. That is, to use the office as a forum for developing innovative sources of action in government. I'd emphasize using the office to focus attention on such problems as governmental reorganization and reform, tax reform, tax relief for the elderly, new means of financing education, extension of quality health care to all Missourians, upgrade Missouri's mental health program and consumer protection. The governor will have his own priorities and programs. But the sad fact is, there...

Verburg: (Note: Inasmuch as the office of Lt. Governor is Executive, no candidate can sponsor legislation, therefore these statements are symbolic.) I favor annual cash bonus of $200. to each retired citizen, toward taxes, rent, debts, without eligibility investigation. Missouri should sponsor cooperative buying groups. Missouri should establish a state bank for deposit of revenue, paying bills, distribution of tax money, funding bond issues. Missouri could go into lucrative fields, like auto, fire, title insurance, for new revenue. Millions could be raised by assessing land-owners allowing illegal bill-boards. I favor Unicameral legislature, pari-mutuel betting, tax grain transactions, Votes for women only - on Women's Lib. Amendment, Election Reform: combining Primary and General elections, separate ballot on propositions. Abolishing Blue-Laws.

For Attorney General

Term: Four years
Annual salary, $25,000

Education

Danforth: A.B. Princeton University - 1958. B.D. Yale Divinity School - 1963. L.L.B. Yale Law School - 1963.

Spain: B.A., Southeast Missouri State College, 1955; J.D. University of Missouri at Columbia, 1960.

Occupation

Danforth: Attorney

Spain: Attorney; Member of Missouri House of Representatives.

Additional Training and Experience

Danforth: In private practice of law until 1969 when elected Attorney General of Missouri.

Spain: Former Assistant Prosecuting Attorney and Member of local Board of Education.

1. What do you consider the most important function of this office, and how would you carry it out?

Danforth: The most important function of the office is to provide high quality legal service for the State of Missouri. This can best be discharged by hiring the finest legal talent available without regard to political affiliation. The Attorney General's office is now a better law office than it has ever been in the history of Missouri. I want it to remain so in the next four years.

Spain: The major function of the Attorney General's office should be to meet the judicial needs of the State from an executive point of vies. He should do this by being active rather than inactive. He should be more than house counsel for the Government. He should be on the cutting edge of judicial reform and an instrument of social progress. The office should be one of policy and programs, speaking out on the issues of judicial reform, penal reform, consumer protection, the enviroment and other issues.

Secretary of State

 James C. Kirkpatrick Age 66
Democrat

Harold "Wheels" Kuehle Age 37
Republican

Term: Four years
Annual salary, $20,000

Education

Kirkpatrick: Northeast High, Kansas City; bachelor degree, Central Missouri State College, Warrensburg; graduate work, School of Journalism, University of Missouri-Columbia.

Kuehle: Public schools Cape Girardeau: B.S. in marketing, Southeast Missouri State University, 1961.

Occupation

Kirkpatrick: Newspaper and public relations. Publisher since 1954 of Windsor (MO.) REVIEW.

Kuehle: Owner, Campus Book Store 1960-1966; Cape Girardeau County Collector 1966-present.

Additional Training and Experience

Kirkpatrick: 7½ years experience in modernizing and improving the Secretary of State's office to give prompt, courteous, pleasant and economical service.

Kuehle: Modernized Cape County collection equipment and procedures. Initiated investment program that earns an extra $7500 interest for county annually. Proven experience in efficient management.

1. What do you consider the most important function of this office, and how would you carry it out?

Kirkpatrick: Close attention to applications to sell $3½ billion in securities offerings annually. Prompt action against selling unregistered stocks and bonds. Prompt filing and disseminating information on 70,000 corporations doing business in Missouri. Installed system provideing information requested within 3-minute telephone call.

Efficient management of all state records to reclaim space and produce economies. Since 1965 destroyed 118 million pieces of paper. Now storing 114 million in 10-cent boxes instead of $100 file cabinets, can be retrieved within 3-minutes. Estimated $2¾ million savings to taxpayers.

Continue to modernize election laws to insure integrity of ballot and improve elections.

Kuehle: Providing SERVICE - economically and efficiently. Do away with patronage and the "spoils system" by creating a merit system and eliminating unnecessary title-paycheck type jobs. As chief election official of the state, work diligently with the legislature to revamp the election laws that have become a "patchwork of legal technicalities" riddled with "antiquated provisions and gaps". Work for statewide voter registration. Provide experienced, trained professionals in the securities division. Create an information center for the individual citizen to turn to with any question concerning his state government. Modernize the operation of the office to eliminate duplication and cut costs.

Special Issues On Ballot

Two special local issues, two constitutional amendments and a judicial ballot will face voters when they go to the polls in November.

The first of the local issues will ask for voter response to the question of requiring registration of qualified voters in Pettis County.

The League of Women Voters, in its explanation of the issue wrote, "Registration of the qualified voters of the county applies to all persons living in the county outside the city limits of Sedalia, since residents of Sedalia presently must be resgistered to vote."

The second issue is a special bond election. Voters will be asked: "Shall the following be adopted? Proposition to issue the general obligation industrial bonds of the city of Sedalia, Mo., to the amount of $150,000 for the purpose of purchasing and constructing an industrial plant to be leased and otherwise disposed of to Alpha Sintered Metals, Inc., a Pennsylvania corporation, for manufacturing and industrial development purposes, including real estate, buildings, fixtures and equipment."

The constitutional amendment to be voted on includes various exemptions from taxation. It would authorize the General Assembly, if approved, to exempt from taxes "(a) Household goods and articles of personal use; (b) part of the valuation of real property owned as a homestead by persons over the age of 65; (c) intangible property owned by individuals, labor, agricultural and horticultural organizations, not for profit corporations, and hospitals exempt from state income tax."

It would also provide "for the restitution to the respective political subdivision of revenue lost by reason of such exemption" and "financial relief to persons over the age of 65 who occupy rental property as their homes."

The explanation of the amendment states that it is "enabling only" in that it would authorize the General Assembly to provide tax relief for the elderly, repeal the intangible tax for individuals and some corporations, and abolish the personal property tax on household goods."

Passage of the amendment does not mean automatic adoption of the new authority.

The second Constitutional amendment would "Authorize the General Assembly to consider bills returned by the Governor five days or less before last day bills can be considered in odd-numbered years by placing the bill at the top of the calendar for consideration at next regular session and if bills are so returned, in even-numbered years by reconvening for a period not to exceed ten days."

The judicial ballot explains qualifications for the Missouri Supreme Court judges and asks, "Shall Judge John E. Bardgett of the Supreme Court be retained in office?"

The reason a vote is necessary is that Judge Bardgett serves under the Non-Partisan Court Plan, which Missouri originated. Under this plan, judges of the Supreme Court, Courts of Appeal, Circuit and Propate Courts of Jackson County St. Louis City and St. Louis County, St. Louis Court of Criminal Correction and Kansas City Municipal Court run for office without party label. At the next election following a judge's appointment (provided he has served a full year) he must be elected by the voters of the state.

new faces! new ideas! new determination to build a better Missouri!

It's what's behind the faces of our Democratic candidates that makes the differences.

Differences in experience and maturity. Differences in achievements and service to the people of Missouri. Vital differences to every Missourian in responsible and responsive government.

There's another difference we think you'll consider important. The forward-looking programs of our Missouri Democratic candidates are aimed squarely at solving the everyday problems of people. Problems of education, jobs, health care, taxes, and crime. And the needs of the elderly, the handicapped, and all victims of inflation.

But that's what you'd expect of leaders representing the party of Truman, Hennings, Symington and Eagleton, isn't it?

(Both questions must be answered in a total of no more than 150 words.)

What are your priorities for the 77th General Assembly and why?

Rains: ADVANCEMENT IN EDUCATION

(A) Legislation should be directed toward improving both lower and upper education with great stress placed on vocational technical programs. We need to keep our young people in our own community. By training our youth in specialized fields, this will encourage new businesses and industries to be established here and employ these people.

RELIEF FOR THE AGED

(B) Our elderly should not be compelled to share the financial burdens of taxes and health costs that are now imposed on them.

MENTAL HEALTH

(C) Both young and old are exposed to the anxieties and pressures of today's world. Mental and emotional problems should be one of our major concerns in providing adequate treatment and care for those vast number of people affected.

Stohr: (1) Education, We must make the opportunity for higher education a reality for more young Missourians. We must expand vocational education opportunities for those who do not desire a college education, and provide education of the highest quality for all our school children regardless where they live. (2) Senior citizens, We owe it to our older citizens to provide them with Barrows: Chevrolet dealer 17 years.

Randall: Attorney at law; earlier associated with family in building construction business and in dairy farming.

Additional Training and Experience

Barrows: Appleton City Board of Alderman 3rd Term. St. Clair County Chairman 4 years. 4th Congressional District Chairman.

Randall: Twenty years experience in general practice of law; 10 years experience as a small businessman; member of the Jackson County, Missouri Court for 13 years; Member of Congress for 14 years.

1. What do you consider the national priorities for the next Congress? Why?

Barrows: Stricter law enforcement and improved crime prevention. Because we need to stop useless killing and crime, we have to today. Welfare reform, President Nixon has this in Chairs of Congress since 1969.

Cleaner environment and preservation of our natural resources. Our supply of Coal, Oil, Gas are short.

Randall: Continue the environmental cleanup through adequate funding of air and water pollution abatement; continue Federal funding of air and water pollution abatement; continue Federal funding for education to maintain quality and partial relief for the local property owner. Carry on urgently needed medical research for cancer cure breakthrough. Early action on tax reform. Eliminate inequities against middle-income taxpayers but resist unfair Federal Sales Tax. Why only these four? Under word limitation, in our judgment these are within the top priorities.

2. What methods of fiscal relief, if any, would you favor for the states?

Barrows: Revenue sharing, or money returned to areas from which it came. This is before Congress now.

Randall: Continue support of those existing grants-in-aid and low cost loan programs that have proven beneficial and worthwhile. Then give the proposed no-strings, revenue sharing a fair test to see if it is superior or works as well as the existing programs. Any test period should carry short time limitation and fixed money ceilings to serve as cautions that there is no new revenue to share but only deficit sharing.

(Both questions must be answered in a total of no more than 150 words.) 1. What are your priorities for the 77th General Assembly and why?

Peterson: I. Meaningful tax reform if the constitutional amendment is approved by the voters in regard to repealing taxes on personal property and intangibles.

II. Comprehensive and progressive reorganization of State Government.

III. Increase and make more equitable the funding of public education at all levels without placing anymore burden on real property.

IV. Compensation for victims of crimes.

2. Do you think additional sources of revenue are needed for the state, and, if so, what measures would you support?

Peterson: No, but I do sincerely believe that we may need different sources but certainly we do not need additional sources. If the voters approve the repealing of taxes on personal property and intangibles, the Legislature will have a golden opportunity to institute real and meaningful tax reform. At the same time, reorganization of state government should promote more efficient tax collection and cut the costs of operating state government. 1. What education and preparation do you feel is necessary for the Recorder of Deeds to carry out his job?

Brown: High School Education and knowledge and understanding of the operation of the Recorder's Office

Miller: After studying the state statutes concerning the recorder of deeds, I feel my jobs in sales and with the railroad and keeping records of each has qualified me for this job.

2. Do you intend to devote full time to this job and actively participate in the duties of this office?

Brown: Yes—This will be my only job

Miller: Every day that the office is required to be open I intend to be there, and this will be my only job.

3. How can this office be more responsive to the needs of the people?

Brown: We are doing everything possible to render good service to the public and whenever called upon for assistance it is rendered willingly. We strive to please to the best of our ability.

Miller: In asmuch as the recorders office is a public office and contains public records, it should at all times be accissable to the voting public. Walch: President, Sedalia-Pettis County United Fund; Post F Travelers Protective Association; Sedalia Cemetery Association; Junior Warden, Episcopal Church; Elks Lodge; Member executive committee, Great Rivers Council Boys Scouts; Rotary.

1. Buena Vista is currently financed, basically, by fees paid by its residents and by State aid. If elected, what stand would you take on continuing to provide for supplemental financing for Buena Vista in the County Budget?

Fischer: I believe that the proper upkeep and maintenance of Buena Vista Rest Home should have top priority. As a result, the present Pettis County Court has spent an average of $900.00 per month in supplementing the budget of the Buena Vista Rest Home in order to meet these high standards.

B. A. (Bunny) Fischer Age 66
Democrat

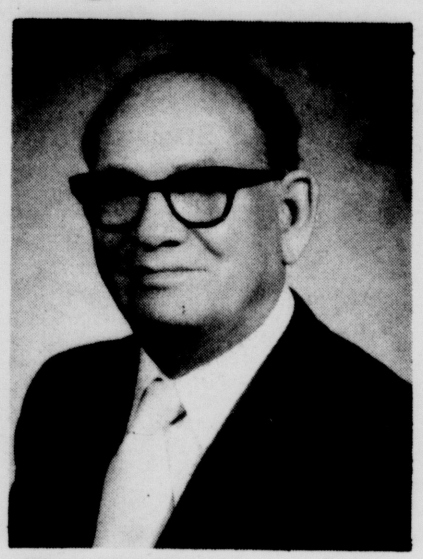
Walch: I am for the continued supplemental support of Buena Vista home.

2. Do you feel there are inadequacies in our present assessment system? If so, how could they be rectified?

Fischer: I feel that there are inadequacies in our present system of assessing property in the County, and I feel that they only way that these inadequacies can be corrected is by a reassessment of the County.

Walch: I think our assessment system in the county is all right, however where inadequacies occur it is in the administration. It is necessary to keep evaluations current.

3. How do you feel that the maintenance and upkeep of the County Court House can be improved?



Harry W. Walch Age 67
Republican

Fischer: The Court House is in need of extensive redecorating. Prior to expending money for redecorating, a new roof should be put on the Court House. At the present time the County Court is in the process of preparing bids to advertise to have the roof repaired.

Walch: Our Court House seems adequate to me. It is a fine structure of which Pettis Countians should be proud. However anyone visiting the Court House can easily see the need for better housekeeping. A thorough inspection should be made and repairs made to retain property in top condition.

4. Are you in favor of county-wide voter registration? If so, why? If not, why not?

Fischer: This community is indebted to the League for providing the opportunity to decide this issue in November. Should a majority of our citizens desire county-wide voter registration, as a Member of the County Court, I would see to it that sufficient funds were budgeted to cover the expenses involved.

Walch: I think our voting in the county should be uniform with the city when it comes to registration. This assures an honest no duplication vote.

5. You may submit a 50 word statement pertaining to any matter of your choosing regarding this office.

Fischer: Since I have been a Member of the Pettis County Court I have devoted my full time and attention to the activities of the Court in an effort to make the County Court more responsive to the wishes and desires of the people.

Walch: Future planning in the county is a must. The county is faced with the needs of a solid waste system, a public health clinic and badly needed nursing home expansion beyond Buena Vista, such as our neighboring counties have.

1. Why are you a candidate for the State Fair Community College Board of Trustees and what do you feel your qualifications are for a Board position?

Heisterberg: No reply
Klein: I am a candidate because I believe in the college and it's growth. Qualifying with my sincere determination that students reguardless of age can have the opportunity for a higher education. With both professionals and laymen alike working to-geather for the majority.

Proctor: I have been acutely aware of what a college can do for a community. There is no other industry that we can attract to this area that will affect our community so beneficially. Because of education and some experience as an undergraduate, instructor I feel I am qualified.

Ragland: I want to render helpful service to college students by maintaining and extending courses of study designed to meet their needs. My background of school experience as an administrator and my previous service on the original board of trustees should help the board to make sound decisions.

Thomas: I am interested in this community and a better education or improved skills within the acquirement of people of all ages and financial means.

2. What do you consider to be the function of a community college and what programs do you feel should be emphasized in a community college?

Heisterberg: No reply

Klein: The function of the community college is to offer greater opportunities to students here and the surrounding communities. To improve and enlarge the vocational and technical programs so everyone with the desire to learn can, at a reasonable cost.

Proctor: Our function is opportunity. Particularly I feel we should emphasize vocational courses for those who are not interested in obtaining graduate degrees. In addition we should provide courses for those who do wish to take advanced work and courses for all ages on subjects that generate enough interest.

Ragland: In the junior college, emphasis should be on vocational and technical courses designed to prepare both young people and adults for earning a living in the local area. Enough academic work should be available so that many students can complete the first two years of college work at home.

Thomas: A community college relieves the congestion of the first and second year of a four year college. Courses should be offered for all age groups and credit courses transferable to four year colleges. Vocational and technical courses should be emphasized.

If at any time my knowledge in construction, can prevent another Jr. High situation my time will have been will spent.

Proctor: Now we have through the generosity of one of our citizens, the means for establishing a permanent campus. With this hurdle cleared I am deeply interested in bringing harmony between all of the constituents of our district for our common good.

Ragland: If elected, I pledge to work for board harmony. The original board respected my judgment enough to choose me for vice-president for four years. My election should return to the board additional maturity of judgment. I would plan to be a servant of the entire district.

Thomas: State Fair Community College should consider the purchase of more real property to enlarge campus and more permanent buildings be constructed. I feel we could reduce our welfare rolls by requiring all able bodied persons receiving welfare to learn a vocation or skill that will qualify them for employment.

1. Buena Vista is currently financed, basically, by fees paid by its residents and by State aid. If elected, what stand would you take on continuing to provide for supplemental financing for Buena Vista in the County Budget?

Bluhm: I feel it is our moral obligation to provide some support to those elderly, who by no fault of their own, need assistance. If all sources of revenue, fees, state and federal aid, do not make provision for the less fortunate, then the court must supplement these funds.
Ulmer: It will have to be worked out through the county court.

2. Do you feel there are inadequacies in our assessment system? If so, how could they be rectified?

Bluhm: Inflation has caused great inequities in assessment of property. The system of assessment provided by state statutes, for third class counties, could take care of inequities in time, if the assessing officials had done an adequate job all along. Now we are faced with an expensive reassessment bill.
Ulmer: I understand that in a matter of time Pettis County will be changed from third class to second class county. If so, it will be reevaluated.

3. How do you feel that the maintenance and upkeep of the Court House can be improved?

Bluhm: (a) Survey present condition of building and grounds. (b) Set priorities for major and minor maintenance. (c) Make sure custodial help understand their duties and the importance of preventive maintenance. (d) Make sure tax funds are available to accomplish the work.
Ulmer: If I am elected, that is one problem I will give consideration.

4. Are you in favor of county-wide voter registration? If so, why? If not, why?

Bluhm: It is not my opinion that is important on this issue. If the majority of the voters of Pettis County want voter registration, as a Judge I will have to find the revenue to support the additional budget for the county clerks office to maintain the records properly.
Ulmer: No comment.

5. You may submit a 50 word statement pertaining to any matter of your choosing regarding this office.

Bluhm: Fire protection, roads, health and safety, we all favor. How well we accomplish these tasks is not always a budgetary question. 1. Buena Vista is currently financed, basically, by fees paid by its residents and by State aid. If elected, what stand would you take on continuing to provide for supplemental financing for Buena Vista in the County Budget?

Birdsong: Just the same as in the past. Funds will be estimated in the budget to take care of all the indigent people in Pettis County.

Kraft: With the added income to the County Court from the revenue sharing, Buena Vista should be one of the top priorities for supplemental financing. This problem of providing housing for the elderly will always be on the increase. We must work on this problem and reach a solution quickly.

2. Do you feel there are inadequacies in our assessment system? If so, how could they be rectified?

Birdsong: We have investigated the matter of re-assessment & found it would cost 140 to 160 thousand dollars & our general revenue will not allow it.

Kraft: Pettis County has been without a reassessment for a number of years, this is the major problem. With a shorter time period between reassessments the feeling of fair taxation is probable for Pettis Countians.

3. How do you feel that the maintenance and upkeep of the Court House can be improved?

Birdsong: To try to set aside enough money for a new roof. Then we could consider re-decorating inside.

Kraft: Possibly a combination of quality janitor work and some remodeling in accordance with the budget.

4. Are you in favor of county-wide voter registration? If so, why? If not, why?

Birdsong: I think this is a question every one should give careful consideration.

Kraft: This issue will be decided entirely by the voters on November 7. The county officers must abide by the voters decision.

5. You may submit a 50 word statement pertaining to any matter of your choosing regarding this office.

Let Administrative Efficiency Get Maximum Benefits From Your County Tax Dollar!

Elect HARRY W. WALCH

PRESIDING JUDGE OF PETTIS COUNTY COURT

As I stated prior to the August Primary, I will, if elected, exert the same drive and purpose I have demonstrated throughout my adult life to the duties and problems of this important office for the benefit of all taxpayers, all citizens, of Pettis County.

The county's business will come first, because the allocation and spending of your tax dollars must be paramount if we accomplish progress and economy in the operation of the county's business affairs.

Attainment of worthwhile goals is never easy, but I pledge to all it will be my goal to deliver to you the maximum results obtainable for every tax dollar spent ... and without fear or favor to anyone.

My Record Is An Open Book — I Invite You To Check It!

- ✓ President Pettis Sedalia-Pettis County United Fund for the past four years.
- ✓ President of Sedalia Cemetery Association.
- ✓ Former president Sedalia Park Board, Sedalia Symphony Society, Rotary Club of Sedalia.
- ✓ President of Sedalia Post "F" of Travelers Protective Association, now more than 1150 members. Former state president and national director of this organization.
- ✓ Member executive board Boy Scouts Grand River Council.
- ✓ Member Protective and Benevolent Order of Elks.
- ✓ Former state director of Missouri Heart Association.
- ✓ Junior Warden of the Calvary Episcopal Church.
- ✓ A native Pettis Countian, a homeowner, a taxpayer, a husband and father.

Your Vote and Support Is Earnestly Solicited And Will Be Sincerely Appreciated.

GENERAL ELECTION TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 7.

(Paid Adv.)

County Assessor

Term: Four years
Annual Salary $13,500

Education

McCune: Smith-Cotton Grad. 2 years Univ. of Mo.

Trotter: Business and Accounting degree, Central Business College, Sedalia, Mo.

Occupation

McCune: Salesman for Niagara Theraphy Corp., Former Insurance Man and Farmer

Trotter: County Assessor

1972 Membership in Organizations:

McCune: Pres. Cancer Society-Member Noon Optimist-Boy's Club Board — Farm Bureau-Gideon Society-Methodist Church — V P Sedalia Bowling Assoc.

Trotter: No reply.

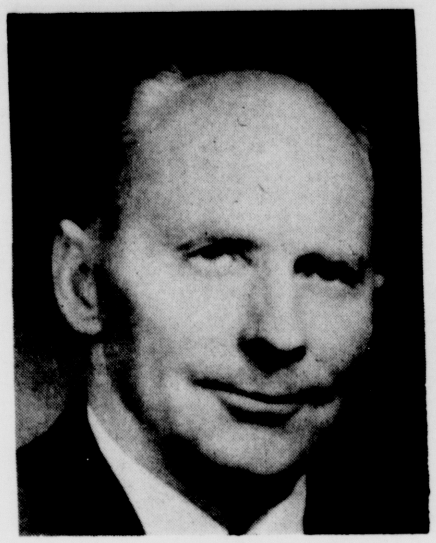
1. As evidenced in the recent Board of Equalization hearings, there are inequities in assessment of individual property. How can this practice be rectified?

McCune: By electing an Assessor with the ability to set a true value on the property he assesses, and use the same percentage of true value on everyone — then hire and train deputies who will do the same — for the Assessor, by law, is responsible for the actions of his deputies.

Trotter: The only way this can be corrected, is to have a complete reassessment. I have wanted this for many years.

2. How would you or do you determine the real value of property for tax purposes?

McCune: My 7 years in the fire insurance business will be invaluable here. There are many factors — location — size — construction (Quality or cracker-box) Sources of information are city building permits, mortgage records, contractors and real estate men.



Wm. P. (Bill) McCune Age 61
Republican

Trotter: My staff and I look at all the new construction, and try to determine, a 30% of the real value.

3. Will you work for reassessment of the county if elected? Why?

McCune: Re-assessment should be used to correct the present inequities-not raise the tax base. Some inequities are the by-product of faulty assessing, most are caused by inflation of the past 20 years. I will co-operate if re-assessment is ordered by the County Court or State Tax Commission.

Trotter: I will work for a reassessment. This county has needed one long before I ever took office, in spite of this, Pettis County has only gotten one raise from the state in 20 years.

You may submit a 50 word statement pertaining to any matter of your choosing regarding this office.

McCune: I will be a working Assessor, if elected, and this will save the tax-payers of Pettis County $4000 per year in deputy salary — the salary of one deputy. I feel the best way to get any lowering of taxes, for everyone, is to cut out some of the waste.

Jerry E. Trotter Age 50
Democrat

Trotter: No one has ever worked harder than I have, since I've been in office to keep the state from raising Pettis County while other counties have been raised 8 year's out of the last ten. I think this is an accomplishment.

WHERE THEY STAND

Drug Abuse

The permissiveness of the 1960s left no legacy more insidious than drug abuse.

By the time our nation awakened to this cancerous social ill, it found no major combat weapons available.

We quickly launched a massive assault against drug abuse.

We pledge to seek further international agreements to restrict the production and movement of dangerous drugs.

We firmly oppose efforts to make drugs easily available. We equally oppose the legalization of marijuana. We intend to solve problems, not create bigger ones by legalizing drugs of unknown physical impact.

DEMOCRATS

Drug addiction and alcoholism are health problems. Drugs prey on children, destroy lives and communities, force crimes to satisfy addicts, corrupt police and government and finance the expansion of organized crime. A massive national effort, equal to the scale and complexity of the problem, is essential.

We support a massive law enforcement effort, supported by increased funds and personnel, against the suppliers and distributors of heroin and other dangerous drugs, with increased penalties for major narcotics traffickers.

An all-out investigative and prosecutory effort against corruption in government and law enforcement.

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

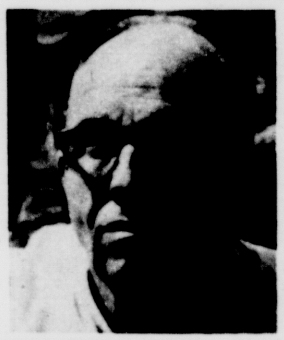
FOR EVA GABOR

I understand you own a Rolls-Royce. Do you drive it yourself?—L. Freeman, Los Angeles, Calif.

● Yes, and I am a menace to the highways. I have an old Rolls-Royce, and I drive it like a truck. I don't drive very fast. Once I collided with a little Volkswagen. There was barely a scratch on it—the Volkswagen, I mean. And the woman who drove it jumped out and screamed at me in a very heavy accent. I don't like accents! I told her so and she screamed back, "Look who's talking!" And then she sued me for $40,000! I am a lady of principle, and I thought she was unjustified. The insurance company finally settled for $100, or something like that. But I had to go to court for it, and I remember that someone came to me and said something about a court stenographer and I said, "Please—no pictures!" Then it turned out that the stenographer isn't a court photographer—so I guess my English isn't perfect yet.

FOR JAMES A. MICHENER, author

In "The Drifters," you talked about the running of the bulls in Pamplona, Spain. Did you ever actually run with the bulls?—Mrs. Daphne Morgan, Shedd, Ore.



● I've run with the bulls at Pamplona as many as two dozen times. At age 66, I don't run as far as I used to, but last time I tried it two men were killed right next to me. It's a crazy occupation, but men of all nations engage in it. I have never been able to explain why satisfactorily, except that the thrill of being in the streets in the early morning with the bulls thundering past is surpassed by none other I know.

FOR CLORIS LEACHMAN, actress

In the "Mary Tyler Moore Show" you play Mary's neurotic neighbor Phyllis Lindstrom. Is there any similarity between Phyllis and yourself in real life?—R. B., Beatrice, Neb.

● I don't know if neurotic is the right word for Phyllis, at least the way I am playing her now. She can be both irritating and lovable, but both of us are busybodies, opinionated, enthusiastic, energetic, positive, bossy—and we expect everyone to agree with us.

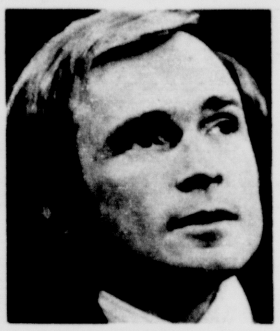
FOR DALE EVANS

I know that you and your husband have lost children in tragedies. What is the size of your family, and what are you doing now?—M. J. Downey, Canton, Ohio

● We have four adopted children and one foster child. We do about ten state fairs a year together, and we just made a religious record album. Also, I make many appearances at "Youth for Christ" get-togethers.

FOR DICK CAVETT, TV star

How did you get into television? — Eugene Semansky, Trenton, N.J.



● While working as a copyboy at "Time" magazine I heard that Jack Paar was continually worried about his opening monologue. I wrote a two-page monologue, and while on my way to deliver it to Jack's office, I ran into him in the corridor. He was receptive and used some of the material that night. After I wrote a second monologue, I was appointed a comedy writer on the Paar staff.

FOR VICTOR SEN YOUNG, cook on "Bonanza"

Did being wounded in the recent hijacking of a jetliner cause you to give up air travel?—Mrs. Laurene Mills, Hobart, Ind.

● No. I have made several flights since the hijacking. But I do look to see that the airline is enforcing security measures, and if they are not, I will avoid that particular flight.

FOR MONTY HALL, "Let's Make a Deal" MC

Our family noticed that you make deals with very few black people. Does their color or race cause them to be denied? —David B. Smith, Chapel Hill, N.C.

● Never. Contestants are chosen by our writers because they appear to be good traders for our trading floor. If you watched the show regularly, you would know that there is no color barrier.

FOR ERMA BOMBECK, columnist

As a child you were a singer and dancer in Dayton, Ohio. What made you switch to journalism?—Betty Joiner, Yorba Linda, Calif.

● When I sat down at the typewriter, people laughed. When I stood up to sing, people cried.

FOR JAMES WHITMORE, star of "Temperature's Rising"

What's more important in a television series, the people or the stories?—M. Allen, Ventura, Calif.

● I say it's the people, the characters. If you like Lucy, you'll watch her, no matter what the story is. So I encourage viewers to tune in to each new program at least once. The stories may get better or worse, but if you like the characters, you'll enjoy watching them no matter what.

FACT OR FICTION?

You should avoid exercise during your period.

Fiction! The simple rules of good health are always important, especially during your period. Exercise, a proper diet and a good night's sleep go a long way toward relieving menstrual cramps or preventing them altogether. And remember, you're not "sick." So there's no reason not to follow your normal routine.

Fact. With Tampax tampons, odor can't form. Odor is noticeable only when the fluid is exposed to air. With Tampax tampons, fluid is absorbed before it comes in contact with air; therefore, odor cannot form.

You should not bathe during your period.

Fiction! Contrary to superstition, water can't hurt you. Daily baths or showers are a must throughout your period. Shampoo your hair, too. And don't deny yourself the chance to go swimming. Tampax tampons are worn internally, so you can swim anytime.

Single girls can use Tampax tampons.

Fact. Any girl of menstrual age who can insert them easily and without discomfort, can use Tampax tampons with complete confidence. Follow the easy directions in every package.

Our only interest is protecting you.

Now! With the simple method of Foot Reflexology!

'You Can Get Almost Immediate Relief from Aches and Pains All Over the Body!'

"I have brought relief to countless suffering people with this method—and have watched their joy of regained health and vitality—when all hope had seemingly been lost!"

"Let me show you how it can bring about the normal function of a specific location or organ..."

Says MILDRED CARTER, Professional Reflexologist

Dear Friend:

My name is Mildred Carter. I am not a doctor, but for over 14 years, I have been helping people receive remarkable relief from seemingly hopeless aches and pains all over the body, with a method—which you can use, too—called Foot Reflexology.

Foot Reflexology is a method for healing the whole body. If you've ever suffered from foot trouble, you know that it's the feet that make the whole body ache. By rubbing and pressing gently on certain areas of your feet, I can show you how you may get almost immediate relief IN OTHER PARTS OF THE BODY!

Why? Because the feet contain Reflexes, which lead like telephone lines to all parts of the body. By pressing them, you help restore normal circulation and health to congested areas. No one can guarantee a cure, nor is it a medical substitute, but:

- I have seen it relieve crippled hands and feet, caused by painful arthritis, straighten whole bodies and bring them back to normal!
- It can stop the pain of hemorrhoids almost immediately!
- Most headaches vanish immediately with this method!
- I have seen it relieve liver and gall bladder trouble!
- I have seen it clear up stuffed sinuses almost immediately!
- I have seen it relieve back troubles, in a matter of seconds!
- I have seen it bring fast relief to stomach troubles!
- I have brought lasting relief to sufferers of varicose veins with this method. This is also true with cramps or pains in the legs!
- I have seen it relieve bladder trouble quickly, with great relief after the very first treatment—all sensation of burning or itching seems to disappear completely!
- This simple method can bring women blessed relief from many disorders which may have been troubling them for years!
- I have brought relief to men, in every case of prostate trouble I have ever treated with this method!

...And still that's just the beginning! You'll find the full details of this amazing method of healing in a new book which I have written, called HELPING YOURSELF WITH FOOT REFLEXOLOGY. I'll tell you how to get it in just a moment, but first I want to tell you more about it!

Many Healings Reported!

Foot Reflexology is a safe, natural, and inexpensive way to help restore healthful circulation to every area of your body.

Did you ever notice how quickly water freshens when good water is poured into muddy water? Foot Reflexology does the same for circulation in your body. Blood flow slows over the years. Naturally, glands and organs become sluggish. Stimulating a new flow of blood to these "tired" places brings new life, clears glands and organs of years of accumulated waste.

Healings and relief from discomforts of all sorts are reported, by the dozen, in the pages of my book. All were obtained with the help of Foot Reflexology.

Here's What I Say In This Book:

Gall Bladder Healing "There are many cases where Reflex Massage of the liver and gall bladder has saved people from having an operation, with the stones seeming to vanish after a few treatments."—Quoted from Chapter 12

Anemic Conditions "Anyone who is anemic will find... improvement can be so rapid it is amazing. With pernicious anemia, results will be slower, but Nature will be there, changing new blood cells for old."—Quoted from Chapter 11

Helping the Heart "No matter what the nature of the trouble is, the heart can be aided with this method.... I can give you many case histories of wonderful results from this scientific massage of the reflexes on heart patients."—Quoted from Chapter 13

Relief for Leg Pain "I believe I have treated more cases of leg aches than any other malady, and most were caused by the sciatic nerve. Many people suffer for years without any relief. Yet it is so amazingly simple to banish all inflammation from this nerve in an unbelievably short time. In many cases this method has brought relief in one treatment."—Quoted from Chapter 22

Varicose Veins "I have brought lasting relief to sufferers of varicose veins by starting the proper circulation with Reflex Massage, thus causing congestion to disappear. This is also true with cramps or pains of any kind in the legs."—Quoted from Chapter 16

Relief for Hemorrhoids "Hemorrhoids are nothing more than a congested vein (known as piles). This is actually a varicose vein in the rectum. These can become so large as to protrude, causing inconvenience, much suffering, and in many cases bleeding. Though painful, they are usually suffered in silence by those who have them. Yet with Reflex Massage they are one of the quickest to respond to treatment. Here we will learn how to use the Reflexology method to bring you prompt relief!"—Quoted from Chapter 21

How to Make Reflexology Your Rejuvenator "Would you like to be young again? Would you like to walk expectantly into the future, to enjoy new experiences, with a revitalized body? We do not have to be old... Reflexology rejuvenates the entire body, giving new life to glands and cells. Blood flow slows over the years. Naturally, glands and cells become sluggish. Reflexology stimulates a new flow of blood to these tired places, clears glands and cells of accumulated waste, brings them new life!"—Quoted from Chapters 3 and 24

You'll Discover...

- How Reflexology relieved a man's stuffed sinuses. "After the first treatment, he could suddenly breathe through both sides of his nose" and he felt well again.
- How a woman who had hurt her spine, and was in so much pain that she called a bone specialist to take x-rays, received so much relief with Reflexology—after a single treatment—that she was able to get up and do her work. She felt so much better, in fact, that she cancelled her appointment for x-rays, and claims she is fully recovered.
- How a man with a hunchback—a huge, ugly bulge—received a complete healing with Reflexology. He was freed of pain, and "he was able to stand straight." The hump disappeared. "He was not deformed at all," I reported!
- How a man who suffered from ulcers, kidney trouble, hay fever, and constipation, received complete relief with Reflexology. "The symptoms of each illness disappeared one by one," and today he sleeps like a baby every night!
- How a man with a heart condition was healed with Reflexology. Doctors had always warned him he couldn't do the things other men did. With this method, "his heart returned to normal enough to allow him to do anything he wanted, without any trouble. Today, after more than 10 years, he is a strong and well man."

My name is Mildred Carter. I am not a doctor, but I have been helping people receive remarkable relief from seemingly hopeless aches and pains!

What A Physiotherapist Says:

"During my forty-eight years as a Physiotherapist in my own Treatment Centers... I have had every opportunity to observe the amazing benefits of manual massage. As a means of rehabilitation where physical trauma is involved, it ranks high in the annals of Medicine.

"The techniques described in Mrs. Carter's book have been developed by experts in the field of reflex massage, and we have no hesitation in recommending them.... For the relief of pain, we know of no other means short of opiates to achieve this objective."

– CLARENCE R. MUNROE
Registered Technician, Physiotherapy

AMAZING TRUE Experiences!

"Reflexology will free you from sickness and suffering, and fear of pain, when used correctly."

"There are so many personal experiences which I could recount, stories of illnesses which were relieved by reflex massage, that I find myself wanting to tell all of them at once. I have seen it do marvelous things that surprised me many times when doctors said it couldn't be done.

"If it can do this for others, it can do this for you! I have proven that this method of healing works, in my own experience. Try it on yourself and FEEL the results!"

Safe To Use!

What's more, Foot Reflexology is absolutely safe. It is the "drugless" way to better health, and requires no exercise, no expensive equipment of any kind. It is so simple, and natural, that it is safe to use on anyone, from the youngest baby to the oldest person. In fact, it is a Rejuvenator that can actually win you many years of new youth!

Read It All From Cover to Cover, For 30 Days, Entirely At Our Risk!

I have proven that this method of healing works in my own experience. You owe it to yourself to try it at our risk and FEEL the results. And I invite you to do just that! Fair enough? Why not send in the coupon—TODAY!

"What Do I Wear This Fall?"

By Rosalyn Abrevaya

A.M.

P.M.

For daytime (left), the sweater dress is worn with its pink-leather belt; for evening, add a fur boa, a glitter tank top, and—behold—a new outfit!

The key this fall is not to discard wardrobes but to weed out, add new touches. And it's learning to stretch clothes from a.m. to after-five. What do we mean? Plaids make points by spiking wardrobes with color and pattern. You might add plaid in a shirtdress, like the one on our cover, or make it punctuate in a topper or wrap coat. . . . Angora is coming into prominence. Since its fuzzy yarn tends to add weight, instead of buying a pullover or a dress, get a saucy hat or a fingertip-length cardigan, to wear open or tied over the shoulders. . . . Classic unlined sweater dresses mean cling. But the look is worth it. A simple seamless bra and long-line panty girdle alleviate any excess curves. . . . Pastels are setting another trend. This pale-blue sweater dress (see picture) has detachable satin collar and cuffs. It adds nighttime glamour with a glittery tank top, a rope of pearls and fur boa. [Dress by Brenner Bees in Acrilan acrylic. Tank top by Bobbie Brooks.] . . . Short-sleeve jackets are not meant to expose arms. "Fill-in" is the password, either with a print shirt or turtleneck. The newer jacket comes in two lengths—cropped at the waist or stopping at the hip. There is no problem with skirt lengths—they gravitate around the knee. Note that belts are getting skinnier, bracelets are back. And the perfect suit is soft and unstructured. (See picture.) After five, a slinky black turtleneck, mink hat and clunky bracelets set the tune. [Three-piece ensemble by Fire Islander in Monsanto's Wear-Dated Acrilan doubleknit. Shirt by Lady Manhattan. Shoes by Famolare.] . . . Fun furs in a vest or boa can add dimension to your wardrobe. They are not taboo as long as they are not on the "endangered species" list. (And it's against the law to sell those.) Rabbit, muskrat, mink are examples of furs that are all right to wear. Here, a fur vest is worn with a two-piece dress (see picture) in a wispy print knit, underlying the trend toward soft-fitting clothes. When the layers come off, the look is romantic with pearl-and-gold strands, suede accessories and a fabulous red-fox chubby jacket. [Dress by KII in Acrilan acrylic knit.]

A.M.

P.M.

Daytime (left): Layer a fur vest over a two-piece dress for a day in town. Nighttime (right): Add pearls and chains, suede accessories, to change the mood completely.

P.M. A.M.

Nighttime (left): A slinky black turtleneck, filling in the soft, unstructured suit, and mink hat set the tune. Daytime (right): Wear a punchy print shirt, ivory and tortoise bangles.

How and When to Ask for a Raise

Should you or shouldn't you ask for a raise? Yes, go ahead if you think you've earned it, but do it the right way. Dr. Ernest Dichter, a recognized expert whose latest book is "Motivating Human Behavior," suggests that you: 1) Be careful not to put the boss in a defensive position. Telling the boss that you realize he might have given you a raise anyway but with his busy schedule it's possible he hasn't gotten around to it, would be an appropriate opening. 2) Then be ready to show through actual facts that you have contributed to the business. 3) However, says Dr. Dichter, you have to look the situation over first from the point of view of timing. If business is off or the boss is under pressure, he's not going to feel generous.—By S. R. Redford

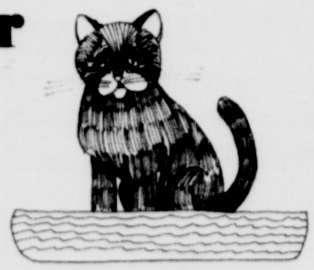
Urinary Infection: The Male Cat's Nemesis



Sudden changes of temperature often trigger urinary infections in male cats, altered or unaltered. If your cat starts to strain in his litter pan, urinate on the rug or other unsuitable spots, cry while attempting to void, or spend a lot of time licking his hind quarters, he is probably suffering from some form of urinary obstruction or bladder inflammation. It can be a very serious ailment. Don't wait, hoping the condition will go away. It is much more likely to get worse. Take Puss to the veterinarian immediately. Antibiotics are of great help. Distilled water is sometimes recommended. Since this pesky disease is caused by a virus, it can reoccur. Surgery is sometimes necessary, but prompt medication can usually prevent this drastic remedy.—By Felicia Ames

People and You

Do You Push People Into Competing With You?

When your friends add something to their home, do they show it to you in a relaxed way? Or do you have the feeling that they're competing with you and your home? How about when they discuss clothes, cars and children? If you often feel that you and your friends are competing, then either you or they are making things competitive. A recent investigation supported by National Institute of Child Health and Human Development funds revealed that when one person is very competitive, he causes those around him to dig in and compete with him. It seems that people who are basically cooperative, react to competitive behavior around them by acting like the competitive people. It does not work the other way.—By Shirley Sloan Fader

Smart Cooking

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen helps her daughter make Halloween treats because: "When Ava asked me if she could have a Halloween party this year, I said, 'Sure, if you promise you'll do most of the work!' So Ava did the work—and I did the supervising!"

Cookies For Halloween

Ava Hansen, who is 8, did almost all the work herself.

MOLASSES CUTOUT COOKIES

1⅓ cups butter or margarine, softened
1 cup sugar
1 cup light or dark molasses
½ cup boiling water
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon ground cinnamon
2 teaspoons ground ginger
6 cups unsifted all-purpose flour or enriched unbleached flour
1 can (16½ ozs.) prepared vanilla frosting
1 can (16½ ozs.) prepared chocolate frosting
Red and Yellow food coloring
Candy corn, licorice strings, multicolored chocolate candy

1. In large bowl with electric mixer at medium speed, beat butter until smooth; gradually add sugar, beating until light.

2. At low speed add molasses and boiling water. Beat until smooth, scraping side of bowl with rubber scraper.

3. At low speed add salt, cinnamon and ginger. Add flour, 2 cups at a time, stirring with spoon until blended.

4. Turn dough out onto sheet of heavy-duty foil. Wrap securely and refrigerate for at least 2 hours. (You can make dough 1 day and bake cookies a few days later if you wish.)

5. Make cardboard patterns for cookies. Draw jack-o'-lantern, owl, ghost, witch's hat and cat, each about 5 inches tall by 3-4 inches wide.*

6. Roll out ⅓ of dough at a time, ¼-inch thick, on a lightly floured board with rolling pin. A pastry cloth for the board and a stockinette cover for the rolling pin make rolling very easy.

7. Preheat oven to 375°F. Lay cardboard patterns on dough and cut around them to make cookies. Reroll any remaining dough. If dough gets too soft, refrigerate. Place cookies on ungreased cookie sheets and bake about 10-12 minutes, or until done. Let cool 1 minute, then remove from cookie sheets with spatula to wire rack; cool completely.

8. Decorate cookies with frosting. Color some vanilla frosting orange with a few drops of red and yellow food coloring if desired for jack-o'-lantern. Make faces with candy corn, licorice and chocolate candy.

Makes 3 dozen cookies

*To make Halloween letters and the fence, roll dough between hands to about the width of a pencil and make desired shapes.

Jack Lord: "I've Seen It All, I've Done It All"

"I saw only one so-called 'dirty' picture, and that was 'Carnal Knowledge.' I hated it with a vengeance. I considered it exploitation garbage.... I don't believe such things should titillate the audience in the theater. I felt nothing but revulsion toward it."

The hero of "Hawaii Five-O" embraces his wife Marie. Says Jack, "A child would only bring problems."

The paints that turn decorating ideas into reality.

Meet the reliable Kem® latex paints from Sherwin-Williams: Super Kem-Tone® latex wall paint, America's favorite wall paint. It goes on easily with brush or roller. Tools clean up quickly in soap and water.

And Kem-Namel® latex enamel. It gives you the durability of enamel, the application and cleanup ease of latex.

Come to your nearby Sherwin-Williams store for decorating ideas, and the paints and wallcoverings to make them happen. Check the Yellow Pages for the store in your neighborhood.

Sherwin-Williams. More than a paint store.

Family Weekly: Like so many actors, you dabble in painting. Do you do it for your own satisfaction or do you make any money on them?

LORD: I don't think "dabble" is the right word. I'm very serious about it, as I'm very serious about everything I'm doing. As for making money, I've sold $42,000 worth of paintings in the last three months.

FW: Most television actors who do a series are anxious to make films during their summer break. Why haven't you made any?

LORD: I don't believe in killing myself. There is so much work involved in the "Hawaii Five-O" show that I have very little time for my wife Marie. CBS offered me a "Movie of the Week," but I turned it down. What I really want to do next is direct a picture.

FW: You've become the biggest Hawaii booster since the Hula-Hoop. Do you get paid for this?

LORD: I get paid by the privilege of living in the Hawaiian Islands. My enthusiasm is genuine to the point where I recently gave up my Los Angeles home and now consider Hawaii my only place of residence. As for being a salesman for Hawaii, it is absolutely true. I recently did a by-line story for FAMILY WEEKLY called "Let Me Show You the Hawaii I Love." I got a bigger response to this article than to any interview I have ever given. More than 5,000 letters! And you know what was interesting? Not just that people had read it, but that they thanked me for introducing them to the islands. One girl said she was filing the article away for her honeymoon. Scores of soldiers told me that after reading the article they now planned to spend their leaves with their families in Hawaii. I got one letter from an 87-year-old man who said he would fly for the first time because he wants to see the islands. And innumerable requests that I personally show them the islands—which, unfortunately, time wouldn't permit.

FW: "Hawaii Five-O" is going into its fifth year. Aren't you getting tired of playing the same character?

LORD: If I thought it would be boring, I'd quit tomorrow. As for doing the part: I believe in an old Oriental philosophy—the NOW. The past is gone, the future never happened. The only important thing is what happens NOW. You savor the moment. That holds true for everything I do. I tell this to Marie all the time: "Let's savor what we have—the sunrises, the sunsets, the meals we have together." And that's the way I feel about my work. What I do today is important. Not what I did yesterday, not what I will do tomorrow. That's the way it is with my relationship with people, too. Not what I hope to do, not what I did—but what I am doing.

FW: You and Marie have been married for 20 years but have no children. Don't you feel a void in your lives?

LORD: On the contrary, it brought us closer together. Some couples need a family, but we're such self-sufficient people, so involved with one another, that a child would only bring problems. If there is anything I regret about my career it is the time it keeps me away from my wife. I often see more of the cast and crew than her. As a result, the time we have together means that much more to both of us.

FW: Have you ever thought of adopting children?

LORD: Even if I felt differently,

"Professionally speaking, it's pretty hard to do a police show without violence.... But, personally, I hate it."

I wouldn't want children to be brought up under the pressures we live with today. The world is too chaotic, too full of so many evils: horrible drugs, run-down morality, kids having sex too early. A world where the Pill has become supreme. No. I don't want children of my own or adopted children.

FW: Talking about morality, what do you think of permissiveness in films?

LORD: I saw only one so-called "dirty" picture, and that was "Carnal Knowledge." I hated it with a vengeance. I considered it exploitation garbage. I am not a moralist. I've seen it all. I've done it all. I was a sailor for years. But I don't believe such things should titillate the audience in the theater. I felt

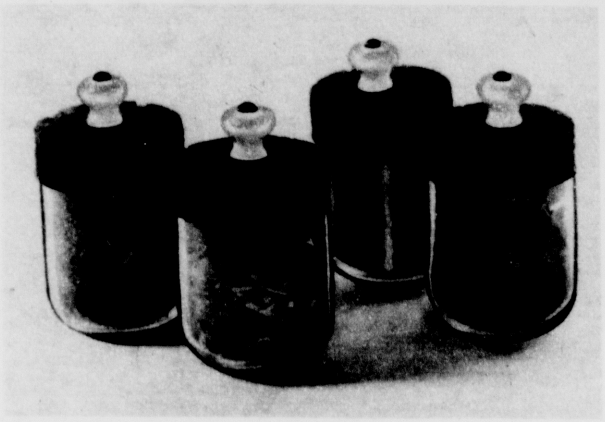
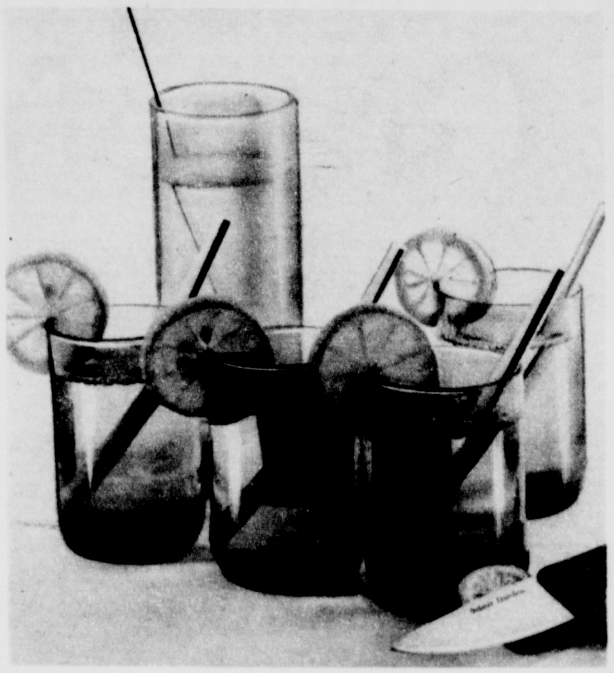
CRACKERBARREL

SUPER BOTTLE CUTTER



This neat little spice set is made from baby food jars. The covers are cut with a hole cutter using ½" thick cork wall tiles, and decorated with ceramic cabinet knobs. Make as many pieces as you need. A great gift idea.

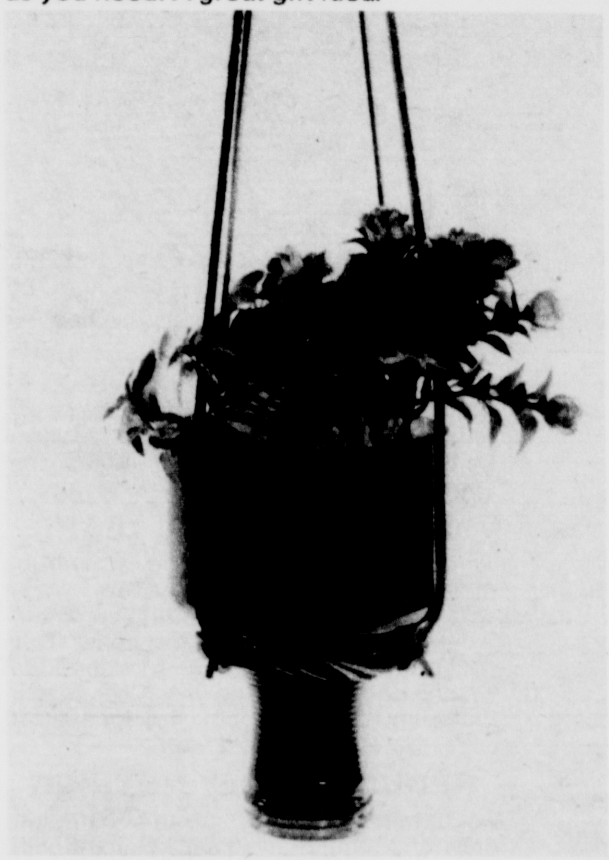


What do you do with those no-deposit, no-return bottles? Simple! Turn them into a great beverage service set, and help the ecology too. We used 10 oz. green glass soda bottles to make this group. With a little experience, you could even use fluted or embossed bottles for a real pop art effect.

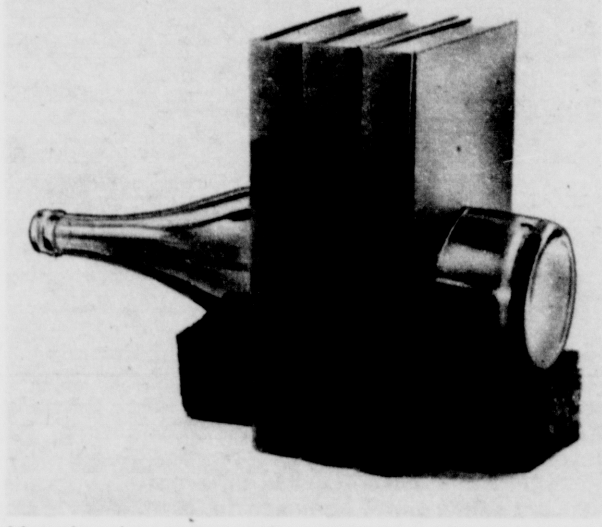
SALE!
$10.00 VALUE
NOW ONLY $2.98

All the beautiful accessories shown here were made at the Crackerbarrel with our Super Bottle Cutter.

Don't just use the bottoms and discard the tops! Look at the lovely vases and bowls you can make. The fruit bowl is made by cementing the top of a large salad oil jar to the bottom of a small jar. We painted the inside of our candlestick with spray enamel in bright orange color.



A half gallon apple juice jar easily converts into a beautiful hanging planter. Just hang it with some leather shoe laces or rope, decorate with plants and a toy bird and presto... it's sensational.



Here's a bookend with a startling effect... made from a large soda bottle that appears to pass through the books. The bottle parts are mounted to stacks of cork or wood with epoxy cement.

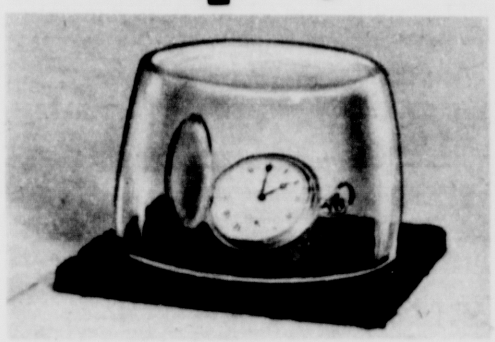
Make Your Own Glasses, Vases, Lamps, Ash Trays, Candy Dishes



Display family treasures under a glass dome made from the bottom half of a pickle jar. We used a cork base... you can also use a wood base and turn it into a cheese board.

Just think! With this safe, easy-to-use bottle cutter and your imagination, you can create wonderful glass accessories. You can use soda bottles, wine bottles... even gallon sizes or larger. And now you can more than make-up the purchase price on the first few glasses, bowls or vases that you make. Great for decorating your home... a wonderful way to make extra money... terrific for making unique gifts. The complete set contains everything you need to start right in (except bottles). You get the all-steel cutter and frame with special powder and cloth to make the edges super-smooth. The simple, easy-to-follow instructions also show great projects to make. Nothing extra to buy! Eat your Fill of Tasty Foods – yet lose 10 pounds in 10 days with Newest Grapefruit Diet

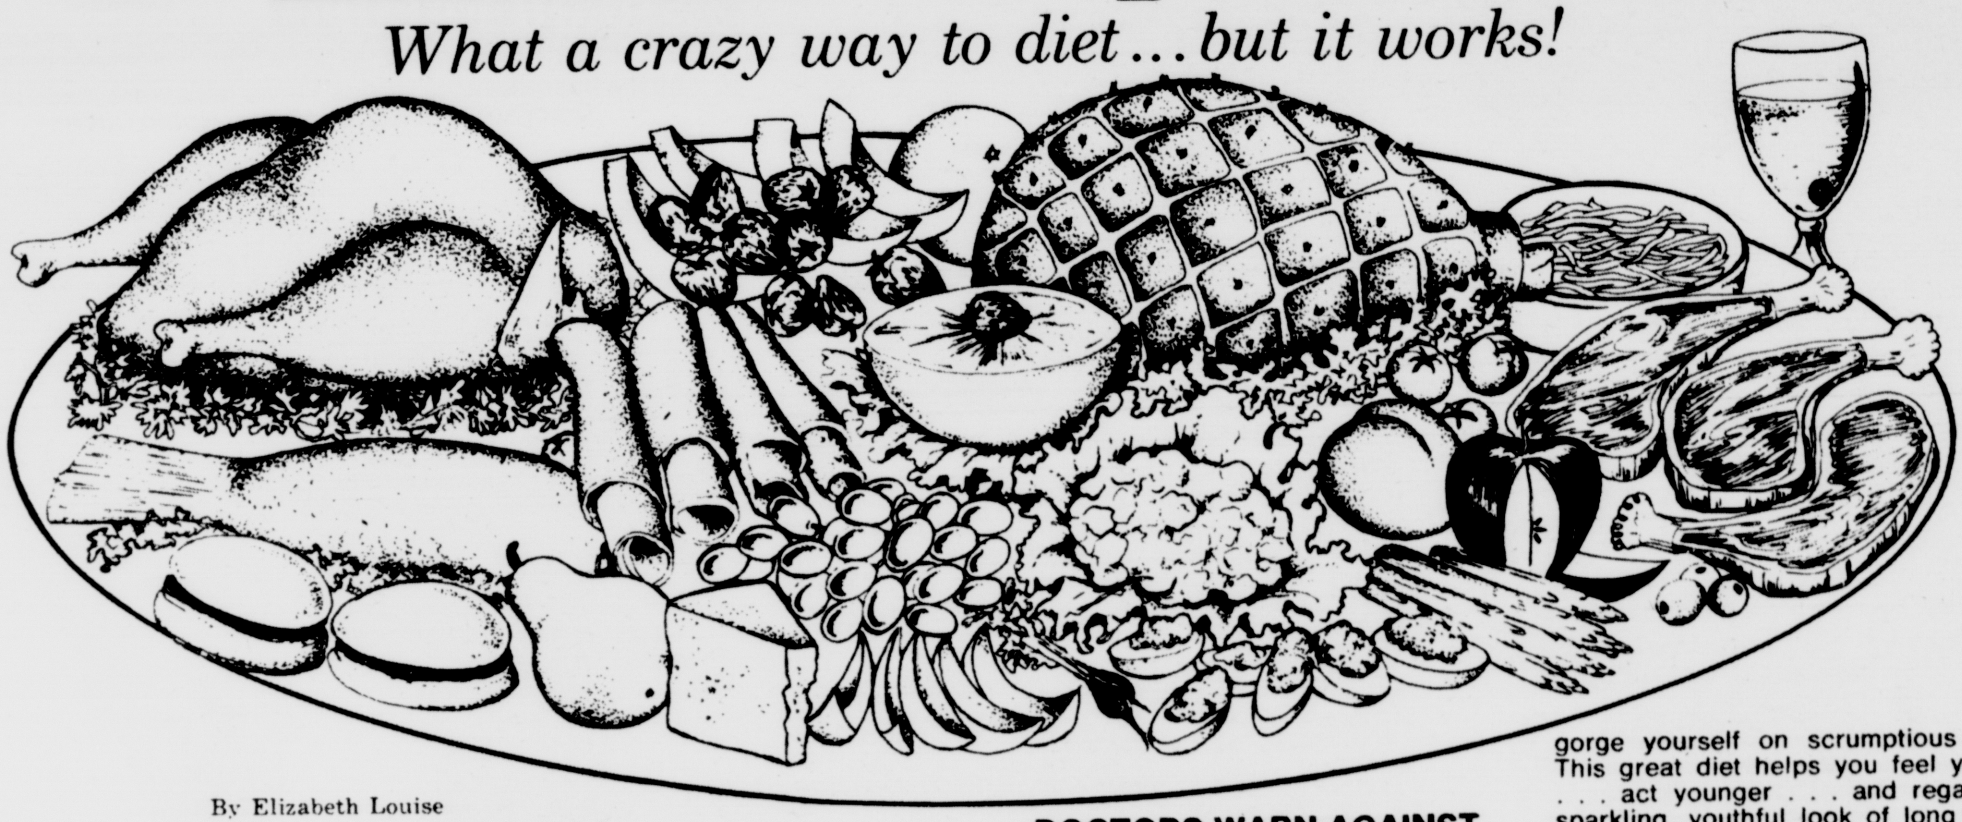
What a crazy way to diet... but it works!



By Elizabeth Louise

New, Special Way to Catabolize Fats out of your body–without unsafe drugs, annoying exercises or strict dieting.

FORT LAUDERDALE, FLORIDA (Special Report) — A new, different Grapefruit Diet, that really works, is sweeping the country. Overweight persons everywhere are losing excess poundage faster and easier than ever before, with this unique diet. Now they can eat all the foods they love — including thick steaks, potatoes, bacon, scrambled eggs, fried chicken, even alcoholic drinks. This special, high speed grapefruit diet begins to work within 24 hours —even while sleeping.

Absolutely no medicines. No muscle twitching exercises and no strict starvation diets, either! Instead, dieters can fill up on scrumptious, satisfying meals. Nevertheless they shed excess poundage fast—up to 10 pounds, or more, in 10 days. This is the reason why: this diet combination wakes up your lazy body CATABOLISM and flushes excess fat out of the body, quickly and safely.

MELT OFF UGLY FAT WITHOUT STRICT DIETING

This improved Grapefruit Super "C" diet requires no foul tasting medicines or boring exercises that wear you out. You don't cut out the foods you've always liked. You never suffer from starvation pangs. Faddish, strict dieting is not necessary. You feast on hundreds of delicious, satisfying dishes — meats, poultry, sea food. You enjoy soups, vegetables, salads with scrumptious dressings and fresh or canned grapefruit. You get breads, muffins, cereals, cheeses, and scores of heavenly desserts. You may also drink cocktails, wines, beer. And between meals, you can munch on scrumptious snacks and tidbits. Eat all you want day or night—without guilt feelings. Yet, unbelievable as it may seem, you'll lose excess weight faster than you dreamed possible! Up to 10 full pounds (or more) in only 10 days. And remember, this new, fast-acting Super "C" Grapefruit Diet is super-charged with NATURAL VITAMIN "C". This vitamin has been acclaimed by dieticians, doctors, even Nobel Prize scientists both in America and abroad. Best of all, this diet wakes up your natural CATABOLISM to flush out excess fats—not the old fashioned, strict diets that half starve you to death.

RESHAPES YOUR BODY

This Grapefruit Super "C" plan actually transforms your figure, day after day. One morning you'll wake up to a wonderful surprise! Your mirror will reveal a glamorous new you—a slim, alluring body. Suddenly you're more limber and lithe, aglow with youthful sex appeal. Thousands of persons have already tried this safe, natural, CATABOLISM way to dislodge fat. Why don't you try it also? Simply follow the delicious satisfying diet and special private instructions. That's all! You will be rewarded with thrilling results. This diet gives you the right COMBINATION of foods that wake up lazy CATABOLISM. As ugly fat is catabolized out of your body, it also helps you conquer that tired, sluggish, "old age" feeling so often caused by a fat-burdened body.

DOCTORS WARN AGAINST STRICT DIETING

The United States Department of Health, Education and Welfare plus many doctors warn against restricted diets deficient in vitamins, minerals, proteins, fats, and starches. You need all these elements for abundant health. If you eliminate any of them, you get only temporary weight loss. Eventually, your body fights back and ugly fat returns, pound after pound. Super "C" Grapefruit Diet is different. It works with you, not against you. No hunger pangs, ever. No skipped meals. You feast on hearty breakfasts, lunches, dinners. You enjoy a rich variety of good eating — foods you've always craved for. Just imagine, you can partake of formerly "prohibited" foods, such as ham, bacon, stews, rich casseroles, creamy desserts, etc. You certainly fill up on many delicious foods. Yet, by following this fast and easy 10 day plan, you can catabolize pounds and pounds of accumulated fat out of your body. Right up to 10 pounds (or more) in 10 days!

HOW DOES IT WORK?

Your body burns up fat very much like a car burns gas. This natural process is called CATABOLISM. After years of faulty dieting, excess fats become hardened and lazy—locked up in body tissues. Meantime your body catabolism may also slow down. Result: cholesterol fats may clog up arteries, placing life itself in jeopardy. Fats become lodged in arms, thighs, buttocks, belly, etc. You look older. You also act older.

NOW there is an easy way to wake up that lazy, sleepy catabolism! Within 24 hours, the Super "C" Diet starts to catabolize this dangerous fat out of your body. The unsightly bulges and awkward pot belly vanish. You eat your fill without regrets, yet strange but true, you lose pound after pound—even if you gorge yourself on scrumptious foods. This great diet helps you feel younger . . . act younger . . . and regain that sparkling, youthful look of long ago.

KEEP IT OFF—ALL YEAR!

This newest grapefruit diet will be mailed to all interested readers. Write today and also receive Full Year Maintenance Plan — at no extra cost. Tells you how to reduce down to your ideal weight and keep it down! How to win that slim, attractive look not for just 10 days—but for year after year.

REDUCE OR PAY NOTHING

To obtain your copy of this complete diet and the Full Year Maintenance Plan, mail handy order form below with $2.00. They are fully guaranteed. Try them 10 days at our risk. If you should not lose weight, simply return diets and get your $2.00 back at once—no questions asked. Address:

Jack Lord: "I've Seen It All, I've Done It All"

Jack, who is a Capricorn, claims not to believe in astrology. "If I did, I wouldn't have married a Leo!"

nothing but revulsion toward it.

FW: How do you feel about violence?

LORD: Well, professionally speaking, it's pretty hard to do a police show without violence. After all, if there weren't violence we wouldn't need the police. But, personally, I hate it. It never solved anything on either a personal or an international level. Violence simply begets more violence.

FW: Have you ever committed any violence of your own?

LORD: Never. The greatest violence I committed was in college football. But that was part of growing up—an initiation into manhood.

FW: Are there any traits in yourself that you don't like?

LORD: Bluntness. I have a habit of saying what's on my mind. Sometimes I am not very diplomatic about it. Yet I know that to exist in a world like ours, I must practice diplomacy. I must show concern for how other people feel.

FW: Has this trait backfired on you?

LORD: There are a lot of directors who won't work with me any more.

"She asked if I would kiss her. . . . I told her that my wife wouldn't like it."

FW: What impressed you most about your childhood?

LORD: My relationship with my father, which was very exceptional. He worked for a steamship company, and let me go to sea when I was only fourteen. He turned me over to a friend, a sea captain, who took me to South America. My father wanted me to see things, to experience life. But he also inspired me to love art—painting, writing, poetry. He would pay me a penny a line to learn poetry. I still have hundreds of poems tucked away in the back of my mind. The penny was motivation at first, and I did it mostly to please him. But gradually I learned to like it. And every night he would read Dickens to me and gradually I learned to like the classics.

FW: Did you always want to become an actor?

LORD: All of my life I wanted to become a painter, and that's why I wanted to go to sea – to get material for painting.

FW: Some people think you take yourself too seriously. Do you?

LORD: If I don't, no one else will. I can't see myself going through life flighty. I take marriage seriously. I take relationships with people seriously. I take business seriously. I take life seriously. I am serious by nature. I'm also tenacious, and loyal. I am a Capricorn.

FW: That means you believe in astrology?

LORD: If I did, I wouldn't have married a Leo! Let's say I am amused by it.

Lord's first love was never acting. "All of my life," he says, "I wanted to become a painter."

FW: What has been your most embarrassing moment on your television show?

LORD: I worked on "Hotel Street" one day. When I came back to my dressing room for lunch, I found a naked girl on my bed. And just what do you say to a naked lady?

FW: What did you say?

LORD: "What are you doing here!?"

FW: And what did she say?

LORD: "I wanted to see you."

FW: And what did you say then?

LORD: I don't remember. But then she asked if I would kiss her, and I told her that my wife wouldn't like it. So she got up, put her clothes on, asked if she could have my picture, and left.

FW: You have to do a lot of flying to get to the mainland, and in helicopters for the show. Are you ever worried?

LORD: I am not concerned with negatives. I like to think positive. You can say your glass is half-empty, or you can say it is half-full. To me, it is always half-full.

SAVES UP TO 2 GALLONS OF GAS EVERY HOUR!

And Gives You Up To 25% More Horsepower Doing It!

How? By eliminating "Fuel-Pump Slop-Over"! And thus feeding your car up to 25% LESS gas (as much as two gallons an hour in heavy stop-and-go driving) . . . at the same exact time that it gives you up to 25% MORE Horsepower doing it! Like this . . .

WHAT DOES THIS MEAN TO YOU? Just this—

- Up to 8 miles MORE per gallon—INSTANTLY!
- Jackrabbit starts—INSTANTLY!
- Skyrocket passing power—INSTANTLY!
- Up to 10 miles more per hour top speed—INSTANTLY!
- And up to $100 a year savings on your repair bills alone—INSTANTLY . . . and for as long as you drive that car!

What does it cost you? Less than a new set of spark plugs! Less than five cents for every dollar you can save on gas bills THIS YEAR ALONE!

And how does it work? As simple as this—

Stops Your Fuel-Pump From Over-Feeding Your Engine One Minute . . . And Starving It The Next!

Your car, like every other car, stores its gasoline in a gas tank . . . and then draws that gas out of that tank and feeds it to your engine with a fuel pump. This fuel pump was invented over fifty years ago! It is a mechanical idiot! It has no brain—just a pump! And therefore, it always feeds your engine THE SAME EXACT AMOUNT OF GASOLINE, whether you're stopped dead in traffic . . . or spurting past another car at eighty mile an hour!

Think about it for a moment! The way gas is fed into your engine today, when you're pulled up for a light your engine is being flooded with gas that it can't possibly burn! (That's why stop-and-go driving is so incredibly expensive—because most of your gas goes right out the tailpipe.) Then when you pick up speed again to turn onto a highway, your engine is still wasting a little less gas at 20 miles an hour . . . wasting a little less gas at 30 miles an hour . . . and finally getting just the right amount of gas for top performance at about 40 or 50 miles an hour!

And then, if you go over 50 miles an hour . . . if you really want to zoom away at 60, 70 or 80 . . . or if you need "instant-muscle" to flash away from another car on a curve . . . then your "idiot fuel pump" STILL gives you the same exact amount of gas it fed you when you were going 40 miles an hour LESS—and leaves you puffing and puffing with your neck stuck out, as though that car was 20 years old and carrying a ton of cement!

IT COULD COST YOU YOUR LIFE ON A BAD CURVE! IT DOES COST YOU UP TO $100 A YEAR ON WASTED GAS ALONE! AND IT CAN ALL BE CORRECTED— IN JUST FIVE MINUTES WITH A SCREWDRIVER—LIKE THIS . . .

Now, just picture the startling difference with this ED ALMQUIST MINI-INJECTOR on your engine—

As you can see by the photo above, the MINI-INJECTOR is small enough to hold in your hand. It slips right on to your engine, between the fuel pump and the carburetor. A 12-year-old boy can put it on perfectly, using nothing more than a screwdriver, even if he never opened the hood before. But once he's done . . . and once you switch on that engine again . . . you're going to HEAR the difference—and FEEL the difference—from the very first second that engine ROARS to life again.

Yes! ROARS to life again! Because this is a NEW TYPE OF ENGINE you're driving with from now on! An engine that operates at absolute top gas-power every single driving second! THAT DOESN'T GET ONE DROP OF GAS IT DOESN'T NEED . . . AND DOESN'T WASTE ONE OUNCE OF POWER THAT IT CAN DELIVER TO YOUR WHEELS!

And this fact shows up for you the instant you start your car! Because—even on freezing mornings—your key is hardly in the switch before that engine is purring with power! Why? Because now there's no gas-flood at all. The walls of that cold engine aren't being choked up with raw gas that keeps the spark from catching fire . . . and that then drains out into your tailpipe, exactly as though you poured it right on the ground!

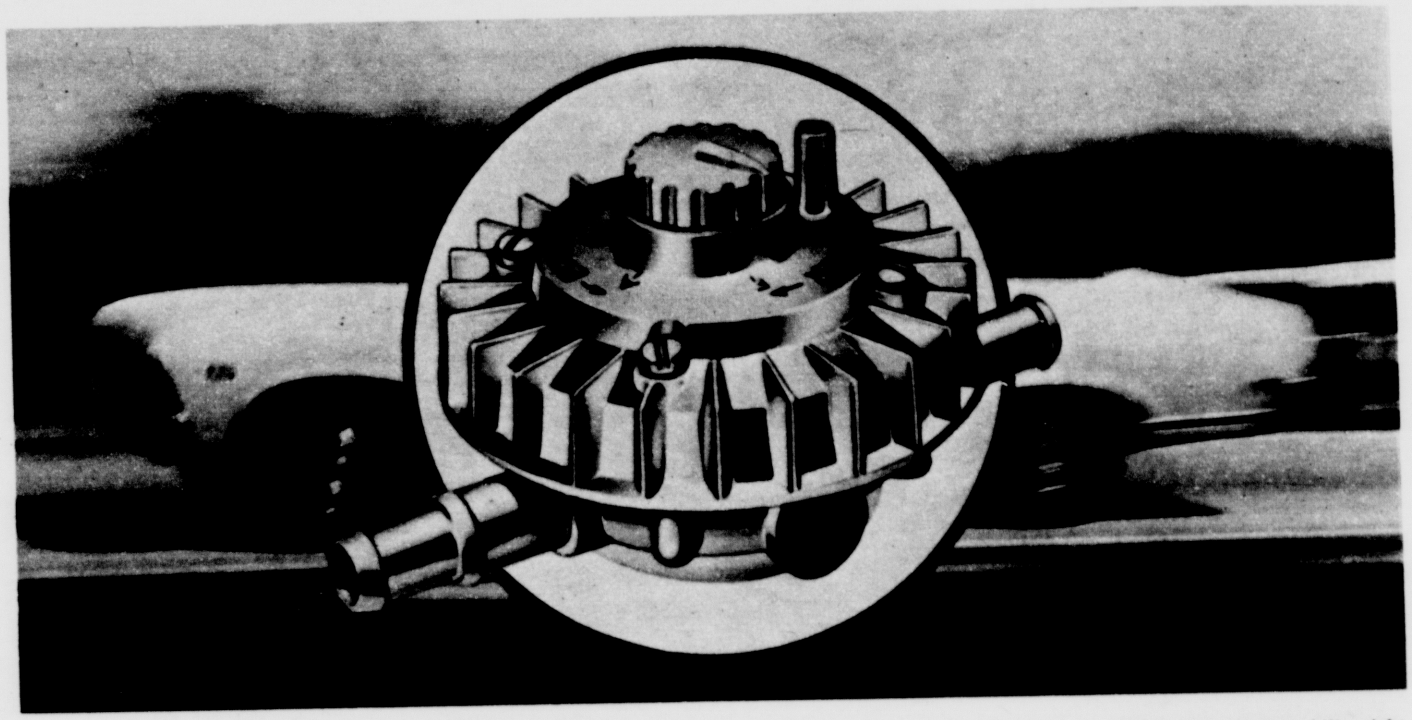
Now at this time—YOUR ENGINE ITSELF SIGNALS TO THE MINI-INJECTOR EXACTLY HOW MUCH GAS IT NEEDS TO START! And the MINI-INJECTOR tells the fuel pump to deliver JUST THAT AMOUNT OF GAS, AND NOT ONE DROP MORE!

You're off in less time than it takes a second passenger to close the door! And you're about to take the most thrilling ride of your entire driving life!

You Would Never Have Believed That Your Engine Could Deliver Power Like This! AND ALL AT A SAVING OF ONE GALLON OUT OF EVERY FIVE!

Now pull into the street and start cruising up to the first traffic light. You'll notice instantly that your foot sits lighter on the pedal . . . that your engine sounds silken-smooth . . . that it's practically floating up to that light, even though it was stone-cold only a few short seconds ago.

There's no coughing, or stalling or bucking—even in those first few cold minutes. And when you pull up to the light, and put your foot on the brake, your engine will tone right down to a contented purr. It will be quieter than you've ever heard it before, without the slightest shiver in the rest of the car itself. Because now that engine is NOT trying to spit out excess gas! Not trying to jerk away from your brake! NOT letting you know every waiting second that you're pouring money out of its tailpipe!



Now the light changes to green. Wait a second, and then carefully place your foot back on the gas pedal. Make sure to give it LESS pressure—THIS TIME—than you ever did before! BECAUSE THAT FOOT IS GOING TO GIVE YOU MORE BLAST-OFF POWER FROM THAT CAR THAN YOU'VE EVER KNOWN BEFORE! AND YOU'RE GOING TO HAVE TO SPEND A DAY OR TWO GETTING USED TO IT!

Prove It At The Lights! Prove It On The Hills! PROVE IT ON THE HIGHWAY— BY FLOATING RIGHT PAST OTHER CARS WHEN YOU WANT TO!

From that moment on, driving becomes a totally new experience for you! Because your car suddenly acts like an athlete—instead of a fat overfed fool!

Now you're not fouling that car with too much gas 80 per cent of the time! Now you're not splashing your plugs . . . eating away your valves . . . corroding your cylinders . . . or draining power out of your engine for every mile you drive!

Now, instead, for perhaps the first time in your life, you are sitting behind the kind of lean, tough, instant-response engine that only sports-car drivers knew before! An engine that flattens hills right down at the merest touch of your foot! That takes off screaming at the lights whenever you want to . . . leaves other cars sitting behind you, choking in your dust!

An engine that simply glides past other cars at 70 . . . 80 . . . 90 miles an hour—whenever you want to walk away from them! And that has so much reserve power left that you KNOW that there's no jam you can get into on the highway that it can't zoom you right out of at the lightest touch of your foot!

And—most important of all—STILL USING EVERY THRILL-PACKED SECOND ONLY THE EXACT AMOUNT OF GAS THAT IT NEEDS AT THAT INSTANT—AND NOT ONE SINGLE DROP MORE! So that the gas savings pile up—day after day . . . week after week . . . month after month! Till you've put a $20 bill back in your pocket . . . a $50 bill back in your pocket . . . a $100 bill back in your pocket—all from a simple little "engine-brain" that costs you originally less than a single set of spark plugs!

HERE'S HOW IT WORKS!

Here's how it saves you up to one gallon out of every five—at the same time that it gives you the most power-packed ride of your life!

Think of this MINI-INJECTOR as having two main parts. The first is a "Miniature brain." And the second is an extra fuel pump connected right on to the brain.

Now, what happens when you put this MINI-INJECTOR onto your car is this: The miniature brain automatically senses the exact amount of gas your engine needs at every driving second (it does this by measuring the vacuum pressure within that engine from second to second).

Your fuel pump, on the other hand, has no such measuring device. So it never knows how much gas your engine really needs. So it simply delivers the same amount of gas to that engine, no matter how hard, or how easy that engine is working!

But now MINI-INJECTOR Takes over! And if your fuel pump is delivering TOO MUCH gas to that engine, MINI-INJECTOR blocks that extra gas with its own fuel pump—sends it back and holds it under compression until your carburetor calls for more gas!

Or, when your fuel pump is delivering TOO LITTLE gas to your engine (for example, when it's a life-or-death case of passing another car on a curve), MINI-INJECTOR skyrockets its own fuel pump into action, and shoots in that extra gas your engine needs. THE VERY SECOND IT NEEDS IT!

So you save the money you want—and you get the power you need—EVERY MINUTE YOU DRIVE!

Prove Every Word Of It At Our Risk! Far More Power On Far Less Gas From The Very First Second—Or We Send Every Cent Of Your Money Back!

And what's the cost for all this performance and all these savings? Only $11.98 complete—less than this MINI-INJECTOR can save you in your very first month!

And you try it entirely at our risk! Just slip it on, and measure the results! Either you're thrilled from the very first take-off—or every cent of your money back!

No ifs, ands or buts! It works for YOU, or it costs you nothing! Why not send in the No-Risk Coupon . . . today!

Are You Aware of Your True Self?

True or False: Your sense of personal identity is easy to measure. (See number 2.)

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

As one leading psychiatrist observes: "The most mysterious and obscure thing in the universe is that which is closest to us—the Self." It goes without saying that the better a man knows himself, the better he can develop his innate talents and abilities. In this quiz, we take a look at the situation.

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. It's hard to tell to what extent you are realizing your talents and abilities and expressing them fully.

2. Your sense of personal identity is easy to measure.

3. Introverts know themselves better and have better insight into themselves than extroverts do.

ANSWERS

1. False. Psychologist Abraham H. Maslow's studies provide an excellent yardstick for self-measurement in this department. He found that truly self-actualizing people—those who have developed their abilities and capacities and are expressing them—"have a feeling of belongingness and rootedness, they are satisfied with their love needs, they have status and place in life and respect from other people, and they have a reasonable feeling of self respect." To the extent you have achieved this, you are realizing your full potential.

2. True—according to the findings of psychologists James F. T. Bugental and Seymour L. Zelen, which form the basis for an established technique in exploring human personality. Briefly, in simplified form, this is how it works. Just ask yourself this question: "Who am I?", and write down the first thing that occurs to you—anything you wish. If your answer to the question is "Why, I'm me," or "Myself," or "John Jones," this indicates that you do have a strong sense of personal identity. However, if you answer "I'm a lawyer," or "A banker," or "A housewife," this strongly suggests that your personality is being submerged by your occupation—that you think of yourself as what you do, not who you are. If you answer with a nonpersonal description of yourself, such as "I'm a man," or "I'm a girl," or "I'm just a human being," etc., this indicates that you are lacking in a strong sense of identity.

3. True. The introvert has the edge here. He is more self-aware—because his thoughts tend to focus inward, on himself—than the extrovert, who is more interested in other people and in things outside himself. However, the introvert does not always make constructive use of his self-knowledge, for he lacks the extrovert's capacity for translating his thoughts into action. And thought without action is likely to be unproductive and lead nowhere.

NEW! Powerful Organic Face Mask

DRAWS BLACKHEADS RIGHT OUT OF YOUR PORES!

SEE PORES UNCLOG! SEE BLACKHEADS, HARDENED OILS, IMBEDDED DIRT AND TINY FACIAL HAIRS PEEL AWAY RIGHT BEFORE YOUR EYES!

● The most fabulous new cosmetic development in years! An incredible new organic face mask that really works... that really draws blackheads, hardened oils, tiny facial hairs and imbedded dirt right out of your pores safely, quickly, easily, at once, right before your eyes!

And best of all, it's organic! Contains no harsh chemicals, can't hurt even the tenderest skin because it's made with pure, organic materials!

It's called Organic Masque and...

HERE'S HOW IT WORKS

No squeezing, no picking and therefore no bruises, scars or danger of spreading infection!

You simply apply Organic Masque to your face. Then go about your business. Do whatever you have to do... your hair, your nails, your housework, reading... in about fifteen minutes or so Organic Masque becomes firm and dry to the touch. Then simply peel it off! It sticks so tightly it actually hurts a bit coming off, but with it comes such an amazing array of matter, you'll hardly believe your eyes!

Look closely and you'll see blackheads, bits of hardened oil, imbedded dirt, old make-up, even facial hairs glued firmly to that mask!

Safely, surely, without squeezing, without popping, you have eased away the dirt, the grime, the filth that has been blocking your pores and making your face susceptible to infection!

This has to be the most fantastic cosmetic product you ever used in your life because you see it work immediately!

If you are bothered with blackheads, you have to have Organic Masque because it helps to get rid of them the safe, easier way! If you have an oily complexion, you need Organic Masque because it helps to remove hardened oils and other matter which is blocking your pores.

Even if you have a lovely complexion, you need Organic Masque because it cleanses your skin like nothing in this world possibly can, and that's a positive fact backed by a firm, Money-Back Guarantee!

THE MOST UNBELIEVABLE PHOTOGRAPH YOU HAVE EVER SEEN IN YOUR LIFE...

This is an unretouched photograph, greatly magnified, of a small section of Organic Masque which had just been removed from the face of a woman with an average complexion. This woman had no visible blackheads, no facial blemishes—not even oily skin—and yet the incredible amount of debris clinging to that section of masque came from her face! Those stump-like objects are blackheads, cores of hardened oil, bits of dirt and even tiny facial hairs which were pulled from her pores with just one application of Organic Masque.

If other facial masques could begin to have this deep-down cleansing action they'd show you photos like this too. The fact that they don't is an indication that they can't perform the way Organic Masque does!

NO RISK OFFER!

Send for Organic Masque now. When it arrives, try it immediately! If Organic Masque doesn't remove blackheads, hardened oils and other pore-clogging, complexion-ruining filth the very first time you you use it, don't keep it! Return the unused portion and get your money back immediately and without question! Organic Masque has to be every bit as wonderful as we claim it is, or you pay nothing! Why not send now?

1. This is a cross-section view of the average skin. Note how the pores are clogged with hardened oil and blackheads.

2. When Organic Masque is brushed on, it contacts the foreign matter in each pore... and sticks to it like glue!

3. As Organic Masque is removed, blackheads, etc. come along with it! Pores are unclogged and skin is cleaner!

AN IMPORTANT NOTE...

This is an era of high-pressure advertising. You have read so many promises, so many exaggerated claims for so many products—and been disappointed so many times—that you can't help but be skeptical, and certainly we don't blame you! The shame of it is that when a product that really works comes along... a product that really does everything you want it to, there is just no way to really convince you. It's like the boy who cried wolf so many times that when a real wolf showed up, no one believed him.

If we could demonstrate this product for you... If we could show you, with your own eyes, and ideally on your own face, the incredible things Organic Masque does, we know you would be just as impressed as we are. But how can we do it with mere words?

What, then, shall we do? The fairest thing we can think of is to simply say, meet us half way. Try it in your own home entirely at our risk. Then you be the judge. If Organic Masque works the way we say it does, you will be more than delighted and you will never want to be without it again! On the other hand, if you are disappointed, you send the package back to us and we send you an instant refund, no questions asked! What could be fairer than that?

This child has a good home, nice clothes, a loving mother– and Pin-Worms!

A tormenting itch in the rectal area, nose-picking and fidgeting are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms. It can happen to anyone in any family—young or old, rich or poor. It's so common, medical authorities say that 1 out of 3 children examined, and many parents, have Pin-Worms without knowing it. And because Pin-Worms bring on itching and fidgeting, they can distract children and affect their school work!

What's more, Pin-Worms are highly contagious, so they can spread from person to person, until the whole family is infected.

What can you do about it? Fortunately there is an easy-to-take medication that gets rid of Pin-Worms. It's called Jayne's® P-W® tablets. Ask your pharmacist. He'll tell you that Jayne's P-W tablets are specially formulated with an effective medical ingredient that gets Pin-Worms out of your system. A Reader's Remembrance

The Day I Met Perry Como

Pictorial Parade

"I can still remember the lake people commenting, 'This fellow will give Bing a run for his money—if he has the gumption to stick with it.'"

Back in 1931—I was only a small child at the time—my family rented a summer cottage at Conneaut Lake, Pa. We frequently ate at the Conneaut Lake Park Hotel because, according to my parents, the food was excellent, and they enjoyed the dinner-hour dance music of Freddy Carlone's orchestra.

One of the band's chief attractions was a young singer who specialized in "crooning." Bing Crosby was then the top crooner, and I can still remember many of the lake people listening to the youngster sing (he couldn't have been more than 18) and commenting, "This fellow will give Bing a run for his money—if he has the gumption to stick with it." The reason they might have had doubts was that the boy had a likable, easygoing poise that made him seem a bit, well, lethargic.

Often the young man would visit our table and talk with my parents. After dinner, he usually invited me to the edge of the bandstand, where I sat on his ice-cream-parlor chair (it was sort of a trademark of his act) while he sang.

As the summer wore on, I developed a regular "crush" on the young singer. Was I the envy of the sandbox set on those days he'd join us at the beach and romp with me!

The years passed, and I soon forgot all about that summer at Conneaut Lake. Then, one day in the early 1940's, I turned our radio up to "teenage" volume to hear a new smash hit called "Prisoner of Love." It was being sung by a bobby-sox sensation named Perry Como. I had never seen his picture, but just the sound of his voice made me swoon all over.

My mother came in, turned the loudness down, and said, "Norma, just because he used to be your boyfriend, you needn't bring down the walls!"

Boyfriend? Me? Perry Como? And then it all came back. The young man who sang to me on the ice-cream-parlor chair . . . those days we spent on the beach . . . that relaxed, boy-next-door manner.

Although the sand castles we built together quickly dissolved into the lake, and many of the songs have faded, my childhood memories of that likable young man, who the adults said seemed to lack "gumption," will remain till the day I die.

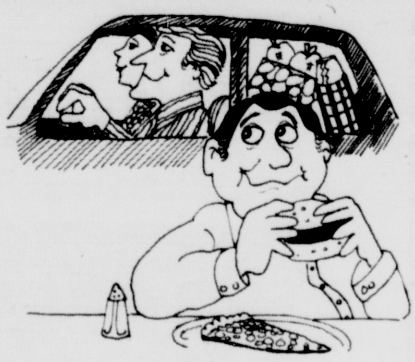
The Diet Watch

Rules for Dieting on Auto Trips



"Ravenously" hungry is the way lots of people get on an automobile trip, and by the time they get to a roadside diner or other possible eating place, they're ready to devour the greasiest, highest calorie whatever-is-available, just to quell hunger pangs. Some simple rules to help the dieter on an auto trip: First, don't start out without breakfast on the premise that you'll "eat on the road," since between your low-blood-sugar fatigue and your hunger, you'll eat the whatever-is-available we mentioned; and if a pizza stand is all that's in sight after 100 miles, you may end up eating guess-what for breakfast (at 185 calories or more a slice). It's also smart to keep emergency snacks in the car, to take the edge off your appetite before other wayside meals, too. A plastic container of crackers is ideal; so is non-drip fruit like apples (70 calories). Good, too, is a Thermos or jug of iced or hot tea or coffee (with fake sweetener). A couple of crackers and a few sips of tea work near-magic at tempering hunger pangs.—By Harriet LaBarre

Sports Mini-Profile

LEN DAWSON, Quarterback:

The Scandal That Almost Wrecked His Life

Len Dawson, the 37-year-old field general of the Kansas City Chiefs, is proving that pro quarterbacks, like old wine, improve with age. He had one of his best seasons last year, his 15th as a pro, when he led the Chiefs to the championship of the western division of the American Football Conference and completed passes for gains of 2,504 yards, second highest total in the AFC. He's hoping to bring Kansas City another Super Bowl championship this year as he did in 1970, when he directed his team to a startling upset of the Minnesota Vikings. . . . Dawson, known as the "Iceman" for his coolness, was troubled by tendonitis early last season, and some said his arm was dead. It wasn't —he threw one crucial touchdown pass after another. His most severe ordeal came during the Chiefs' Super Bowl year. He injured his knee early in the season. Surgery was advised. But he gambled that he could just rest the knee for several games and come back for the homestretch drive. The gamble paid off. But then, five days before the Super Bowl game, big headlines linked him to a gambling investigation. "I felt like a criminal," he recalls, "even though I was entirely innocent. The torment was unbearable. I couldn't sleep or eat and I didn't know if I'd be allowed to play in the biggest game of my life." As it turned out, the investigation concerned a man named Donald Dawson. Len was completely cleared before the big game, and then went on to win it. . . . A native of Alliance, Ohio, Dawson was an All-America quarterback at Purdue and led the Big Ten in total offense three straight years. His coach, Hank Stram, calls him "the most accurate passer in pro football." Although he's cool and taciturn on the field, he's much more expansive off it and conducts a popular sports show on Kansas City TV and radio. Dawson is married and the father of two.

Enjoy roasts, chops, ham, bacon, eggs, bread and plenty of butter, seafood, stews, cheese, mayonnaise, salad and dressing, cream in your coffee or tea—food you love to eat — and all the while, this amazing regimen helps your body burn off those ugly, crippling, health-destroying, figure-marring pounds of fatty tissue!

Actual clinical tests conducted by doctors show substantial losses week after week after week on Eat-Well type regimens. The actual amount you lose depends, of course, on how overweight you are, and on your particular physiology, but it's all so safe, so easy, you'll hardly believe it!

You'll gasp in amazement, stare at yourself in disbelief as day after day you get slimmer, trimmer, more attractive! As day after day you come closer and closer to the safe, normal weight you should be!

NO BRUTAL EXERCISE

Think about it for a moment! You don't take dangerous drugs. You don't go on a starvation diet. You don't strain your heart with brutal exercise, and you don't pour money down the drain on so-called slenderizing massages!

What do you do? You sleep, work, play just like any of your thin friends. You don't starve yourself. You don't go on fad diets. To lose weight, you simply follow the Eat-Well Regimen which consists of two parts.

EAT LUSCIOUS FOODS

First, you take just one single Eat-Well dietary supplement capsule every day. Just one. That's all! And second, you "diet" by eating lots of luscious foods you love — three hearty meals and between-meal snacks—as prescribed by the Eat-Well Regimen. It's just as simple as that, and even though this regimen is so pleasant and so satisfying, your body does melt away ugly pounds of fat day by day, steadily, pleasantly, safely!

PROVED BY DOCTORS

Perhaps this all sounds too wonderful to be true! Perhaps you are wondering how Eat-Well Regimen can perform these seeming miracles when other products that promised so much failed. It's really quite simple. The Eat-Well Regimen is based on a scientific principle which is not the creation of a dietician or a so-called "reducing expert." Eat-Well Regimen is based on a proven medical principle that has been written up by doctors in books and it appears in medical journals. It has been tried and tested and used by countless doctors throughout the world. It is safe and it is effective.

When doctors tested this virtually identical regimen on overweight persons who suffered the usual agonies of ordinary reducing methods, they found that in practically every case, substantial losses were noted! (Ask your doctor.)

Patients lost pound after pound of ugly fat safely, surely and above all, pleasantly! And most important, they lost that weight without suffering constant pangs of hunger, and without depriving themselves of luscious, nourishing food! They simply followed the Eat-Well Regimen and that made the difference.

In short, they lived like human beings! While they ate three delicious meals a day, they were losing weight! While they were enjoying mouth-watering chops, steaks, juicy roasts, sea food, whipped cream, cheeses, fried favorites and all the rest, off came ugly pounds!

With less work, less discomfort, than they ever imagined possible, they ate their fat away! . . . Ate off pounds that had made them miserable for years!

WHAT THIS MEANS TO YOU

After all the products you've tried . . . after all the suffering you've done . . . after all the tortures you've subjected yourself to for year after weary year, and now it's all over!

The practical, intelligent method you secretly prayed for is actually here! This fabulous method, so safe, so easy, so astonishingly effective, is yours to try and to prove to your own satisfaction, without one penny's risk or obligation!

Think of what this can mean to you! Can you imagine the glorious feeling when you live like other people live, eat foods you like without worrying, without feeling guilty, without feeling afraid? The Eat-Well Regimen can do that for you!

Perhaps you have tried other products and been disappointed. Perhaps you have gone so far as to promise yourself that you would never try another reducing product again! . . . But stop and think for a moment . . .

You've tried so often in the past, haven't you? Wouldn't it be foolish to quit now, just a few steps short of your goal? Wouldn't it be silly to give up now, when the method you have waited for is available to you? Why not try Eat-Well Regimen? If not for your sake, for the sake of those you love.

TRY AT OUR RISK

What in the World!

"FLIRTER" NICOLETTE
A new self at sea

Why would anyone want to cross the Atlantic alone, nonstop, in a small boat? The first woman who did it says: "I was going to flirt with death, with insanity, with physical suffering. I was going to be careless with my body and mind. And I was going to be ruthless with the emotions of those who cared about me. Why? . . . I wanted to do something that would not only give me intrinsic pleasure but would also impress people, and so bring in its wake further opportunities to change my whole way of life. When I set sail from Milford Haven for America I took along with me the hope that when I had crossed the ocean I would also have crossed the threshold of a new world for myself which would hold the fulfillment of my dreams of fame." From "When I Put Out to Sea," by Nicolette Milnes Walker (Stein and Day, $6.95).

MR. MOORE, TV's "SAINT"
Palm reading by mail

Have your palm read without showing anybody your hand? Roger Moore, the "Saint," inked his palms and sent the prints to the Society for the Study of Physiological Patterns in London. The society, whose "readers" had no idea whose prints they were looking at, amazed Moore with the accuracy of their report. "There are some things that they just couldn't have guessed—it's almost uncanny," he said. Moore didn't say whether the report told him he would be playing James Bond in the next Bond movie. He will be.

Donate blood to yourself: It beats getting blood from other people, says a team of surgeons in Denver. For non-emergency operations they begin taking blood from the patient ten days before he's scheduled for an operation, and then give the same blood back to him during surgery. Reason? It cuts down on the spread of blood diseases from donors to recipients. Unused blood is donated to the community blood bank and stored for surgical cases that can't be put off for ten days.

A rock worth $3 million, and maybe as much as $14 million: Picked up by a workman last Valentine's Day in an African mine, the "rock" in question is a half-pound, 968.8-carat, big-as-a-hen's-egg diamond called the Star of Sierra Leone. It's the world's largest uncut diamond, and the third biggest ever. Sierra Leone High Commissioner Dr. Davidson Nichol is busy showing the gem to bidders in London. Experts say the Star could easily double in value after it's cut and made into fabulous jewelry. Are you listening, Liz and Jackie?

WAIT OFF MY MIND

Well-named, the doctor's waiting room,
Where it's the patient's fate
To wait and wait and wait and wait
And then to wait and wait.

Where is the doctor? Where is he
Who said to come at four?
The patient waits and waits and waits
And then he waits some more.

The doctor's paid for precious time,
He gets his well-earned fee.
What of the patient patient, though?
The patient's time is free.

Two young volunteers were being interviewed for the Navy and were asked, "Do you know how to swim?"

They both looked puzzled and one of them replied, "What's the matter? Aren't there enough ships?"

After convincing their little boy that a brother or sister would be nice to have around, my brother and his wife asked him to pray for one.

To everyone's surprise, twins were born—a boy and a girl. When he was shown the twins, the boy grinned and said to his father, "Aren't you glad I stopped praying when I did?"

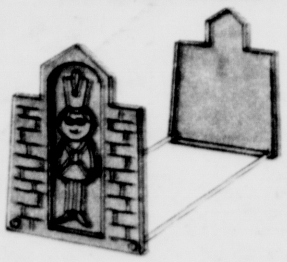
FREE FOR YOUR CHILD... IF YOU ACT NOW!



Yes, this enchanting, custom-made BOOK RACK is absolutely free for your child with trial enrollment in the Program. It's beautifully made, sturdy, practical, and holds up to 20 books! It's absolutely free, even in the event you choose not to continue your child as a member!

Most mothers and fathers frankly acknowledge that they haven't either the time or the perspective to choose precisely the right books for children not yet ready to read or who are just beginning to read. That is why parents are happily turning this problem over to the highly qualified editors of Parents' Magazine, who unreservedly approve all the books shown on this page, from which you can now safely choose any four for your child with complete confidence.

At the same time we send the four books of your choice, we will enroll your child in the Read Aloud and Easy Reading Program and arrange to send to your home each month another outstanding, carefully selected book which you may read to or along with your little one. Each book will charm and captivate your child—from its bright, colorful cover through its gaily illustrated pages, with a story appealing and understandable to even the youngest mind.

SAVE UP TO 50%—AND MORE!

Besides the assurance of good entertainment, and the wonderful read-together sessions each selection provides for you and your child, you will be pleased by the savings on every book. Member's price is only $1.59 each (plus small mailing charge) for books regularly priced up to $3.95 and even more.

MAIL THE COUPON TO RECEIVE YOUR 4 INTRODUCTORY BOOKS FOR ONLY $1.59 . . . PLUS THE FREE BOOK RACK!

If your child is of "beginning reader" or "read to me" age, enroll your youngster now—and receive an introductory package of the 4 books of your choice—all 4 for only $1.59, plus small mailing charge. You must be convinced of the pleasure and benefits this highly praised Program offers your child—or you may return the books in 10 days and owe nothing. The book rack is free in any event.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY—I used to have trouble keeping garlic fresh until the owner of an Italian delicatessen gave me this pointer. Peel and cut cloves of garlic into tiny pieces, put in a small jar, cover contents with oil and cover the jar. Whenever I need garlic in spaghetti sauce I use both the oil and the garlic from the jar and it really works great. —DOROTHY

DEAR POLLY—After raking the yard I use a snow shovel to put the debris (leaves, sticks and grass) into trash bags. A snow shovel is easy to handle and holds quite a lot. I also stay cleaner. —ETTA

Polly pays $1.00 for every idea used. Send them to her, c/o this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY—We have pulled a travel trailer through nearly all the States, and everything in the cabinets used to slide all around. Finally I bought several plastic dishpans, filled them with cookware, cleansers, groceries and so on, and put the pans on the shelves. They do not slide, and that scramble is ended.—MRS. G. T. W.

DEAR POLLY—Do save those old tissue dress patterns. They make wonderful packing paper when moving, or when mailing something.—LYNDA

DEAR POLLY—When you have two decks of cards with the same design on the backs and one gets worn-looking, keep the old deck so that if one card is lost from the newer-looking one you have a substitute.—VICKY F.

DEAR POLLY—To prevent the heels on my shoes from getting scuffed I apply a thin coat of colorless nail polish before wearing them the first time. (Polly's Note—Try a tiny spot first to be sure the polish does not affect the color or general appearance of the heel's finish.)—DORIS

DEAR POLLY—The birds that kept flying against our sliding glass doors were often killed so we put pretty flower decals on the doors. They keep the birds away and are also very attractive.—JENNIFER

© 1972 by NEA, Inc.,

DEAR POLLY—Those who have umbrella-like clotheslines in the yard might like my Pointer. I hang out the clothes and, if it looks like it is going to rain, I throw an oversize piece of plastic over the entire clothesline.—MISS V. J. H.

DEAR POLLY—Here's a clip-and-save for springtime: Use halves of eggshells that are in fairly good condition, fill with rich soil, put flower seeds in them and a bit more soil on top. Water daily and, when large enough to move outside, plants are easily put in the ground. While they are in the house, the half of the egg carton with indentations makes a good holder.—ABBY

DEAR POLLY—Old toothbrushes make good doll hair brushes, and the tiny hangers men's ties come on make good dress hangers for the doll.—JENNIFER
